Brother Bill MacCracken does a timely bit of pinch hitting for a dumb radio dodgaster, and the next time we face Mike it will be at a range of 1,000 yards behind a heavy barrage.

As nobody else seems to be worrying a heck about the social rank of Mr. Edward Everett Gann, we're going to put in an hour a day on it.

Wisconsin has voted in favor of a return of the amber-colored nectar that once made Milwaukee famous, but we fear that the White Ribbon has put the celebrated old Blue Ribbon label out of business, regardless of referendums.

Who remembers when the installation of the Exalted Ruler of Elks would have been worth two columns and a half in any Washington paper, with the menu printed in full?

• • • •

It is understood that Senator Borah is so interested in the State Department's plan for smoothing over the Root World Court formula that he even threatens to be the chauffeur of the steam roller.

• • • •

Representative Morgan, of Ohio, when peeved by the customs inspectors at New York, is reported to have threatened to "raise hell in Washington," and he sure did.

• • • •

The firing upon Stuyvesant Fish's yacht by the New York customs patrol was indeed a striking example of governmental efficiency, even down to the detail of having the search take place in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World.

• • • •

But does stocking Hunting Creek with hand-raised Government trout come under the head of engineering efficiency when President Hoover could save several hours of valuable time by merely taking his rod and reel down to the Fish Commission?

Prince George resigns from the navy to become a career man in the foreign service, and it is understood he is using all the social pull he can muster to keep from being made Vice Consul at Boma, in the Congo Free State.

Cole Blease, explaining that he drinks wet because he likes it, and votes dry because his constituents want him to, says he does not "presume to place his own views above the people he represents." In the old days, when there were giants in Congress, United States Senators did not hesitate to resign when instructed by their States as to how they should vote, and one of them who thus preferred being an ambassador to being a messenger boy afterward became President of the United States. As Mr. W. S. Gilbert puts it—

"I always voted at my party's call,
And never thought of thinking for myself at all."

So much of the serenity of finance and business rests upon a deep-seated public confidence in the Federal Reserve system that the timid subscriber can not but view with misgivings the brickbats now being hurled at it, and hope that, however painful, they are not deserved.

• • • •

This frank interview with the South Carolina Senator discloses how quickly the whole balance of wet and dry strength in Congress may be upset. Prohibition rests on an insecure foundation if this analysis of drinking conditions is sound, and undoubtedly it is, but it comes as something of a shock to be told by a Southerner that "the young people are drinking too much and having too good a time to stand for prohibition if it is really enforced."

• • • •

The Mexican rebel army is so completely crushed by Western Union that probably it won't be able to resume the battle before today's siesta.

We gather from Cole Blease's genial remarks that he's on the water wagon unless somebody offers him a drink.

Virginia apple growers favor a customs tax on bananas. Yep, it's high time the down-trodden banana growers of this country were brought under the beneficent folds of the protective tariff.

The election of Mr. Coolidge to the Senate would be a great boon to Tom Heflin, who is badly in need of a good listener.

HOLDUP MAN IS SLAIN BY SOFT DRINK STAND OWNER; AID ESCAPES

UNLOADED REVOLVER, CLUTCHED BY VICTIM

SHOT THROUGH NECK IS FATAL TO OUTLAW

O Street Scene of Attempted Till Raid Was Famous as Cannon's Saloon.

"And I got one of them," Sol Buckner, 25 years old, the proprietor, said, pointing to a dead colored man, as he finished for police his story of the attempted holdup at 9:40 o'clock last night of his soft drink stand at 401 O street northwest.

Buckner was alone in his place of business, sitting behind the counter and reading a magazine when the two negroes entered.

"Stick 'em up," commanded one, pointing a pistol at Buckner.

Instead of obeying the negro with the gun—he doesn't know whether the other had one—Buckner ducked behind the counter and reached for a pistol which he had at hand for just such emergencies. As he ducked, he continued, one of the men struck him on the head behind the ear, but did not fell him.

Empty Gun Allows Escape.

The white man ran to the end of the counter farthest from the holdup men, turned and started firing. One of the colored men dropped to the floor, dead, it was later determined. The other ran for the door and Buckner turned his fire on him. The negro escaped, but Buckner believes he would have bagged him too if his pistol had not been emptied.

Buckner fired five shots. The colored man clutched in the rigor of death an empty gun. His bluff had failed.

More than one of the shots Buckner fired went into the body of the dead man. Another bullet hole is through the door by way of which the second man escaped.

Police later identified the dead negro as James Armstrong, 20 years

Colleen Loses Passport Waving at Miss Liberty

Pittsburgh, April 3 (A.P.).—Secretary of Labor James J. Davis today instructed officials of the Department of Labor to admit to the United States an Irish immigrant girl who was reported to have lost her passport in saluting the Statue of Liberty upon her arrival at New York. He ordered that the girl, Mary Callaghan, Queenstown, Ireland, be admitted temporarily without a passport if department officials found the report authentic.

The Secretary learned of the immigrant's plight from a newspaper story. The girl's passport and a small sum of money were said to have fallen into the water when she waved to the statue from the deck of the Baltic.

Health Head of Ousted Governor Resigns Post

Oklahoma City, April 3 (A.P.).—Dr. O. O. Hammonds, State health commissioner, tendered his resignation today to Gov. W. J. Holloway, who accepted it.

Dr. Hammonds was appointed during the administration of Gov. Henry S. Johnston, recently ousted, for whom Mrs. Hammonds acted as confidential secretary. The woman secretary was alleged to have dominated the Johnston administration.

Wet-Drinking Blease Explains His Dry Vote

State Against Liquor, He Says; Calls Jones Law Dangerous.

(United Press.)

Among the politically dry but personally wet members of Congress, much criticised since the Morgan and Michaelson cases became public property, there is one against whom the charge of hypocrisy can not be justly directed.

He is Senator Cole Blease (Democrat), South Carolina, who has repeatedly told the Senate, his constituents and the world that he drinks and enjoys it himself, but votes for all dry legislation because his people want him to.

"My position has not changed," Senator Blease told the United Press tonight. "I still drink occasionally and every one in South Carolina knows it, but I voted for prohibition because I represent people who believe in it.

"I voted for the Jones law, too. In that case, however, I did it because I think it is the best way to end prohibition. If we pass enough drastic laws to enforce prohibition, the whole thing will be repealed.

"I know these young people. They're drinking too much and having too good a time to stand for prohibition if it is really enforced."

Senator Blease is unique among senators in his prohibition stand. There are a few who vote wet and admit wet and admit drinking. There are also some who vote dry and drink themselves, according to their colleagues, but there is no one else who votes dry, drinks himself and admits it publicly.

"There is no inconsistency in my position," Senator Blease continued. "This is a representative government.

M'NARY FARM BILL IS FAVORED BY HYDE

READS LONG STATEMENT

(United Press.)

Indorsement of the general provisions of the McNary farm relief bill yesterday by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde virtually assures its enactment at the special session, congressional farm leaders agreed last night.

In a lengthy prepared statement to the House and Senate agriculture committees and in answer to questions from committee members, Hyde made it plain that the McNary bill has the approval of the administration. He refused to say that his statements necessarily represented the attitude of President Hoover, but said he had discussed farm relief with the President before preparing his testimony.

His views were generally accepted as those of the White House, as well as the Agriculture Department, although he assured the committee Mr. Hoover would speak for himself "at the proper time," which will probably be the time of his message to Congress, the preliminary draft of which is already comple[illegible].

Representative Purnell (Republican), Indiana, and Aswell (Democrat), Louisiana, ranking majority and minority members of the House committee, assured Hyde that his suggestions would be embodied in the new bill. Senate leaders also indicated they would be guided by Hyde's proposals.

The Secretary advocated establishment of a $300,000,000 revolving fund to be administered by a Federal farm board with board authority to aid cooperative marketing associations and assist agriculture in whatever other ways it deems necessary. This is exactly what the McNary bill would do.

Hyde emphasized particularly the need for elasticity in the farm relief organization. He said the Government

SPY IN DE KING CASE FLEES FROM SCENE

WARRANT OUT FOR KILLER

Aurora, Ill., April 3 (A.P.).—Eugene Boyd Fairchild, county dry investigator, whose allegedly perjured affidavit led to the raid in which Mrs. Lillian De King was fatally shot by a deputy sheriff, has fled. Deputies who sought him today to serve a warrant charging perjury found he had vanished, and Reuben Anderson, night city marshal at Geneva, reported seeing Fairchild and a companion speed east from Geneva toward Chicago at 3 a. m. today.

The warrant charged that Fairchild signed the search warrant on the De King home, asserting that he personally purchased liquor there. At the coroner's inquest yesterday into Mrs. De King's death he admitted he had not bought the liquor.

Once before Fairchild disappeared. The day after the fatal raid he left Aurora and was traced to his former home at Odell, Ill.

A coroner's mittimus for the arrest of Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, who killed Mrs. De King, was issued today, but service was withheld because Smith lies helpless in an Elgin hospital, suffering from the leg wound inflicted by a bullet fired by 12-year-old Gerald De King. The manslaughter charge against him will be presented to the grand jury, probably next week.

In addition to the grand jury inquiry, another by the State legislature appeared a possibility today. Representative John F. Petit, of Batavia, introduced a resolution in the House, at Springfield, demanding a special commission to investigate the killing.

The preamble of the resolution recited that Mrs. De King was "murderously slain and members of her family brutally treated in a dry raid by Kane County officers under the pretense of enforcing the State prohibition act." The resolution accused the Antisaloon League of being responsible for the "atrocity" and asked investigation of its methods.

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom has before him the request of the Kane Circuit Court to take charge of the investigation. The court's order followed filing of a petition, asking such action, by State's Attorney George D. Carbary. Carbary felt he had disqualified himself to act as prosecutor by expressing an opinion of Deputy Smith's action. The deputy, Carbary said, had acted in line of duty and in self-defense.

If the attorney general refuses the request, or fails to answer by next Monday, the court will appoint a special prosecutor and also set a date for a grand jury session.

After the inquest yesterday Attorney Carbary said he had expected such a verdict and so had filed his court petition to be relieved of the responsibilities of prosecution of Smith.

"I was amazed to find that contrary to my orders investigators of liquor-law violations had been hired at so much a job. I have no belief in a policy that puts a premium on the catching of men violating the law."

Anne Morrow May Return To United States by Plane

Air Transport Officials Reveal Plans to Meet Lindbergh's Fiancee.

San Antonio, Tex., April 3 (A.P.).—Officials of the Texas Air Transport Co. reported here today that Miss Anne Morrow, fiancee of Col. Charles Lindbergh, plans to return to the United States from Mexico City the latter part of this week.

They said arrangements had been made for a plane to pick up the daughter of the American Ambassador to Mexico at Brownsville, Tex., and carry her and a traveling companion to Palestine, Tex., to make train connections for the East.

No explanation of the purpose of the trip was available and it was not known whether Miss Morrow would fly from Mexico City to Brownsville with Col.

POUTRA SLAYER UNKNOWN, JURY QUICKLY FINDS

PROSECUTOR ABSENT, INQUIRY SOON OVER

GRAND JURY STARTS OWN INVESTIGATION

Maryland Authorities Hear Roadhouse Was Scene of Gang Holdups.

After hearing the brief testimony of only one witness, who "knew nothing about the shooting," a coroner's jury investigating the murder of Wesley Poutra in the Green Gables roadhouse, decided last night that the victim came to his death at the hands of a person or persons unknown to it. The inquest was held in the courthouse at Marlboro, Md., with Justice of the Peace Harry W. Gore presiding.

At the same time The Washington Post learned that "Hot Shot" Ruth Bradley, arrested on a murder warrant three days ago, had left Florence, S. C., last night at 7:30 o'clock in the custody of Detective Sergeant Arthur Fihelly and Policewoman Carolina Alexander. She is expected to arrive here for questioning in connection with the Green Gables murder early this morning.

Although Emilio Torre, Joe Hauser, Lucille Grisson and Evelyn Metcalf, all of whom are charged with being accessories to the murder, are held in the Marlboro Jail, none were called before the coroner's jury. Justice of the Peace Gore said he intended calling the four prisoners before the coroner's jury, but was handicapped by the absence of State's Attorney J. Frank Parran, who attributed his absence at the inquest last night to a "fever and sore throat."

Gore said the inquest was conducted in a perfunctory way only because he was unfamiliar with the evidence gathered by Washington police and was handicapped by the absence of Parran.

Prisoners' Counsel Happy.

Denny Hughes and Harry Grant, local attorneys, and J. Wilson Ryon, attorneys for those held in the Marlboro jail, last night were in a happy mood as a result of what has transpired in the case. Ryon, who is representing the Grisson woman, didn't even attend the inquest. He had learned that his client would not be called.

George Knighton, a waiter at the Green Gables roadhouse, the only witness called at the inquest, was subpenaed only for the purpose of establishing the fact that Poutra died as a result of a gunshot wound. Justice of the Peace Gore said the coroner's jury was not certain whether Poutra had been stabbed or shot to death.

Knighton told the coroner's jury he heard the shots while he was in the roadhouse kitchen and went out, seeing Poutra lying on the floor. He asked Poutra whether he had been shot and the victim told him, he said, that he had been shot.

Attorneys for the prisoners last night announced they would make an attempt today to have their clients released on bond. It is expected that the prisoners will be called before the Prince Georges grand jury which yesterday began an investigation into the roadhouse gun battle.

Former Robberies Recalled.

The first witnesses to be called before the grand jurors were Louis Behrens, John L. Brenner, out on bond as a material witness; Judith Cole, one of the hostesses at the Green Gables roadhouse; George Bowman, the cook, and George Knighton, a waiter.

At the same time the Maryland authorities, under direction of State's Attorney Parran, began an investigation into reports that on two occasions recently the Maryland roadhouse had been raided by a band of gunmen-racketeers, the guests lined up against the walls and robbed of money and jewels.

The grand jurors were told that a score or more men and women, all of whom seemed to be in one party, arrived at the Green Gables roadhouse about midnight, March 20.

Knighton, who served the guests, said later he saw many bottles under the tables and that several of those in the party conducted themselves in such a way that he thought they were "too tough to stay with." He said he was in the kitchen with the cook and Miss Cole when the shooting took place.

Tried to Send Party Away.

Knighton also stated the proprietor tried to get the guests in this party to leave, but that they persisted in staying a "little while longer."

As soon as he heard the shots, Knighton said he rushed from the kitchen into the dining room, where he discovered Poutra and Hauser lying on the floor with bullet wounds in

BATTLE OF BUTCHERY DEFEATS REBEL ARMY, GEN. CALLES REPORTS

FIGHT HELD GREATEST OF ANY REVOLUTION

500 WOUNDED REMAIN IN GOVERNMENT CARE

Air Attacks on Naco Are Resumed; Bomb Falls on American Side.

Mexico City, April 3 (A.P.).—A battle of "true butchery" was fought at La Reforma, 11 miles north of Jimenez, this afternoon, Gen. P. Elias Calles, generalissimo of the government forces, said it was a decisive defeat for the rebels and the "greatest battle in Mexico's revolutionary history."

The report said that the rebel infantry was destroyed, that their commanders had fled, that all rebel trains were in possession of the federals, that there were a tremendous number of rebel dead and more than 500 wounded, for whom the federals would have to care.

Gen. Calles based this report on advices from Gen. Almazan, who followed up his successful two days' assault on Jimenez by taking personal command of the cavalry and field artillery which pursued the retreating insurgents.

Called Definitely Decisive.

"The battle at La Reforma was definitely decisive, and in it the rebels have paid dearly for their infamous revolution," said Gen. Calles' message to President Portes Gil.

"In my opinion this most infamous of rebellions has found its tomb in the battle today at La Reforma," continued Gen. Calles. "I have congratulated Gen. Almazan and his officers for the able manner in which they have defended the honor and arms of the republic."

The report of the fight came from Gen. Almazan, who was in personal command of the federal advance guard. This report was sent to Gen. Calles, who relayed it to President Portes Gil.

"The rebel infantry was destroyed," said the report. "All who were not killed were taken prisoner, and the rebel trains are also in possession of the federals. It was a true butchery. The enemy had a tremendous number of dead.

"The federals will have to take care of more than 500 rebel wounded."

Gen. Almazan asked for medical supplies.

All Services Praised.

The federal commander gave high praise to the manner in which all branches of arms, infantry, artillery and aviation, had behaved. He pointed out that Gen. Almazan had reported that the rebel infantry fought with great bravery.

The battle at Jimenez was directed by Gen. Almazan. In his report he said that the rebels there numbered 6,000 under the personal command of Gens. Escobar and Caraveo.

Early on the morning of April 1 Almazan started an attack and the battle raged all day. That night he took precautions to ward off an enemy counterattack, which, just as he had expected, was launched on the morning of April 2.

The rebels hurled their entire force against the federal lines with Escobar and Caraveo leading the assault in person. They tried to outflank the federals with cavalry while making a simultaneous infantry attack against the center.

Counter-Attack Disastrous.

Gen. Almazan described this counter-attack as a complete rebel disaster. He said that both their infantry and

Social War Is Started By Protest of Curtis

Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, whose social status as his hostess is the center of discussion.

Vice President Opposes Sister's Ranking Below Diplomats' Wives.

(Associated Press.)

A social war in the Capital broke last night as Vice President Curtis laid before the State Department a firm protest against its decision that his sister and official hostess, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, should rank below the wives of the foreign diplomats at official dinners.

Just before he retired last week, Secretary Kellogg informed Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador and the dean of the Diplomatic Corps, of this ruling on the seating arrangements at official dinners.

Mr. Curtis is considerably aroused and he has gone personally to the new Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, to seek a reversal of the Kellogg order.

Hardly settled in his new office, Mr. Stimson is cogitating over the dilemma and society is speculating on what the

RADIO TALKS DEMAND AIRPORT FOR CAPITAL

W. P. MacCracken and G. R. Brown, Latter Representing The Post, Speakers.

THEY LAUNCH CAMPAIGN

"It is high time that a real municipal airport be established in Washington," William P. MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, declared in a talk over WRC last night.

With such an airport, he said, the National Capital would serve as an example for the entire Nation.

George Rothwell Brown, author of the Postscript column in The Washington Post, shared the air with MacCracken, and told of the big part the Capital has played in the development of aviation. In conclusion, he suggested that the proposed airport be called "Manly Field," in honor of the late Charles M. Manly, pioneer airman, who risked his life in an attempt to fly the airplane built by Prof. Samuel P. Langley, off Widewater, Va., in 1903.

Assistant Secretary MacCracken and Mr. Brown inaugurated the series of talks that are to be broadcast under auspices of The Washington Post, the National Broadcasting Co., the Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. The purpose of these talks is to arouse Washington and the Nation to the need of an airport here, and to help the airport cause in Congress.

Tonight's speaker will be Lieut. Walter Hinton, a former Navy pilot. As

Intimation Given After U. S. Board Refuses to Join Limitation Plan.

MITCHELL GIVES OPINION

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The national oil conservation movement, launched and matured under President Hoover's regime in the Department of Commerce and only recently given impetus by his conservation order applying to Government owned oil lands, seemed as hopeless as ever yesterday after a meeting of American Petroleum Institute representatives and the Federal Oil Conservation Board.

The institute representatives were apprised that the Government would not be a party to its recent agreement in New York to hold production this year to the output of 1928, and the conference, after much discussion, adjourned sine die with intimation that part of the oil group, at least, might go ahead without the Government and in possible violation of the antitrust laws. Also there was a suggestion that the administration call a conference of governors looking to an agreement for legislation in the respective States regulating the industry.

If the operators decide to go ahead without the oil board's approval, it is hard to see how they can escape action by the Department of Justice in view of the opinion which it rendered for

Hoover Today Completes First Month as President

Thirty-day Period Has Witnessed Calling of Congress in Session, New Oil Conservation Policy and Other Important Decisions.

(Associated Press.)

At noon today President Hoover will reach the end of his first month in the White House, a month in which he has applied himself unremittingly to the problems of the Government, made numerous important decisions and announced outstanding new policies of administration.

The month has seen the President call Congress into extraordinary session for the consideration of farm relief and limited tariff revision, announce that the administration will follow a policy of rigid conservation of Government oil and order that tax refunds of more than $20,000 be open to public inspection. He also has formulated a new plan for the distribution of Federal offices in the Southern States, and in addition has made numerous appointments to positions of responsibility in the Government.

Further, Mr. Hoover has been scanning carefully the list of men available for appointment to the commission which will make a thorough study of Federal law enforcement and court procedure and it has been learned that he disapproves of sporadic and spectacular attempts to enforce prohibition. Instead, the President prefers to build up among the American people a substantial respect for all laws and a realization that they must be observed.

Answering the questions of newspaper correspondents on plans for ad-cavalry were repulsed and that the federals took up the offensive again, turning the repulse into a rout.

After hanging on to a few remaining positions in Jimenez throughout Tuesday the rebels began a retreat at nightfall. Their cavalry was split into two columns. While fleeing toward Santa Rosalia the rebel horse met a detachment of 300 federals under Gens. Benigno Serratos and Jesus Garcia, who had been cut off from the main federal army the day before.

Despite the superior number of the enemy, Serratos and Garcia attacked them and, according to Gen. Almazan's report, took 106 prisoners among whom were Gen. Federico Barrera and several colonels. Later the federal detachment, with their prisoners, succeeded in rejoining the main body of the federals.

Gen. Almazan said that the heaviest losses of the rebels were suffered by their cavalry and that the rebel infantry did not suffer many casualties. He added that the Federal losses were "very few" and that the exact number would be announced as soon as a check had been made.

Forces Kept Together.

While seriously affecting the rebel cause, the Jimenez battle was not nearly so disastrous to the insurgents as had at first been reported. It had been said that the rebels were trapped in Jimenez within a ring of fire and that all avenues of escape were blocked. They managed, however, to find a way out, and official reports revealed that they have kept their forces well together.

As additional reports of the battle drifted in this evening, it became apparent that the fight was bitter and the loss of life heavy. Gen. Almazan claimed that the rebels' casualties would total 2,000, including killed, captured and dispersed. Previous reports had told of only about 200 prisoners and it was believed here that the greater part of the remaining 1,800 would come under the category of "dispersed."

The fact that the rebel cavalry suffered more than their infantry was explained by the fact that the horsemen made three desperate charges. The federal command said that these charges were made in total disregard of risk and that the cavalry retired "leaving the field strewn with dead."

Jimenez Fight Continues.

Juarez, Mexico, April 3 (A.P.).—Messages to rebel leaders in Juarez tonight said fighting had started in the streets of Jimenez this afternoon and was continuing tonight as the rebel army attempted to retake the town from the federals.

The rebel forces were said to have started the counter attack some distance from the city and forced the fighting into the town. Their attack was said here to have been successful tonight. It also was learned that a train load of wounded had reached Chihuahua City today from Jimenez. They are being cared for in emergency hospitals.

Positions Reported Intact.

Juarez, Mexico, April 3 (U.P.).—Gen. E. J. Michel, commander of the Chihuahua City rebel garrison, telegraphed rebel military headquarters here late today that a rebel aviator returning to Chihuahua City from Jimenez at 2 p. m. reported all rebel positions at Jimenez were intact.

The rebels denied completely Mexico City reports that 2,000 casualties had been sustained by rebel forces at Jimenez.

A rebel announcement said that while federals had succeeded in throwing a "thin line" around the city, this strategy had been fatal, as it had "disintegrated Gen. Calles' army into a distended ring of guerilla bands."

The rebels maintained that bombing operations of rebel airmen had caused the federals to lose their water supply and the federals were "facing death from our machine gun" with a great desert behind them.

One of the rebel bulletins during the day said Capt. Robert H. Polk, American flier, who has taken a leading part in the rebel air fighting, had received wounds on the face that caused him to retire from action. These did not completely disable the captain, who planned to return to the fighting line after some rest, according to the announcement.

American Side Hit.

Naco, Ariz., April 3 (U.P.).—A bomb dropped from a rebel airplane landed on the American side of the international boundary line again tonight, when a lone plane attacked the federal garrison at Naco, Sonora.

The bomb fell on American soil by ten yards and the flier came far over the line in making the turns. The explosion did no damage.

Naco, Sonora, April 3 (A.P.).—A rebel monoplane speeding out of the west dropped three bombs on federal entrenchments here just before dark tonight. Two of the bombs exploded on the fortified positions and the other struck near a machine gun that had scattered rebel cavalry early in the day. The damage caused was not learned.

A bit of strategy by 50 federal cavalrymen today brought the opening skirmish in the long-awaited battle of Naco. A detachment of approximately 75 rebel horsemen was drawn within range of a federal machine gun outpost, which sprayed it with bullets.

Federal machine gunners reported that six rebel horses were shot down and one federal horse wounded. Federal Commander Lucas Gonzalez declared his radio had intercepted a message from Gen. Fausto Topete, rebel chieftain, to Gen. Francisco Manzo, revolutionary commander at Culiacan, Sinalos, placing rebel troop casualties at one dead and two wounded.

Rebel Horsemen Retreat.

The rebels, tricked into their first taste of land warfare here, whipped their horses out of range, scurried to a mountainside in a cloud of dust and dismounted to survey the situation.

The main federal trenches were not drawn into the action although several soldiers fired hopelessly at the distant enemy cavalry.

The engagement came after four days of counter air raids in which the rebels claimed the greatest success.

The federal cavalry sallied forth from their fortifications here just after two rebel planes had swooped over the town and dropped three bombs, causing little damage. One of the planes seemed to falter during heavy firing from the trenches, but it flew away safely.

Simultaneously, the rebel cavalry could be seen through field glasses forming in a straggling half circle about the city. The federal cavalry approached a spot which later proved to be a concealed machine gun nest. The rebel horsemen advanced warily and finally were drawn within range of the gun, the federal cavalry dropping back to protection of its troops.

Rebel Position Unchanged.

Three federal airplanes followed the encounter with an air raid over the main rebel encampment, dropping three bombs. They reported that massed columns of rebel cavalry were seen fleeing for shelter as the bombs exploded. One aviator claimed that a white flag was waved as he ventured near the encampment. No formal advancement for a truce was made by the rebels, however.

Observers believed that the circling of rebel cavalry forecast an advance by the main body, and spasmodic firing toward the federal trenches here by the rebel horsemen was thought to be a cover to this movement. Through field glasses the rebels' position 5 miles to the south seemed unchanged.

At Nogales, Ariz., two United States Army planes arrived from Dodd Field, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., for border duty. Earlier two federal airplanes roared over Nogales, Sonora, from the east and headed westward toward the federal air base at Sonoyta, Sonora.

INTERNED FEDERALS FREED BY HOOVER

Troops Who Surrendered at Fall of Juarez Released in Consul's Custody.

U. S. WARNS INSURGENTS

President Hoover has ordered the release of about 300 Mexican federal troops who, with their families, were permitted to cross into American territory over the International Bridge at El Paso, Tex., three weeks ago, when Juarez fell to the rebels. They have been interned at Fort Bliss since entering the United States. Their arms and ammunition are to be held there for the time being. The troops will be released in the custody of the Mexican consul general at El Paso.

The order for the release of the troops was communicated to the War Department by Secretary of State Stimson. The State Department order stated that the troops would be released in the Mexican consul's custody "for such disposition of them as he may desire to make."

The War Department yesterday instructed Brig. Gen. Van Horn Moseley, commander at Fort Bliss, to communicate with the Mexican consul with a view to carrying out the arrangement.

Secretary Stimson pointed out that the United States Government can do nothing to protect Americans who place themselves in Mexican revolutionary activities, providing the penalty meted out to them is in accordance with international law.

The State Department made it known yesterday that as a result of the dropping of two Mexican bombs in Naco, Ariz., during a rebel attack on Naco, Sonora, Gen Frank Cocheu, commanding American forces in Arqona, called on the rebel leader, Gov. Fausto Topete, and warned that the United States would not countenance injury of American citizens and damage to their property. Gen. Topete instructed his agent to settle all damages at once.

SICK MAN, ARRESTED IN LIQUOR RAID, DIES

Sister Charges Dry Agents Did Not Permit Their Prisoner to Dress.

SUCCUMBS TO PNEUMONIA

Winona, Minn., April 3 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Ordered from his sick bed by Federal prohibition agents, who raided his home here Saturday morning, Edward Sikorski, 37, is said to have been whisked 130 miles in automobile to St. Paul, clad only in his shirt and bedroom slippers. He died in a hospital early today of double pneumonia believed to have been contracted during the trip.

Sikorski was arrested when the dry agents nabbed Harry Harris, who lived with him, who had less than a quart of liquor in the house. He became ill shortly after his arrival in St. Paul, and was taken to Ancker Hospital, where he died.

The raid was conducted by a squad of agents from the St. Paul office bureau of the Prohibition Bureau, and was in charge of Joseph Alberts, known throughout the Northwest for the activities of his still squad.

Sikorski, who had been under a physician's care for several weeks, is the father of two children, Bernice, 10, and Edwin, 12.

"Edward was wearing bedroom slippers, and was not fully dressed when the agents put him in their car, took him to the police station here and then to St. Paul without allowing him to come home and get his shoes, an overcoat, or a collar," Miss Florence Sikorski, sister of the dead man, said today.

Two Killed When Plane Falls to Earth Ablaze

their bodies. The other guests were making hasty efforts to get to safety, he said.

Otto Lee Brauchamp, who was arrested Sunday near Clinton, Md., and charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, told police yesterday he was robbed of $54 one night shortly after New Year's Eve, when five gunmen-racketeers raided the roadhouse and lined the guests up against a wall, robbing them of approximately $1,000. He said two of the band entered by the front door and three others came in through the rear of the roadhouse, threatening to kill any one who resisted.

Police also are investigating a report that another band of racketeers raided the roadhouse election night and robbed the more than two score of guests of a large amount of money.

"Hot Shot" Ruth Radley, for whom a warrant charging murder was issued several days ago by Prince Georges County authorities, left Florence, S. C., last night for Washington in custody of Detective Sergt. Arthur Fihelly. Miss Bradley was present in the Green Gables roadhouse during the shooting and police feel confident she will be able to give them sufficient information to enable them to arrest several others wanted in connection with the shooting.

Chancellor Seipel Of Austria Resigns

Unwilling to Hinder Normal Advance of Nation in Face of Attacks.

Vienna, April 3 (A.P.).—The cabinet which, since May 19, 1927, has been governing Austria under the Rev. Dr. Ignaz Seipel, resigned today. Mgr. Seipel, who had combined the offices of chancellor, minister for home affairs and minister for foreign affairs, was requested to remain in office provisionally.

In his statement to the cabinet Dr. Seipel said that the situation of Austria had improved so much it now was possible to take a big step forward in normal development of the country, but since he personally was considered a hindrance to that development, he had decided to resign. He added:

"Without any intrinsic reason, much of this wrongly directed agitation has been against my cloth and the church. On that account I think it right to afford the political leaders a chance to make the future safe in a different way from what would have been possible under my leadership.

Film Actor Avoids Jail As Court Upholds Plea

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (A.P.).—Francis X. Bushman, motion picture actor, was saved from possible jail sentence by decision of Maryland's highest court. Bushman had been adjudged in contempt by the Circuit Court of Baltimore County for nonpayment of alimony to his first wife from whom he was divorced in 1918 and who charged he was approximately $60,000 in arrears.

The Court of Appeals reversed the lower court on the ground that it did not construe as constituting alimony the $40,000 to be paid at the time of the divorce or the $4,000 to be paid annually for support of the Bushman children.

MAN, IN AUTO, KILLS GIRL; ENDS OWN LIFE

Tragedy Follows His Attempt to Keep Daughter's Companion in Car.

BOTH CRASH OVER WALL

Wilton, Conn., April 3 (A.P.).—A high school girl was shot to death today by a man whose efforts to retain her in an automobile led to the car crashing over a stone wall. The man, Edwin J. Melhuish, of Wilton, 41, then shot and killed himself. The girl was Mary Yates, 17, of Wilton.

A witness of the tragedy told police he saw the man and girl struggling in the car just before it got out of control and ran off the road. Both were thrown out as the machine went over a stone wall and against a tree.

After a brief struggle on the ground, the witness, A. I. Thorp, caretaker of a nearby estate, said Melhuish whipped out a revolver and killed the girl. The men then pursued Thorp, shooting at him twice, then halted, swallowed some poison and shot and killed himself.

Melhuish was a former stenographer for a Western railroad, but lately had not been working. He had been in the habit of calling after school for his daughter and Mary Yates, classmates. Today he drove the girls to his home, in Wilton, and his daughter got out. The tragedy occurred while he was driving Mary Yates to her home, 2 miles distant.

Officials Facing Trial Reelected in Leadville

Senator Doubts, However, That Former President Wants Toga.

(Associated Press.)

Responding to rumors that Calvin Coolidge might desire to enter the Senate, Senator Gillett (Republican), Massachusetts, whose term expires next year, said today he was ready to step aside should the former President care to run.

However, Senator Gillette, a friend of Mr. Coolidge, does not believe the man who retired from the presidency on March 4 would consider a senatorial toga.

"If Mr. Coolidge would be willing to run for the Senate or for any other public office, State or national," Mr. Gillette declared, "there is not a Republican in Massachusetts who would not gladly get out of his way."

NEW FIGHT FACING WETS IN WISCONSIN

Leading by 150,000 in State Referendum, Legislature Now Blocks Way.

STORM CUTS DRY VOTE

Milwaukee, Wis., April 3. (U.P.).—An eager population composed of a big majority of wets waited anxiously in the Badger State tonight to learn how much closer to "good whisky" their referendum victory will take them.

A majority in the neighborhood of 150,000 was piled up by the wets in their fight at the polls in Tuesday's election to repeal the State liquor laws. Workingmen from the cities turned out en masse and swept the "off year" election with an avalanche of votes declaring against State liquor restrictions.

Returns from 1,915 precincts out of the State's 2,771 showed 283,790 ballots favoring repeal of the State prohibition act and 135,624 against. Results of 1,732 precincts on the beer legalization showed 205,665 for and 120,446 against.

With the referendum victory accomplished, however, the wets realized that before they can forget State prohibition enforcement, they must obtain repeal of the law in the Legislature. In Milwaukee, formerly the famous city of brewers, the voters were five to one in favor of both the proposals to repeal the State prohibition laws and to legalize 2.75 per cent beer.

From the wet leaders to the beer drinkers in the street there came declarations to the effect "they'd better vote as their backers instruct them."

Meanwhile State dry leaders, who conceded the election as a "great disappointment," prepared to do further battle for the dry cause in the Legislature, where the repeal measure will be decided finally.

In the rural sections, where the drys had expected support in the referendum, a light vote was recorded because of storms, and it served to check the onslaught made by city dwellers on the State liquor statutes. The rural sections increased their dry vote over that registered in the 1926 beer referendum, but the cities piled up heavy wet majorities.

Will Fight in Other States.

The referendum was the first prohibition test passage of the Jones law. The vote showed Wisconsin's intention to align with New York, Nevada, Montana, Illinois and Massachusetts as States which have repealed or never have had State prohibition laws.

Wisconsin wet leaders regarded their victory as an important step toward removing the eighteenth amendment from the Constitution of the United States. They said they would continue their fight in this manner, taking State by State, as did the prohibition forces in bringing the dry issue before Congress.

Within this State the wets contemplate starting recall action against all legislators who continue to vote dry after their districts have approved repeal of the prohibition enforcement act. Repeal and amendment measures are pending in the Legislature.

McBride Sees Challenge.

(Associated Press.)

The Wisconsin vote to repeal the State's prohibition enforcement act was viewed yesterday by F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Antisaloon League, as "a challenge to the dry forces to redouble their efforts," while Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, hailed it as "a revolt of the American people against the tyranny of Federal prohibition."

Dr. McBride declared the vote a challenge to the drys of the State and country to redouble their efforts "to educate the people of Wisconsin as to the evils of the liquor traffic, as well as of the great evils of lawlessness."

He asserted the effect of the vote should be "to wake up the drys to the seriousness of the efforts of the wets to break down the law in the interests of a glass of beer."

Mr. Curran, in discussing the Michigan action and the killing of a woman in Aurora, Ill., by a prohibition agent, said, "These monstrosities indicate the beginning of the end."

United Press Success Laid to Independence

Chicago, April 3 (U.P.).—Freedom from governmental control and subsidies has been largely responsible for the remarkable expansion of the American Press Association, Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, told the Chicago Association of Commerce today.

"The news consumers of the world are sick of governmentally dominated or governmentally subsidized press associations," he said. "The United Press is certainly not an American propaganda agency, nor interested in American propaganda any more than it is interested in British or French or German propaganda. We appreciate that we have a grave responsibility in the creation of a news organization that serves over 1,100 newspapers and is the chief source of news supply for the people of many nations."

Bishop Brent Burial Will Be at Lausanne

Berne, Switzerland, April 3 (A.P.).—The body of Bishop Charles Henry Brent, of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Western New York, will be buried at Lausanne in accordance with a wish he expressed during his illness. This was that he be buried where he died.

The municipality of Lausanne, where the bishop was well known since the religious conference held there several years ago, has provided a place in the wooded Vaux Cemetery and will erect a monument there.

Bishop Brent died at Lausanne March 26.

Motor Crumbles in Flight, Forcing Black to Ground

Baltimore Publisher, Driven Down in Italy as Piston Rings and Cylinder Heads Drop Off, Proceeds by Train to London With His Chief Pilot.

Monte Carlo, April 3 (A.P.).—Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, was overtaken by misfortune today on the last lap but one of his return flight from Cape Town to London. Engine trouble forced a hazardous landing of his big plane on a narrow strip of beach near Vantimiglia.

The plane came to rest near a fence flanking a line of cottages. It will be impossible for the machine to take off from that position, so it will be placed on a pontoon and towed to St. Raphael. There a new engine will be fitted, after which the machine will be flown to London.

Mr. Black on his arrival here said that he would return to London immediately by train, taking his chief pilot, G. T. Geysendorffer, with him. The machine will be left in charge of reserve pilot Johann Scholte and Mechanic Van Triet.

The engine trouble developed in the left-hand motor soon after the plane had passed Pisa, about 9:30 a. m. A valve broke and a piston cracked. Fragments were forced into the crankcase, wrecking the whole engine, and a cylinder head dropped off. The first intimation that the passengers on the plane had of the accident was when a torrent of gasoline was dashed against the side windows of the cabin as the pilot pulled emergency rip wires and emptied the tanks so as to lighten the machine, which was running on only two engines. The cabin became filled with gasoline fumes, and the fuel flooded the after compartment.

The pilot continued with two engines working in the hope of reaching St. Raphael, but within half an hour the faulty motor began to disintegrate rapidly. Piston rings, cylinder heads and other portions of the engine dropped off one after the other, and two cylinders worked loose and threatened to follow the other debris.

The plane dropped lower and lower over the inhospitable coast. The sea was on the one hand and mountains on the other, but the pilot finally made a perfect landing on a sandy, bowlder-strewn beach which was only 150 yards long and about 50 yards wide.

MORGAN RUM WIFE'S, IS CUSTOMS REPORT

Representative Said to Have Threatened to Raise "Hell" in Capital.

NO ONE SAW BOTTLES

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Official reports of customs men were made public today, in which Representative William Morgan, of Ohio, was quoted as having admitted when he arrived from Panama on March 23 that there were four bottles of liquor in his baggage belonging to his wife.

This Mr. Morgan promptly and emphatically denied in Washington, and United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who made the statements public here, said no criminal action could be taken since a husband or wife could not be made to testify the one against the other and none of the customs men had actually seen any liquor.

Inspector Louis E. Crawford, of Closter, N. J., said in his statement that Representative Morgan, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter, said at first that "we" had four bottles of liquor, two of whisky and two of champagne, but on being questioned further said they were brought in by Mrs. Morgan and were for her aged father.

Free Entry Demanded.

Morgan demanded free entry without baggage search on the ground that he was on a Government mission and he obtained free entry by telephoning to Assistant Collector H. C. Stuart at the customs house. Stuart said in his statement to Tuttle that the representative made no mention of liquor over the telephone.

When Mr. Morgan was granted free entry his baggage was released and taken from the pier without having been opened.

"Well, then," Tuttle is recorded as having asked Collector of the Port Philip Elting during his examination, "the upshot is that nobody saw any bottles, saw any liquor or handled any bottles of liquor. Is that right?"

"All we had," Elting replied, "is his admission that he had it and that's all."

"Wrote "Free Entry" Himself.

Inspector Crawford said in his statement, which was the only one of those made by eight customs men that told of hearing Morgan make any admission, that Morgan had written "free entry" on his declaration himself and when he was told it could not be honored on his declaration threatened to "raise hell in Washington."

Besides Elting and Stuart six men who were on the pier when the Cristobal docked with the Morgan family, were questioned by Tuttle. Aside from Crawford they were all officials to whom the inspector took Morgan after he said the representative had admitted possession of liquor. None of the five heard any admission from Morgan but some said Morgan heard Crawford tell them about such an admission and made no denial.

He Denies Statement.
(Associated Press.)

Denial that he or his wife had liquor in their possession when they arrived recently from Panama was made yesterday by Representative Morgan, of Ohio, in answer to a statement by District Attorney Tuttle at New York that a customs inspector asserted that Morgan told him Mrs. Morgan had four bottles of liquor in her baggage.

The Tuttle statement quoted from a customs inspector's report of the incident. In reply Mr. Morgan said:

"I deny the statement made, and hold to my declaration that I had no liquor in my possession and did not know of any one who had. I deny that Mrs. Morgan or any member of my family had intoxicants in her baggage."

The Ohio representative was accompanied on the Panama trip by his wife and daughter.

Blue Law Representative Sued on Note for $330

Representative William J. Lankford, of Georgia, author of the proposed Sunday "blue law" for the District, was sued yesterday for $330 in the District Municipal Court by Duke A. Putney, of Richmond, Va.

Through his counsel, Phillip W. Austin, Putney charged the sum was due him on an unpaid note which Representative Lankford executed on April 8, 1928. The note, according to the charge, was to have been paid in two months and was given as a renewal on a prior note in the amount of $360.

SENATOR'S WIFE

MRS. HENRY J. ALLEN, wife of the new senator from Kansas.

MODIFICATION AIM OF MRS. C. H. SABIN

G. O. P. National Committee Member Says Prohibition Creates Criminals.

EXPLAINS HER RESIGNING

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, whose resignation from the Republican national committee a few weeks ago caused wide comment, since it was generally known that she was not in harmony with the party's present leadership on the subject of prohibition, announced today that she had resigned in order that she might work for a change in the dry law.

Federal prohibition, she said at a luncheon given in her honor at the Women's National Republican Club, "has led to more violation of and contempt for law, both by private individuals and public officials, than anything else in our national life."

"I feel it has created the greatest organized criminal class that ever existed in this or any other country," she added.

Mrs. Sabin said that what she had written in her letter of resignation—that she thought it was time some other woman had a chance at the job—was true, but she had another and "more impelling reason." That reason," she said, "is that I want to devote my untrammeled efforts toward working for a change in the prohibition law."

"It has been repeatedly said," she added, "that the country favors the prohibition law. I believe there are thousands who feel as I do—that it is time to organize and become articulate and work for some change in the law that will bring about the true temperance desired by all and which I believe was the sincere purpose of many good people who supported the eighteenth amendment."

Mrs. Sabin served on the Republican national committee for six years. Her husband, Charles H. Sabin, is a banker, a Democrat, and last year was an officer in the league opposed to prohibition.

HOOVER COMPLETES MONTH AS PRESIDENT

ministering Federal oil reserves, Mr. Hoover declared that there would be only the strictest of conservation. There will be no leases or disposition by other means of Government oil land, either held or controlled, while Mr. Hoover is in the White House, with the exception of such leases as may be mandatory under existing laws.

The subject of tax refund publicity had been the center of an extended controversy in Congress. After Secretary Melon had recommended it the President issued an executive order making refunds in excess of $20,000 open to the public.

Determined to end the abuses which have come to light in the distribution of Government patronage in certain sections of the South, Mr. Hoover issued what amounted to a mandate that the leaders there must remove objectionable conditions or the Government itself will see that this is done.

The formulation of farm relief and tariff revision bills Mr. Hoover is leaving to the committees of Congress, with the announcement that the constitutional division between the legislative and executive branches of the Government must be rigidly maintained.

In the interests of economy, Mr. Hoover has had the U. S. S. Mayflower, famous as the official presidential yacht, withdrawn from service and decommissioned.

SOLDIERS GUARDING MILL STRIKE REGION

WORKERS ATTACK POLICE

Gastonia, N. C., April 3 (A.P.).—The Loray Cotton Mill here, unit of the Manville-Jenckes Co., tonight was under protection of National Guardsmen after a day of excitement and near rioting which local officers could not control.

Operatives of the plant, which employs about 2,200 persons, in two shifts, struck yesterday morning, demanding a shorter working week. While an exact check has not been made, officials of the company said not more than 75 per cent of the workers joined in the strike.

Officials of the High Shoals Mills, a Manville-Jenckes plant, located about 10 miles from here, late today called Sheriff Eli Lineberger, of Gaston County, asking him to bring deputies there as there was "trouble" with the employes. Sheriff Lineberger and four deputies left at once. The nature of the "trouble" was not known at the sheriff's office.

Acting on request of Sheriff Lineberger and Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt, Gov. O. Max Gardner at noon ordered the Gastonia Howitzer Co. mobilized and several other companies held in readiness. Later, Adjt. Gen. J. Van B. Metts, from Raleigh, ordered the Shelby Infantry company, and the Lincolnton Cavalry troop to the scene.

The local guard company, numbering some fifty men under command of Capt. Arthur H. Fuller and with Maj Stephen B. Dolly, of Gastonia, battalion commander of the 120th Infantry, in charge of operations arrived at the mill at 3 o'clock and in less than 15 minutes had cleared the street in front of the mill and had the situation in hand.

There were jeers and hoots, but aside from one woman, who was arrested, no violence was attempted. This woman sought to wrest a rifle from a sentry and was led away by several policemen and deputy sheriffs.

The call for troops resulted from disorderly scenes in the street in front of the employment office of the gigantic plant. Deputy sheriffs and police attempted to stretch cables to keep strikers and sympathizers from the street in front of the plant. The fifty officers were seized and thrown around by the crowd and the cables taken from them.

BLEASE ADMITS WET, EXPLAINS DRY VOTES

and I do not presume to place my own views above the views of the people I represent.

"I am careful not to violate the law. Any public man should obey the laws as an example to private citizens. But it is not a violation of the law to take a drink. If I were to transport liquor or buy it, I would be violating the law and I won't do that.

"For example, I have just come from home, where they make the best corn liquor in the world. But I didn't bring any with me and you couldn't find any in my office or in my home right now.

"In fact, you would never find any in my home because Mrs. Blease is a real prohibitionist. She won't have it around.

"If some friend of mine should invite me to have a drink in his home tonight—well, that would be different."

Blease said he believed there is less drinking now among his colleagues than there used to be but that there is undoubtedly still some. He agrees with former Senator Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, that those who vote dry and live wet are hypocrites of the worst order unless they confess it.

The South Carolina senator expects the Jones law not only to fail of its purpose but to cause violence and bloodshed in its operations, he said.

Jones Law Will Fail.

"A bootlegger caught red-handed, knowing that the penalty under this law is as drastic as he might expect for manslaughter in some States, is going to shoot rather than submit to arrest," Blease said. "When he could merely get bond and a light fine, he was not so desperate.

"I predict more violence in prohibition enforcement under this law than we have ever seen before, bad as some of the incidents have been."

As a practicing criminal lawyer for more than 40 years, mayor of two cities and governor of South Carolina, Blease has had long experience with law enforcement. During most of his public career, South Carolina operated a State liquor dispensary and outlawed saloons.

"The trouble with prohibition enforcement is the meanness it leads to," he said. "Some of these fanatical prohibitionists would stop at nothing in enforcing their law. Civil liberties mean nothing to them.

"As mayor and governor I always told my policemen and prohibition agents to make arrests only when they could get their evidence fairly. There was no snooping. And I believe any one in South Carolina will tell you the law was as well enforced under mine as any other administration before or since.

Need Human Kindness.

"As mayor I used to instruct my policemen never to arrest a drunk unless he became obstreperous. The thing to do is to take him home and put him to bed. I always told them. The town isn't big and it won't be far.

"That's what we need in prohibition enforcement—more human kindness. I try to look at this problem from a humane point of view. There will always be drinkers and any drinking man sometimes gets drunk in spite of himself."

Blease said he was particularly pleased with the Treasury Department's recent order for a record of all embassy liquor importations. He is a tireless critic of the system which permits foreign representatives in Washington to have all the liquor they desire and to serve it at their parties.

"This order is a step in the right direction," he said, "but I believe foreign nations should respect our laws to the extent of ordering their diplomats not to import liquor.

"I liked the attitude of Gen. Foch when he was in this country. He refused to drink wine here because he wanted to obey our laws while he was with us."

Airplane Champions Received by Hoover

Four boys, champions at making model airplanes, were received yesterday at the White House by President Hoover. The boys informed the President of the interest of 300,000 members of the Airplane Model League of America in the second national model plane contests to be held in Detroit June 20 to 22.

Three of the boys, accompanied by Merrill Hamburg, league secretary, flew here from Detroit. They were Aram Abgarian, holder of the national and world records for keeping model planes in the air; Ford Grant, who defeated England's best at London, and William Chaffee, former holder of the indoor record. Thomas Hill, fourth boy, came to Washington from his home in Winston-Salem, N. C. He is the outdoor champion.

INMAN'S LOST LOVE LAID TO OWN BLOW

Tired of Wife, Her Sister Testifies, After He Had Broken Her Nose.

SAILOR TELLS KINDNESS

Reno, Nev., April 3 (A.P.).—Walker P. Inman, wealthy New Yorker, tired of his wife's beauty after he had altered it by breaking her nose, it was testified in his contested divorce suit today.

A sister of Mrs. Inman, Mrs. Irene Patton Schloss, wife of Irving Schloss, New York silk and cotton manufacturer, related details of the quarrel in which Inman is alleged to have struck his wife with damaging results to her profile and quoted him as saying later:

"Helene was the most beautiful woman I had ever seen. Now she is getting fat and, with her broken nose, is not attractive any more."

Inman made the statement, the witness said, after he and Mrs. Inman had signed a separation agreement in 1927.

Gay times enjoyed by Inman prior to the separation were related to the jury to match previous testimony of indiscretions and too much drinking that had been directed at Mrs. Inman. Mrs. Schloss told of an incident when Inman remained at the apartment of s Madge Burzell in New York and said that this had caused a quarrel between the Inmans.

The witness said she had never seen her sister intoxicated, but she related that she and Mrs. Inman had to put Inman and Schloss to bed one night when the two men were drinking. Mrs. Schloss admitted she and Inman had the same failing—when they drank they wanted to sing. Under cross-examination, she testified a Cuban banker named Mendoza was at Mrs. Inman's apartment the morning following a raid, which preceded the signing of the separation agreement. Mrs. Inman visited Cuba later, the sister said.

Jerry Oosten, former sailor on the Inman yacht, testified as to the kindness of Mrs. Inman when the vesseel was in Florida waters. He said she was never intoxicated, and that she cooked their meals in the galley of the boat.

Mrs. May Patton Carr, another sister of Mrs Inman, took the stand for the defense at the afternoon session.

HYDE FAVORS McNARY FARM RELIEF PLANS

board should promote such agencies as "farmer-owned elevators, clearing houses and farmers' pools which are all in the essence of farmer cooperatives."

"It is largely upon these organizations that we should build the foundation of the collective action of the farmer," he said. "We want to build up the farmers themselves to control their products, not to build up bureaucracy."

Hyde said he interpreted the presidential election as a mandate from the people to carry out the following farm relief program:

1. Revision of the tariff for better and greater production of American agriculture.

2. Reduction of transportation costs by development of inland waterways and highways.

3. Assistance of the Federal Government in reorganization of marketing systems through which the farmer may obtain more economical and more stable outlet to the consumer.

In answer to questions from committee members, Hyde said Congress alone should determine who is to stand losses incurred in cooperative enterprises if there are any. The farmer should first assume responsibility and then the Government, he added, when pressed for his own opinion.

The Secretary said he could not yet express an opinion on the export debenture plan or farm relief, the Brookhart proposal to refund $600,000,000 to farmers or the Caraway bill to abolish grain and cotton exchanges. He also excused himself from giving an opinion on the Brookhart cost of production plan. He said the farm board would have to decide whether the farmer is to receive cost of production plus a fair profit for his produce.

Marriage Over City Line Held Illegal

Connecticut Pair, After Honeymoon, Must Rewed, Is Town Verdict.

New Britain, Conn., April 3 (N.Y.W. N.S.).—Stanton E. Ashley, merchant, and Elva McKirdy, school teacher, whose marriage was a society event yesterday, are expected to return from a honeymoon in Georgia next week and be married again, legally this time.

The couple have yet to be informed that in the eyes of the law they are not maried. They did not reveal their honeymoon destination.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Middlebury College and a member of New Britain's public amusement commission, obtained the license in this city. The ceremony was performed at the Shuttle Meadow Club, with the clubhouse just over the city line, in Berlin. The Rev. Dr. George W. C. Hill, who married the couple, attended by four bridesmaids and four ushers, said today that the marriage could not be legal since the State law requires that a marriage be in the town in which the license is issued.

Arrest of Man and Woman Planned in McCray's Death

"John Doe and Mary Roe" Warrant to be Filed; Prosecutor Seeks to Examine 30 Witnesses, Alleging Facts in Death Have Been Withheld.

Tulsa, Okla., April 3 (A.P.).—A "John Doe and Mary Roe" murder warrant will be filed tomorrow in connection with the mysterious death of William S. McCray, millionaire Tulsa oil broker, County Attorney Byron Kirkpatrick said today after a conference with W. S. Coffey, prosecutor in charge of the investigation.

Coffey has been in charge of an extensive inquiry which began last Saturday after McCray died in a hospital of internal injuries. He was injured in a fight with an unidentified assailant in his room at a hotel here Sunday night, March 21, Coffey said.

After the warrant is filed Kirkpatrick will make application before District Judge Saul Yager for authority to subpena witnesses to testify in his office in connection with the case.

"Certain persons have withheld information from our investigators," the county attorney said ... explaining why he would ask that "about 30 witnesses" be questioned.

The three persons who have been grilled the last four days "have given valuable evidence," Coffey said. They are Mrs. Annette Abrams, comely New York divorcee, temporarily living in Tulsa; Mrs. M. A. Dickerson, a Tulsa divorcee and mother of Mrs. Norma Smallwood Gilcrease, "Miss America" of 1927, and J. O. Denton, jr., McCray's nephew.

Denton and Miss Bertha Chism, nurse at the hospital where McCray died early Saturday of abdominal injuries, told investigators that a few hours before the oil man's death he said he had been attacked in his hotel room by a man who was a stranger. Mrs. Jeanette McCray, widow of the oil man, sued her husband for divorce last September. Since that time she has received several calls from women who "tormented" her, she told the prosecutors.

County investigators were told attempts had been made to blackmail McCray. A woman alleged to have made blackmail threats against the oil producer has been living in Mobile, Ala., several months, detectives asserted.

old, 1312 W street northwest. He first was identified by means of fingerprint matching at headquarters, and later by William Howard Taft, colored, janitor at 1411 Massachusetts avenue northwest. A dragnet was put out for the second negro. Police held for investigation Armstrong's brother, Everett, 17.

Buckner, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Eva Buckner, in rooms above the soft drink stand, called the Second Precinct Station. Policeman Claud Evans was sent to investigate. Lieut. Ed Kelly, of the homicide squad, and Detective Sergts. Howard Ogle and C. J. T. Weber appeared soon afterward.

The soft drink stand which Buckner has operated for the last four years was a saloon prior to prohibition. As a saloon it was conducted by several persons, probably the best remembered of whom, according to police, was Mike Cannon, who operated the place when it was in its heydey.

The death wound which the colored man received, according to Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, was through the neck. The body as taken to the morgue.

LOVE AFFAIRS END IN DOUBLE KILLINGS

Ohio Man Kills Sweetheart He Could Not Wed and Then Himself.

SIMILAR CASE IN FLORIDA

Columbus, Ohio, April 3 (U.P.).—E. E. Welsh, who in his way was successful, today chose death for himself and his sweetheart rather than continue the four years' illicit love affair which he believed never would be legalized.

Welsh's body and that of his young sweetheart and stenographer, Eleanor Porter, both shot, were found in the man's motor car near New Albany.

On his finger—the engagement finger—was a cameo ring he had given her. In another box in his pocket was a gold wedding band, which he could not legally give to the girl because he already was married and his wife had refused to divorce him.

Welsh, 43, was auditor and secretary of the Gwinn Milling Co. He had a 15-year-old daughter, and up to four years ago the family had appeared happy.

At that time Miss Porter, a recent graduate of Ohio State University, went to work as Welsh's stenographer. There grew up between them the familiar story of too much association between employer and employe. They often went out together.

Several months ago Welsh and his wife separated.

Mrs. Welsh told police she had refused to accede to Welsh's request for a divorce and had pleaded with him to give up the girl, who was almost 20 years his junior. This Welsh refused to do.

Little is known of the recent progress of the romance until a farmer this morning discovered the two bodies in Welsh's motor car. Coroner Joseph Murphy said there was no question that Welsh had killed the girl and then committed suicide.

Jacksonville, Fla., April 3 (A.P.).—Leaving a letter to his wife asking that "he and his lover" be buried in the same grave, Charles L. Burnett, employe of the American Railway Express Co. at Birmingham, today shot and killed Sadie Norton, 23-year-old waitress, with a pistol and then took his own life.

MISSION GIVES CLEW TO SOUTHERN CROSS

Signals Searching Flier That Missing Plane Flew Toward Wild Jungle.

HOPE FOR MEN GLIMMERS

Sydney, New South Wales, April 3 (A.P.).—One clew came out of the wild Australian bush today to guide searchers for the airplane Southern Cross, which vanished March 31 with Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and three companions, who were on the first lap of a flight to England.

The Drysdale River Mission Station this morning signaled Capt. Chateau, Australian Royal Air Force aviator out on a searching expedition, that an airplane had passed over the station on March 31 heading southwest. This was the day on which the Southern Cross should have passed that way.

It was the slenderest of threads, but was the first definite trace of the four fliers since they literally vanished into the air after sending a radio message that the motors of the plane were failing and that they were coming down through a blinding rainstorm into the bush "about 100 miles east of Wyndham." The vast labyrinth of the western Australian bush is one of the most savage stretches of country left on the habitable part of the earth.

Capt. Chateau telegraphed Sydney this afternoon from Wyndham that he had made a flight over the inaccessible Drysdale station and dropped messages explaining that search was being made for an airplane which should have passed over the mission on Sunday.

The mission staff was requested to signal whether or not such a plane had been sighted by waving a white sheet for "yes" and spreading a white sheet on the ground for "no."

In reply, a sheet was waved in the air, and the signaler then walked in a direct southwesterly line apparently to indicate that the plane had disappeared in that direction.

Chateau's message concluded: "Accepting these answers as being well considered we dropped mail and an explanatory letter and then returned to Wyndham."

"Cheerio" was the final word of the last radio message from Kingsford-Smith and his comrades. But prospects for their rescue were anything but cheerful. Torrential rains in New South Wales, Queensland and Northern Territory today flooded aerodromes and prevented departure of airplanes to search the bush.

Not even on his famous 8,000-mile flight from California to Sydney, the first spanning of the Pacific Ocean, did Capt. Kingsford-Smith face graver peril than in landing in the hostile, trackless wilderness of hills, rivers, deserts and jungles, which constitutes the northern district of western Australia.

The aviators had little food when they landed and they were likely to meet with short shrift from the hostile inhabitants, uncivilized bushmen and even cannibalistic pigmies.

Monte Carlo Arms As Unrest Grows

Carabineers Receive Extra Ammunition; 700 Voters to Meet Sunday.

Nice, France, April 3 (A.P.).—Carabineers at Monte Carlo have been issued extra cartridges in preparation for "any eventualities" in connection with present popular unrest in Monaco.

Another meeting of the principality's 700 or more voters has been called for Sunday and there is some fear the discontent which has forced several demonstrations of late may crop out again.

A local newspaper has warned the French government to watch the situation, inserting a reminder that under the Versailles treaty France is allowed to intervene at any time Monaco is unable to handle its own affairs. There are several factions in the citizenry of the principality. The strongest is the Monagasque Citizens party, which is willing to keep Prince Louis, but wants a new constitution. Other groups want French annexation or protection or Italian annexation or protection, while another wants the League of Nations to settle the difficulties.

Col. House Better After Operation

Tumor Removed With Local Anesthetic in New York Hospital.

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Col. Edward M. House, confidential adviser to President Wilson, was today making satisfactory progress toward recovery in a private hospital, where yesterday he underwent an operation for removal of a tumor from his bladder.

Col. House will remain at the hospital three or four weeks, his personal physician, Dr. A. R. Lamb, said today. He is not permitted to see visitors and probably will not be permitted to see any one until he is ready to leave the hospital. His condition was described as excellent.

The operation, performed at the Harbor Sanitarium, was done with spinal anesthesia. Col. House was conscious all through it and talked with the surgeons as they worked. Surgeons like to do that sort of operation with a local anesthetic," Dr. Lamb said, "to avoid the additional risk attendant upon a general anesthetic."

STIMSON AND BORAH DEBATE COURT PLAN

Schism Over U. S. Entrance in World Tribunal Is Indicated at Parley.

ROOT'S ARRIVAL AWAITED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Secretary of State Stimson and Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, held their first conference yesterday at the State Department and there are prospects for beneficial cooperation in dealing with the foreign policies of the United States. But the obstacle to such cooperation, which may come from the World Court issue, has not been removed as a result of the conference.

Inquiries at the State Department brought the reply that the conference was for the purpose of getting acquainted again after the lapse of fifteen years since Mr. Stimson was Secretary of War in Taft's Cabinet. Mr. Stimson declined to discuss the World Court after the conference. Latest authoritative information from the White House is to the effect that the President has desired to withhold comment on this question until his Secretary of States has had an opportunity to make a study of the matter.

Leaders Not in Accord.

Senator Borah said yesterday after the conference that he was not at liberty to talk about the matters which had been discussed at the conference. It is understood, however, that the World Court question did come up and that enough was said to clearly show that the Secretary and the senator from Idaho are not in agreement.

It is indicated, however, that no affirmative steps are to be taken by the administration in this matter until Elihu Root arrives in Washington next Wednesday. Mr. Root went to Geneva for the specific purpose of paving the way for American adherence to the court. He sought to accomplish this by persuading members of the League of Nations to accept the Senate reservations of 1926, including the now famous fifth reservation, which provides that the league council shall request no advisory opinion from the court without America's consent on any matter in which America has or claims to have an interest. The formula, which Mr. Root carried with him to Geneva changed the form but not the substance of the fifth reservation and the plan was to effect a compromise on that basis.

Formula Changes Reservation.

But in "smoothing over and perfecting" the Root formula, the league jurists relied upon Sir Cecil Hurst, of Great Britain, to give it the necessary international setting and the result was that the substance as well as the form of the Senate reservation was changed by the skillful hand of Sir Cecil and the league experts. There emerged a Hurst-Root formula, which provides that the league council may request advisory opinions of the court whether America likes it or not, but that America may withdraw from the court if her objections are overruled. The Senate is now to be called upon to ratify the Hurst-Root formula as imbedded in the new protocol providing for American adherence.

Mr. Root is coming here to confer with senators and explain to them the real significance of the new formula and to urge that the Senate ratify the protocol. In view of this there are senators, including Senator Johnson, of California, who believe that an effort will be made to obtain ratification at the coming extra session to begin a week from Monday.

Supporters Urge Consideration.

Senators favoring American entry into the court with or without reservations are ready to press for action at the earliest practicable moment. They will seek to procure the support of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson for their plan. Some of these senators are understood to believe that delay will jeopardize their chances, and that American sentiment by December next may be less favorable to the court than they believe it now to be. They are ready to introduce resolutions and make speeches, if necessary, without waiting for assured backing of the administration, if they remain convinced that prompt pressure for ratification is essential. Encouragement from internationalist and peace societies will be at their disposal from the start of the session, and organized propaganda drives will be begun on an unprecedented scale when the signal is given.

Senator Borah does not want to see the World Court issue dealt with at the coming special session. He will oppose giving it consideration in advance of other matters which he regards as more important. Any attempt to have the foreign relations committee report favorably on a resolution of ratification will be fought to the last ditch. The opposition of men like Borah and Johnson will be uncompromising in the sense that no form of persuasion or pressure can apparently have any effect toward altering their course of action.

Other matters of foreign policy, including the Russian recognition question, were touched on at the Stimson-Borah conference.

Precedence Often Harassed White House Administrations

Curtis' Appeal in Behalf of Sister, His Official Hostess, Recalls Historical Instances of Difficulty in Fixing Status of Presidential Relatives.

Precedence, a thorny issue which has troubled many administrations at Washington since the days of Thomas Jefferson, who formulated his own "Rules of Etiquette," now a treasured possession of the Library of Congress, has once more been brought to the fore with the appeal by Vice President Charles Curtis to the Department of State for a reversal of its ruling in regard to the rank accorded his sister and official hostess, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann. Official dinner tables buzzed last night the pros and cons of the question, while officials of the department presumably consulted records and precedents in order to render a new decision, as requested by the Vice President.

Although such an issue has never before arisen over the status of the hostess for a Vice President, knotty problems in regard to the exact position of certain women relatives of Presidents serving as White House chatelaines during their administration have arisen.

Many Washingtonians who recall the administration of President Chester A. Arthur last night rehearsed the "tempest in the White House social teapot" that arose when the question of hostess for the handsome widower President was under discussion. Little Nellie Arthur was too young to serve in this capacity, so Mrs. John McElroy, his sister, received at White House functions for him on many occasions. However, President Arthur invited 40 Washington society women leaders to receive with him on New Year's Day.

The heartburnings and jealousies which arose can well be imagined. The vexed question of who should take the place of honor at his immediate right at that occasion was the prevailing topic. President Arthur himself decided the question on the day in question by offering his arm to Mrs. John G. Carlisle, wife of the then Speaker of the House of Representatives, at the New Year's reception of 1884. At the last moment before the guests were admitted it was decided to place the Cabinet women in a receiving line back of the President, while the other ladies "invited to grace the line" were arranged to the right of the President in a long row. It is easy to imagine the buzz of excited comment which followed this action especially when one of the band of temporary White House hostesses felt that they had not been properly placed in the line. Mrs. McElroy always presided over the White House dinners as the hostess, but she was not inevitably given precedence over Cabinet women at other times.

Curiously enough, before President Cleveland married, Mrs. Thomas Hendricks, wife of the Vice President, was disposed to hold that she was entitled to social preeminence as first lady of the land because the President had no wife. But in arranging the social code of his administration President Cleveland invited his sister, Miss Rose Cleveland, to preside over his household, and determined that the members of the receiving party at his levees should be limited to the ladies of the Cabinet. This excluded the wife of the Vice President, who, however, was invited to assist Miss Cleveland at her drawing rooms.

The list of women other than wives of Presidents who have served as chatelaines of the White House is a notable one. It included Martha Jefferson Randolph, daughter of President Jefferson. During Mrs. Randolph's absence, Mrs. Dolly Madison, the vivacious wife of his Secretary of State, James Madison, served as the White House hostess.

Mrs. Emily Donelson, niece and adopted daughter of Mrs. Andrew Jackson and wife of Jackson's private secretary and counselor, Col. John P. Donelson, jr., was hostess for "Old Hickory." The delicate question of social precedence was raised in this administration when Mrs. Andrew Jackson, jr., came to the White House as the bride of the foster son of the President. Old Hickory decided the question as to who might be in power there by saying to Mrs. Jackson "You, my dear, are mistress of The Hermitage and Emily is hostess of the White House." And as such Mrs. Donelson was accepted by the Nation and the White House.

When her "uncle," as she called Andrew Jackson, asked her to receive "Peggy O'Neil," the wife of Secretary of War Eaton, Mrs. Donelson did so at the White House, but she refused to call upon Mrs. Eaton.

Mrs. Abraham Van Buren, daughter-in-law of President Van Buren, and Mrs. Robert Tyler, daughter-in-law of President Tyler, both presided as hostesses at the White House. In part of the Tyler administration Mrs. Letitia Tyler Semple, his daughter, who died in Washington at the Louise Home only a few years ago, acted as hostess for her father.

Mrs. Daniel Stover and Mrs. Martha Johnson Patterson acted as hostesses for their father, President Andrew Johnson, sharing the honors of First Lady between them.

The triumphs of the beautiful Harriet Lane, Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston, niece of President James Buchanan, as hostess at the executive mansion are well known.

In recent years Miss Margaret Wilson and Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo acted as White House hostesses after the death of their mother, the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, and on several occasions Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, a cousin and member of the White House family, did the honors for the President.

SOCIAL WAR ON AS CURTIS PROTESTS RANK GIVEN SISTER

next step will be. At The State Department it was said that Mr. Stimson is studying the Curtis appeal. It was suggested there that numerous precedents exist for the Kellogg ruling.

The seating of guests at official dinners is one of Washington's social problems. It is the subject of great study and there exists an informal code of laws on the question. It is even the theme of books. It has been the subject of disputes, some serious, since the hectic days of President Jackson, when the wives of some of his Cabinet refused to recognize the bride of his Secretary of War, the former Peggy O'Neil, and caused a Cabinet break-up.

Text of Curtis' Statement.

By just what course the present difficulty arose is not certain, but on March 19, at the suggestion of the State Department, Mr. Curtis says he notified the department that Mrs. Gann would be his official hostess. He then asked "for her full recognition as such." The Vice President added that Mr. Kellogg, "without discussing the matter with him (the Vice President), acted upon it in the manner heretofore given to the press."

After the decision of Mr. Kellogg was made public recently, Mr. Curtis decided to bring the whole situation into the open, and yesterday he made public a statement disclosing that he had protested to Mr. Stimson and that he had asked for a reversal of the Kellogg order. Mr. Kellogg retired from office the day after the Vice President received the ruling.

The statement issued at the office of Mr. Curtis read:

"The Vice President states that the question of the seating of his hostess, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, at official dinners has not been settled. He has notified the Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson, of his dissatisfaction with the action of the former Secretary, Mr. Kellogg, and has asked for a reversal of it.

"The Vice President states further that at the suggestion of the State Department he notified the department on March 19 that Mrs. Gann is his official hostess and asked for her full recognition as such. Without discussing the matter with him, Mr. Kellogg acted upon it in the manner heretofore given to the press.

"The Vice President feels that he is not bound by Mr. Kellogg's conclusion and he has protested to Mr. Stimson."

Guests at Hoover Dinner.

The status of Mrs. Gann at official functions has been a constant subject of speculation in society since Mr. Curtis became Vice President. The wife of Mr. Curtis died five years ago and he has made his home since with Mr. and Mrs. Gann.

The devotion existing between the brother and sister is well known by their friends here. Mrs Gann accompanied Curtis on some of his trips in the last campaign. On being elected Vice President he announced that Mrs Gann would be his official hostess.

Upon moving to the Mayflower Hotel after becoming Vice President, Mr. Curtis invited Mr. and Mrs. Gann to share his suite, and they are doing so.

Just what course will be pursued at official dinners pending the outcome of the present dispute is uncertain. It is understood, however, that in the meantime Mrs. Gann is being accorded every recognition given to her brother

In the midst of the excitement over the incident, it was announced at the White House that President and Mrs. Hoover were entertaining a small party tonight at dinner, including the Vice President, Mrs. Gann and Mr. Gann. Other guests included Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, and Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times, and Mrs Ochs.

There was no announcement of the seating arrangement, and in the absence of it, the presumption was drawn that Mr. Hoover accompanied Mrs. Ganns to the dinner table and that Mr. Curtis accompanied Mrs Hoover And Washington society was speculating again on whether the President was attempting to set a quiet example.

Procession to Church.

The procession will proceed from the embassy to the American Procathedral in the following order: The family is to lead the way, followed by the embassy staff; Gen. Lasson, representing President Doumergue; the president of the Senate; the president of the Chamber of Deputies, members of the French cabinet, Marshals Joffre, Lyautey, Petain and Franchet D'Esperey; the Diplomatic Corps, the prefect of the Seine, the prefect of police, the president of the municipal council; the president of the general council; Gen. Gouraud and representatives of American societies.

Detachments of the finest units of the French army will render honors.

The body will remain in the church until 6:30 p. m., when it will be escorted to the Montparnasse Station by the family, embassy staff and consular staff. There it will be placed aboard a special train which will be due at Brest about 7 o'clock Friday morning.

Honor Guard Named.

Norman Armour, charge d'affaires and counselor; Gen. W. W. Harts, military attache; Capt. George W. Steel, naval attache; H. C. MacLean, commercial attache; Consul General Gaulth and the late ambassador's private secretary, W. W. Schott, will accompany the body to Brest. Mr. Schott is to board the cruiser Tourville and accompany the body to New York.

Two battalions of infantry are to meet the body at Brest and three companies of marines will escort it to the arsenal, whence gunboat will transfer it to the Tourville.

All the ships in the harbor will bring their flags to halfmast during the transfer of the body. The Tourville will fire a 19-gun salute. Destroyers and torpedo boats will escort the cruiser twelve miles out to sea and there render a final salute to the ambassador's memory.

The Tourville has been ordered to proceed to New York under reduced speed in order to allow the liner Aquitania, with Mrs. Parmely Herrick aboard, to reach New York ahead of it.

Sittings of the second Dawes committee have been postponed from tomorrow morning until the afternoon on account of Ambassador Herrick's funeral.

OFFICIAL HOLDS FISH FAMILY NOT ABUSED

Surveyor of New York Port Upholds Methods Used in Yacht Search.

DENIES HIGH-HANDEDNESS

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Surveyor of the Port Thomas W. Whittle today completed an investigation of the searching of Stuyvesant Fish's yacht for liquor and announced his opinion that charges by Fish of abusive language and display of firearms were unfounded.

Fish, a wealthy broker and sportsman, complained to Washington that his yacht had been halted near the Statue of Liberty by men who kept him and his family covered with leveled weapons while one of their number searched the boat. He charged the men used profane and abusive language in the presence of his wife and two young sons.

Whittle questioned L. N. Brophy, in command of the customs patrol boat that halted the Fish yacht, and was told that Brophy himself made the search and that there was no abusive language or display of pistols.

"From what I have heard," Whittle said after the examination, "I believe Mr Brophy is telling the truth, that he made a search of this vessel as he would have in other cases, and I believe him when he says there was no swearing. We have the utmost confidence in Mr Brophy."

Whittle said that there was nothing at this time to show that Brophy had done anything wrong, but that if it should be proven he did anything he should not have done, "proper apologies" would be made.

Shortly after Whittle had told of his findings, Capt. A. Phillip Larsen, who was at the wheel of the yacht when it was halted, issued a statement in which he reiterated the charges of profanity and high-handed treatment.

Larsen said he saw the customs boat but heard no signal to halt until shots were fired. As chief instructor for the marine division of the American Car & Foundry Co, he said he has brought 150 yachts into New York waters from Wilmington and that this was the first time he had ever experienced such treatment.

Mr. Fis is a handy man to do the little odd jobs you've been putting off doing from day to day. You'll find his address and telephone number among today's advertisements in the "Personals" classification of The Post.

GLASS HITS VIRGINIA TRADE, SAYS DURANT

Rayon Corporation Relies on Stock Market, Is Auto Man's Views.

CITES OTHER INDUSTRIES

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—William C. Durant, regarded as one of the leaders of the "bull" forces on the New York Stock Exchange, taking issue with the position of Senator Carter Glass that business is being retarded by the growth of stock market loans, today declared that a large industrial enterprise in Virginia, the senator's own State, and hundreds of others, are dependent upon security collateral loans.

"Senator Glass, of Virginia, justifying the Federal Reserve Board's attack upon business interests of the country," Mr. Durant said, "makes the statement that if less of the country's unemployed funds were loaned by bankers on stock exchange securities—the best collateral ever created—there would be greater volume of legitimate business in Virginia and other States.

"Senator Glass probably is not aware that the Industrial Rayon Corporation is at this moment building a plant in Covington, Va., the senator's own State, costing about $5,000,000. This industrial enterprise and hundreds of others making for our present prosperity would never have been attempted if the securities for these companies could not, by order of the Federal Reserve Board, be accepted as collateral when offered by brokers or others to the banks of the country."

Charleston, S. C., April 3 (U.P.).—The Federal Reserve system can succeed in stopping stock price gains only by injuring business, Waddill Catchings, president of Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, and William Trufant Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, said in a joint statement today.

The statement said that as long as investors have confidence in the growth of business they will buy stocks for investment at advancing prices and that recessions on the present market, which is really an investment market, can not last for long if prices are based on growth in real value.

"After all has been said about recent speculation in stocks—and it is difficult to exaggerate—the fact remains that the fundamental basis of the present bull market is confidence in the soundness of American business and in the immediate possibility of further growth," the statement continues. "And this confidence, apart from the uncertainty created by the Federal Reserve Board itself, is warranted by the facts. That is why the board can achieve its announced purpose only by hurting business."

Resignation of Polish Premier Is Reported

Lindbergh, or travel to the border by train.

Mexico City, April 3 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh spent a quiet day with his fiancee, Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of the American Ambassador. The couple strolled about the embassy garden in the morning and later motored along some of the picturesque roads in the outskirts of the capital. They have found automobile excursions the best method of being by themselves.

The colonel's plans were not revealed, but it was understood he would pass probably five or six days here. It was not considered likely that he would take Miss Morrow on any aerial excursions.

The Travelair monoplane, in which he and his fiancee narrowly escaped disaster several weeks ago when a landing wheel came off and the ship cracked up, has been crated and started for Wichita, Kans., where it will be rebuilt. Lack of new parts, coupled with the outbreak of the revolution, kept the mechanics at Valbuena Field from repairing the plane here.

Parisian Gowns Distinguish Wife of Envoy From Ireland

Mrs. MacWhite Especially Attractive in Costume of Pale Gray.

By EMMA PERLEY LINCOLN.

Mrs. Michael MacWhite, wife of the new Minister of the Irish Free State, who has recently arrived in Washington, looks like Paris. Every one who has met her agrees that she must surely have been gowned by the creators of the world's fashion capital.

To any one familiar with the shops of London this conjecture would not necessarily follow, for the shops of Picadilly and Bond street and the other smart West Side places provide the swankest of styles for womankind. It is even possible that the wife of the Irish Minister was outfitted in Dublin, for while we are not informed in the subject, we have no special reason to believe that Dublin lacks in style.

At any rate, Mrs. MacWhite is pretty and petite and delicately complexioned and extremely well turned out. In a costume of pale gray, she is very lovely, a gown of satin with a coat collared in squirrel. The hat worn with this costume is in helmet shape, which Mrs. MacWhite has had repeated in various colors. It turns off the face and is long at the back and sides.

At the Italian Embassy the other afternoon for tea, Mrs. MacWhite wore a wine silk ensemble with her favorite type of hat made in wine-colored felt, a sable scarf and brown suede pumps.

For traveling, Mrs. MacWhite likes tweeds or printed silk frocks, and a tweed top-coat trimmed in fur. On the several trips which she has taken with the Minister, since landing in the States, she has been so attired. It is interesting to remark that Mrs. MacWhite is deeply impressed with our great distances here and thinks travel facilities are marvelously comfortable, especially in the trains bound for the West.

An indisposition has prevented Mrs. MacWhite from attending all of the evening affairs which have been given in their honor, but on the occasions when she has found it possible to appear, she has been exquisitely gowned. At a dinner given by the Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg, Mrs. MacWhite wore silver lace over flesh-colored chiffon, a beautiful model made on princess lines with a flared skirt touching the floor at the back and sides. With this she carried a green chiffon shawl and wore satin pumps in the same shade.

She has also worn a most becoming frock of pale blue taffeta printed in faint colorings, and fashioned with a quaint bow at the back. Her evening wraps are all fur-trimmed. Her wardrobe is said to include several chiffon and silk wraps with soft fur collars. A pale gray velvet coat embroidered in silver with a white fox collar has been her choice for evening since coming to Washington.

TEST OF ANTITRUST STATUTE MAY BE MADE BY OIL MEN

the oil board. It did not say outright that the New York agreement of the operators was in violation of the antitrust laws, but it intimated very clearly that it thought so.

It refused to render any opinion on the point, in fact, on the grounds that it is not for the department to interpret the laws for nongovernment agencies. It did say that the oil board had no authority to sanction the plan and if such sanction were given it would not relieve oil operators from responsibility.

"It is clear," the opinion read, "that Congress has not given the board any power to grant to any persons immunity from the operation of acts of Congress prohibiting agreements in restraint of interstate commerce and that the board has no authority to approve any action which is contrary to an act of Congress or to the antitrust laws of any State, and that no action taken by the board would have the effect of relieving parties to such an agreement from the operation of the antitrust laws of the United States and of the States. The proceedings of the American Petroleum Institute indicate that the purpose of submitting the proposed agreement to the Federal Oil Conservation Board for approval is to obtain a sanction from the Federal Government which may operate to make the parties to the agreement immune from the operation of the antitrust laws.

"The proceedings of the Petroleum Institute make it clear that its members already realize that under existing laws such an agreement could not safely be made without the sanction of some officials of the United States authorized to give it, and as I (the Attorney General) have already pointed out, no such authority exists."

It was in taking exception of this statement that the intimation came that the operators may test the antitrust laws. C. B Ames, general counsel of the Texas Co., insisted that the operators knew they were right and could go ahead on their own volition. The antitrust laws do not apply to mines, he declared, the United States Supreme Court having so held, and oil comes under the classification of mines, he insisted.

As to whether the particular group which Ames represents plans to make a test case was not definitely brought out. His mood was pretty positive, however, but whether his mood was that of the full industry represented at the conference was not made clear.

In so far as the oil board knows, no further step is immediately contemplated by either side. It will have to have another meeting before even the proposal that the State governors be invited here to a conference is acted upon.

It was a new board, and besides passing on the information that it could not go along with the New York plan there was nothing further it could do at this time. Secretary of the Interior Wilbur served as chairman, while other Cabinet members making up the new board were Secretary of War Good, Secretary of the Navy Adams and Secretary of Commerce Lamont. Dr. George Otis Smith, chairman of the board's technical and advisory committee, was also in attendance.

The oil executives present were William Irish, president of the Atlantic Refining Co.; E. J. Sadler, vice president of the Standard Oil of New Jersey; E. B. Reeser, president of the institute; R. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Co.; C. B. Ames, general counsel for the Texas Co.; W. F. Franklin, general counsel of the Tidal Refining Co., and E. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Co. of California.

pilot of the big Navy seaplane, the NC-4, Hinton made the first flight across the Atlantic. Not long after that he was blown in a balloon from Rockaway Beach, N. Y., far into the wilds of Canada, and got back to civilization after 31 days of travel by foot and dog sled through the Hudson Bay country. In 1922 he made the first flight between North and South America, piloting his plane from New York to Rio de Janeiro over lands and waters never before looked upon from the air.

After that feat Hinton and his companions flew over and mapped more than 12,000 square miles of jungle in Brazil. Today he is president and director of the Aviation Institute of this city. He will speak over WRC tonight at 7 o'clock and will tell what the future holds for aviation.

Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, chairman of the joint congressional committee that was appointed to study the airport problem here, announced yesterday that the committee would start hearings at 10 o'clock Monday morning. At the same time, he said, he expected that the committee would recommend plans for an airport that all America would be proud of. The first witness to be called will be Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District.

In his talk last night, Mr MacCracken said, in part:

"Would Set Good Example."

"Airports have been established by municipal authorities in every State in the Union and by the territorial governments in Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands. It is certainly high time that a suitable airport be established in the Nation's Capital. There is no better way of encouraging others to do that which is worthwhile than by setting a good example. There can be no doubt as to the need of such facilities."

Paraphrasing a line in a decision of the New York Court of Appeals, MacCracken continued:

"The dwellers in Washington will pay dearly if their city waits much longer for an airport. But Washington is the Nation's Capital, and therefore the loss will be shared by all.

"Visitors Need Airport."

"Hundreds of thousands of visitors come to Washington every year—some for pleasure, others for business. Those who desire to travel by air should be provided with adequate airport facilities, just the same as the motorist is provided with good roads, and a tourist camp in which to park his automobile and pitch his tent.

"Not only is there need of an airport for those who come by air. Many persons who arrive by other means of transportation would like to avail themselves of the opportunity to view from above the Capital of the Nation and the surrounding sites of historical interest."

MacCracken Aids Brown.

Mr. Brown, while he has seen and reported a long list of aviation achievements, found that talking about them into a microphone was different, and in the midst of his talk, turned his paper over to Mr. MacCracken, who finished reading it for him.

"Washington is the birthplace of aviation," Brown said. "As they say down South, it was 'bawn and raised' here; yet there is no city today which so sadly lacks in landing field facilities, but which so richly deserves them. Washington should have the finest airport in the country, and Congress should not impose upon the taxpayers of the city an unjust proportion of the expense, for Washington's airport must be necessarily the one outstanding national airport, and its chief function will be to serve the Federal Government.

"Washington has a particular interest in aviation. The first modern airplane capable of flight was born in the brain of a Washington scientist, the late Samuel P. Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution."

Brown, a young reporter at the time, told of spending the summer of 1903 at Widewater, reporting the various tests of Langley's airplane, and of the heroism of Charles M. Manly, who was serving as a pilot. The day that Manly and the airplane crashed through the ice off what is now Hains Point, Brown said, the nose of the craft was pointed toward Gravelly Point, one of the sites suggested for the proposed airport here.

"We have perpetuated the names of Langley and of Selfridge, giving their names to two flying fields," said Brown. "I do hope that we shall not forget the late Charles M. Manly, the pioneer birdman of them all. Why not make it 'Manly Field?'"

Smuggling Costly, Says U. S. Witness

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Morris Landau, New York jeweler, testified in Federal Court today that the diamond smuggling for which he and six other persons were indicted was not a particularly profitable business.

Landau, a Government witness at the trial of John T. McIntyre, former traffic patrolman, testified that all he got out of the smuggling transactions was a series of bad notes. He read a list of nearly a dozen customers who, he said, owed him more than $35,000.

Throughout the two-year period in which the smuggling was done, Landau said, about $160,000 worth of diamonds were bought in Europe and smuggled across by stewards of transatlantic liners. Stones worth nearly $70,000 were brought in between November, 1927, and November, 1928, he asserted. Landau, William Ballyn (former chief steward of the Berengaria), James S. Steel and Barnet Shapiro, partners in a lace business in Gloucester, Mass., have pleaded guilty to the smuggling indictment. The others indicted are McInfyre and Landau's son and daughter, Sidney and Frances Landau.

FARM RELIEF PLANS.

Considerable importance is attached to the remarks of Secretary of Agriculture Hyde before the agricultural committees of the Senate and House. While Secretary Hyde made it plain that he was speaking for himself, his statement was made after a long conference with President Hoover, and it is not probable that his views would be at variance in any way with those of the President.

It is evident that the administration has no panacea to cure all the ills of agriculture in a single law. Secretary Hyde told the committee that the Republican platform clearly outlined the plan to be followed. This means revision of the tariff for better protection of the farmer, development of inland waterways and highways to cut down transportation costs and improvement of the marketing system. Since the tariff and transportation facilities must be dealt with separately, the long-awaited farm relief bill will no doubt center on the problem of improving the machinery through which products of the farm can be better marketed.

Secretary Hyde views the passage of a measure similar to the revised McNary-Haugen bill, which excludes the equalization fee, as the clear mandate of the people. He thinks that a Federal Farm Board should be created and given the authority and resources to develop the marketing system. This board should have wide powers to work out the many agricultural problems, to loan money with which stabilization agencies would be able to take up seasonal surpluses and thus stabilize prices, and to meet new difficulties as they arise. The Secretary's plan is one whereby the Government could help the farmers to help themselves.

The country will now await with interest the message of President Hoover to the new Congress. Since the President has refused to set forth in detail his idea as to what the farm relief measure should contain, it is not likely that his message will do more than elaborate on the views expressed during his campaign. It is not safe to predict what Congress will do, but every turn of events appears to favor creation of a Federal Farm Board whose chief function will be encouragement of marketing facilities by the farmers.

IN THE RAILROAD WORLD.

Many reports of railroad earnings, as they are made public by the various companies, have something to say of increasing competition. "The private automobile, the bus and even the airplane," says J. J. Cornwell, general counsel for the B. & O., "have played havoc with passenger revenues." "The automobile has taken from us," adds Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern, "a substantial part of our passenger revenue," but he admits that the automobile at the same time has made a large contribution to freight revenue. "Lack of proper governmental regulation of motor vehicles," says George Hannauer, president of the Boston & Maine, "gives them an advantage with which the railroads find it difficult to compete." Officials of all the railroads are frankly concerned over the new competition and are scratching their heads in an effort to discover a means to offset it.

Generally speaking, the railroads have made an excellent record in view of their decreasing gross revenues. Average train loads and train hour production have been increased and novel operating efficiencies and economies have been introduced, as a result of which many of the roads have found it possible to increase their net earnings while their gross revenues have decreased. But how long can that go on? "The railroads have been meeting the losses in revenue by operating economies," said a B. & O. official recently. "I do not think they can continue to do that. If the downward tendency of rates continues much longer the result inevitably must be less efficient railroad transportation."

During the first two months of this year gross revenues of many of the roads increased. The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, the Boston & Maine, the Southern and the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines showed increases over 1928, although the gross revenues for the first two months were running behind those for the first two months of 1927. The Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, the Chicago Great Western, the Illinois Central and the Denver & Rio Grande had larger gross revenues for the first two months of 1929 than for the first two months of either 1928 or 1927. There has been an improvement, but it is not great.

In the meantime the railroads are gradually becoming more and more interested in bus operation. Mr. Hannauer calls attention in his report to the fact that wherever possible the Boston & Maine has established rates to meet truck competition and has coordinated rail movements with trucking schedules provided by a subsidiary company. Thus, he says, the road has retained business that was threatened by outside trucks. The Southern, noting that its passenger revenues have decreased 30 per cent in the last five years, is continuing its experiments with omnibuses. It is now rumored that the Pennsylvania, which not long ago went into the bus transportation business in and around Philadelphia on a most extensive scale, is entertaining a suggestion that it join forces with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co. and the Baltimore & Ohio for the ownership and operation of buses in the Philadelphia district.

It would not be so important in the evolution of the American transportation machine if newer and better vehicles should drive out the old were it not for the fact that the railroads now carry, and in the future will be called upon to carry, the bulk of the freight business. Their continued prosperity is vital to the general prosperity of the country.

LAWYERS ON THE WRONG TRACK.

Indignation over enactment of the Jones law has prompted organization of committees in New York, Boston and Philadelphia for the purpose of aiding any defendant who faces the five-year jail sentence or a $10,000 fine which it provides. The same motive has prompted a Washington attorney to annqunce that he will cooperate with the New York lawyers in offering legal assistance to Jones-law violators.

These attorneys are ostensibly acting on the belief that "true temperance can never be attained by the imposition of fabulous fines and unjustifiable prison sentences." Their opinion that the Jones law is unjust is no doubt shared by a considerable portion of the American people, but this method of fighting the measure will not command widespread sympathy. There is no excuse for encouraging lawlessness by offering to extricate violators from the toils of the law.

The theory of government in the United States is that the will of the majority shall rule. The Jones law was passed by the representatives of the people duly elected to Congress, and as long as it is on the statute books the country will look with disfavor on groups which deliberately promote its violation. If these attorneys hope in this way to bring about repeal of the measure, their hopes are based on a false premise. The most certain way to arouse public sentiment against an obnoxious law is rigorous enforcement of it. If the action of these groups is intended as outright defiance of the law, it is time for the Bar Association to discipline them.

Any one who offers free legal services to prevent punishment for any crime encourages citizens to commit that crime. In this country, where lawyers have so much influence in the courts, it might be considered as an attempt to immunize bootleggers against the law. No scheme to foster lawlessness can win the support of the American people, and the Bar Association, which is devoted to upholding the law, should not tolerate this method of fighting prohibition.

MORE CARS THAN EVER BEFORE.

The automobile industry established a new first-quarter record for all time in the first three months' production of 1929. Some 1,400,000 cars were turned out between January 1 and March 31, with several plants establishing new all-time monthly records in March and with practically all plants planning to maintain capacity or increase production schedules in April. The gain in sales for the first quarter of 1929 was 25 per cent as compared with the first quarter of 1928.

The American capacity to absorb automobiles seems to be limitless. Ten years ago manufacturers began to wonder whether or not there existed a saturation point beyond which production could not be absorbed, but year after year, and month after month, production schedules have been increased and the output has flowed smoothly into the hands of owners. A continually improved product partly explains why there has been a steadily increasing demand for new cars. The increasing number of two-car families has also played an important part. It is true that the used car has been and continues to be a problem to the dealer, but thus far he has managed to dispose of the cars he accepts in trade, nor are there any signs of an immovable glut in the used car market.

The fact that the first quarter of 1929 has been a record-breaker indicates that the year as a whole will witness new sales peaks. No radical structural or mechanical changes are contemplated, but there will be the usual features of refinement in line and enhancement of "eye appeal," which in the past have proved such efficient stimulators of sales.

In the meantime, the Department of Commerce reports that in the first two months of the year exports of automobiles and parts reached a total of $105,400,000, as compared with $66,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1928. This was at the rate of $650,000,000 annually, as compared with a total of $500,000,000 in 1928.

BASIS OF THE TARIFF.

It is not likely that Congress will accede to the demands of manufacturers that dutiable imports be valued according to the price asked for them in America. There is a determined effort on the part of manufacturers who feel that the present foreign valuations do not offer them sufficient protection to have the American valuation system adopted. The issue threatens to complicate the limited revision of the tariff to be undertaken at the special session.

Regardless of the merits of the American valuation plan, the fact remains that limited revision of the tariff would be impossible should it be adopted at the coming session. Tariff experts estimate that change from the foreign to a domestic valuation scheme would be equivalent to a 40 per cent tariff increase. This would undoubtedly gratify many manufacturers of this country, but it would meet with hasty disapproval of the consumers and of the nations engaged in trade with the United States. It is unthinkable that Congress would take any such action.

Adoption of the American system of valuation means a revolution of the whole tariff structure. It would be impossible to work out a satisfactory plan for adoption at the special farm relief session. Every single rate would have to be changed, and this would involve an intricate analysis of the difference between the value of the thousands of dutiable imports here and in the country of their origin.

If Congress favors adoption of the American valuation system it could ask the Tariff Commission to make the necessary investigation and report what change would be necessary in each schedule to prevent a wholesale increase in the tariff. Under any circumstances the matter could not be properly disposed of at the special session and its proponents could gain nothing by stirring up a fight over it.

Manufacturers who are suffering from undervaluation of imports might gain immediate relief if foreign commercial representatives were instructed to maintain a closer check on importers who are falsifying to avoid the payment of full tariff duties.

Ford by-product sales for 1928 totaled $16,775,000, excluding the model T car.

COOLIDGE FOR THE SENATE.

The editorial in the Boston Transcript of March 23 urging the nomination of Calvin Coolidge for the United States Senate in 1930 has evoked comment in all parts of the country. There is, naturally, both approval and dissent, but there seems to be general agreement that Mr. Coolidge could be elected if nominated, and agreement, almost as general, that he would be an able senator.

Boston Post: We certainly do not dispute the Transcript's prediction that the people of Massachusetts would respond heartily to his candidacy and that his election might be taken as assured.

But we doubt very much if the consent of Mr. Coolidge to such a candidacy could be obtained. He is in retirement (temporarily or otherwise) a great national figure. He belongs not to Massachusetts alone but to the country.

Chicago Evening Post: So Calvin Coolidge is being called upon to save Massachusetts from complete conquest by the Democrats. We think the Transcript's confidence that he can do it is well placed. There is precedent for a return to the Congress after service in the White House. John Quincy Adams went back as representative when he had finished his work as President. That is the only precedent, but it is a Massachusetts one and sufficient.

Afraid of the Democrats.

(Robert Barry in the New York Evening World): The possibility that Calvin Coolidge may permit his name to be used as a Republican senatorial prospect in the Massachusetts contest of next year was thrust forward today as the most significant political happening since Herbert Hoover's entrance to the White House.

It is not doubted that Mr. Coolidge would cut far more of a figure in the Senate than has Senator Gillett. He would be a personage. Anything he did or said would be news.

The chief argument of the Republican old guardsmen who are scheming to place Senator Gillett on the shelf is that, unless a man of the Coolidge preeminence is nominated, Massachusetts is likely to have two Democratic United States senators for the first time in the history of the Old Bay State.

Bangor Commercial: Should Mr. Coolidge react favorably to the Transcript proposal it is hardly open to doubt that he could obtain the Republican senatorial nomination, and that without great exertion. It would mean the shelving of Senator Gillett, but doubtless that could be arranged acceptably to the latter.

Hartford Courant: Some misguided Bay Staters are still insisting that former President Coolidge be made the Republican candidate for senator in 1930 as the successor of Frederick H. Gillett. Ordinarily the selection of a senator from Massachusetts would be the State's own affair, but the whole country has an interest in Mr. Coolidge. While it is recognized that Mr. Coolidge could render valuable service in Congress, public sentiment, we believe, will favor giving him the rest he has well earned.

He has been in public life about a quarter of a century and there is no occasion to drag him back after he has retired by his own choice.

Lowell Courier-Journal: It is probably of no use whatever to discuss Mr. Coolidge in connection with the Senate unless Senator Gillett sees fit to withdraw from the field. It is possible that the senator will have opposition in the primaries if he runs, but it is not at all likely that Mr. Coolidge will furnish such opposition. It is not likely even that he would lend himself to a move in the direction of securing Senator Gillett's withdrawal. If the latter wants the nomination, he will probably get it.

Brockton Daily Enterprise: Believing his prestige would give the State an influence in Congress it has not exerted since the days of Henry Cabot Lodge, the Boston Transcript nominates Calvin Coolidge as the successor of Senator Gillett, whose term expires in 1930. Whether the proposal will appeal to Mr. Coolidge is problematical, but if he should view it favorably, and this informal nomination be ratified by the Republican party and the people of Massachusetts, unquestionably Mr. Coolidge would be of great value to his State and country as a senator.

Waterbury American: Mr. Coolidge might perhaps be able to prevent the astute Senator David Ignatius Walsh from taking a colleague of his own political faith to Washington with him. If any other Republican in Massachusetts stands an equal chance his name does not instantly come to mind. It would seem to be a question of Mr. Coolidge's willingness, then; and that in turn may depend upon the readiness of his party organization to nominate him virtually by acclamation.

Conservation Doesn't Warrant a Holdup.

Losers, But Heroes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I take a moment to recall to your mind the story of that gallant band that just 13 years ago this Easter week struck their blow for Irish freedom? Such acts of pure idealism are not so common as to be buried under a wall of silence.

Their leader was Padraic Pearse, the gentle headmaster of St. Edna's School. Associated were Thomas MacDonagh, a professor at the college; Joseph Plunkett, the ardent young poet; Eamonn Ceannt, the young naturalist; Maj. McBride, and the others. Could nobler hearts have upheld a cause?

They struck their blow. They failed in their immediate objective. And they paid the supreme penalty. For nationalism is the most grievous of crimes—when you lose.

There is a singular appropriateness in the time of the year at which they made their effort—a time of death and resurrection.

ROBERT J. O'CONNOR.

The Late Gov. Toole of Montana.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The death of Joseph Kemp Toole, first Governor of Montana, in Helena, March 11, marked the passing of a pioneer who served the Nation and his State with signal distinction. A son of Kentucky, and descendant of early-day settlers, he turned his footsteps westward when 18 years of age to study law in the office of his brother at Helena. He was admitted to the bar in 1872 at the age of 21, and became interested in territorial politics forthwith. In 1884 he was sent to the Forty-ninth Congress, being reelected two years later. As a member of Congress he worked indefatigably for Montana's Statehood, accomplishing much toward the enactment of the State's enabling act.

In 1889 he was elected governor of the new State, retiring to resume the practice of law at the conclusion of his term in 1893. Seven years later, he again was nominated and elected governor. Gov. Toole guided a people from territoriality to Statehood. He was in no small measure responsible for the foundations upon which Montana reared her structure of State. He guided Montana successfully through the difficult days of newly-won autonomy. D. A. W.

Greater Automobile Speed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At a luncheon in honor of Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, present holder of the world's automobile speed record, it was asserted by automobile engineers that the day is not far distant when pleasure cars would be constructed to give top speeds of 120 miles an hour and that a network of highways would be constructed to make possible their use at such great speeds. Cars with top speeds of 120 miles an hour can easily be built now. The only reason they have not yet been put on the market is because there are no highways upon which they may be driven.

With increasing frequency one hears predictions of superspeed commercial automobiles. The general speed limit tendency is upward. As recently as five years ago speeds of 45 miles an hour were looked upon as dangerous, but the modern automobile, due to its more sturdy construction, its more flexible engine and its improved braking system, can be driven in safety on uncongested highways at 45 miles an hour or better. It probably will be found that with the construction of high-speed roads, from which truck and other sluggish traffic will be barred, speeds exceeding 45 miles an hour will be possible in safety, but it is not likely that cars of the future will be driven at 120 miles an hour or even 100.

Such speeds are for professional drivers. They demand the most intense nervous and physical application on the part of the driver. No matter how sturdy the construction of the car and no matter how efficient its braking system, no driver can get any pleasure out of speeds in excess of, say, 60 miles an hour maintained over any considerable period. High-speed traffic of the future undoubtedly will be carried through the air and not upon the highways where there are always other drivers to be considered and avoided.

THE HAMILTON HOME.

It is a matter of congratulation that steps are now being taken to do justice to the memory of Alexander Hamilton through the restoration of his old home in New York City, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. A campaign for funds for this purpose has started under the auspices of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society. The money for the purchase of the property was given anonymously five years ago, and the present movement is to make the needed repairs and to establish in the dwelling a collection of Hamilton relics and papers. The Library of Congress has agreed to permit the making of photostatic copies of all documents in its possession, and several original manuscripts will be available in the near future.

It is good that this work has been undertaken, because the first Secretary of the Treasury has not been given the consideration which is his due as one of the greatest constructive figures in the history of this country. We hear a great deal about Jefferson, and properly so, but Hamilton was quite as conspicuous in his way as was the author of the Declaration of Independence. They represented two schools of political thought, and the antagonisms of the times and the rivalries of later days have somehow tended to obscure the fame of Hamilton.

We could not have spared either of these great figures, and it is not too late to give attention to the one who has been least memorialized.

DELUSIONS, PAST AND PRESENT.

"The delusions of the past seem fond and foolish. The delusions of the present seem subtle and sane," writes Amos Repplier in the Atlantic Monthly. "That the seventh son of a seventh son should have presumed to claim strange powers of healing, and that erysipelas (which was called the 'Rose of Ireland,' like one of Moore's melodies) should have disappeared beneath his touch, was a manifest absurdity. So, too, was the dipping of smallpox patients in milk, and the wasteful swallowing of gold, which Chaucer held to be a sovereign cordial. An old Irish woman told me when I was a little girl that as a child she had been cured of mumps by being driven three times in a halter at daybreak through running water—a remedy which modern literary slang would call 'colorful.' But when a delegation suggested that the College of the City of New York should establish a course of peace psychology, we lent them serious attention, and when an educational expert urged giving dolls to children as a preventive of race suicide, we did our best to follow her line of reasoning."

Hardly.

The Foundling Will Be Noble If Told His Sire Was a Nobleman

By ROBERT QUILLEN

As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he.

A little old man named Taylor traveled through my territory some years ago, selling belts to cotton mills and oil mills.

Because cotton mill workers live in "company houses," all of one pattern and form a distinct social class that clings to the mill life generation after generation, this man Taylor felt a great sympathy for them and occasionally tried to encourage mill boys and fire them with ambition to climb.

One day he talked with a bright little fellow of twelve and told him how great he might become if he would apply himself and overcome his environment.

The boy listened eagerly at first but after a few minutes his face clouded and he shook his head.

"Aw" said he, "I'm just a mill boy."

Now hear the other side of the story.

A certain old couple of this region, being childless, decided to adopt an infant girl. Like most people who wish to become foster parents, they were content to be guided by appearance alone. And when they found a blue-eyed, curly-headed little girl whose parents were dead, they adopted her without delay and gave no anxious thought to the fact that her progenitors, for at least three generations, had been "mill people."

Children in the typical small-town mill village have a starved look that confesses malnutrition. But this little girl, being properly cared for, developed rosy cheeks and a sturdy body.

She grew up in an atmosphere of luxury; led her classes in school; won the respect and liking of everybody, and absorbed from her environment the caste standards that dominated the community.

She wasn't a snob. She merely recognized the distinctions made by her elders.

One day, while making plans for a party, she mentioned a girl who could not be invited.

"What's wrong with her?" asked the foster mother.

"Nothing, really," answered the girl. "She's in my class at school and she's bright enough. But she just doesn't belong to our crowd. She's a mill girl."

As a man thinketh, in his heart, so is he.

Here was a mill boy who lacked the heart to try because he had been taught to think himself an inferior.

Here was a mill girl, trained to think well of herself, who thought mill people inferior.

Many a man is a failure at 40 because he was shamed by poverty at 10.

If you would give your children a decent chance, never let them make the acquaintance of shame.

At any cost or sacrifice, teach them to hold up their heads.

A child shamed before its playmates is a child whipped by life.

Rotarians Discuss Ethics in Business

Better business ethics were discussed at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club of Washington yesterday in the Willard Hotel. A skit, with three characters, illustrated the bad methods of conducting business, after which a general discussion was held.

The program portion of the meeting was presided over by A. F. E. Horn, chairman of the business ethics committee of the club. A score of visiting Rotarians were introduced, and two new members welcomed.

Doctors Warn against undereating

Too little fat in the body makes us a prey to disease

EMINENT medical authorities are amazed and alarmed that so many girls and adults of both sexes are dieting themselves to a dangerous loss of weight.

A famous doctor says: "The most delicate parts of the body are always the ones to suffer first. A woman who is naturally sweet-tempered, good-natured, competent . . . becomes petulant, unreasonable, hard to get along with. A man who is thus starving himself becomes irritable and inefficient in the office and grouchy at home. . . . He begins to fall off in judgment and mental ability." This doctor goes on to show that nature stores up fat in the body as a reserve and that it is dangerous to destroy this reserve by dieting. Such an individual, he says, "becomes an easy prey for all manner of chronic ailments—kidney and liver diseases, and degeneration of the brain, spinal cord and nerves . . . typhoid fever, pneumonia, influenza and colds."

How much more intelligent it is to eat varied, nourishing foods, rather than eliminating the one ingredient that adds flavor and enjoyment to all other foods. Sweetness is the ideal flavor. What is so tasteful and refreshing as a salad of fresh grapefruit—sweetened with powdered sugar—and lettuce? Eat enough fruits and cereals. The best cooks are generous with sugar. BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Time, as you may have observed, brings about strange changes and works unbelievable metamorphoses. Here it was only a few months ago that we were decrying the talking picture as a serious hindrance to the speed of action and diversity of scene to which we had become inured upon the screen. It slowed things down—or is it up?—too much. Nothing happened while the characters of the story stopped to hold their conversations. It was just too bad.

It seems to me I, myself, indulged in a few of these lamentations, along with the rest. If my memory is right for once, I wish to take this opportunity to explain that I was crazy when I registered the kick. After having become accustomed to such excellent examples of the new art of the screen as "On Trial," "Interference," "In Old Arizona," "Hearts in Dixie," "The Broadway Melody" and others of the better products of the sound studios, I desire, further, to go on record as saying that nothing, it seems to me, is so wholly competent to delay proceedings on the silver sheet as a mature set of the old-style subtitles, wherein the interchange of remarks by the characters of the play must be indicated in type and descriptive passages so interpolated.

Perhaps I am alone in my notion, as usual, but while viewing the Metropolitan's splendid production of "The Divine Lady" last Saturday evening, the titles, well written and cogent though they were, annoyed me to death. They lingered interminably before the eye, I thought, and retarded the movement of the Barrington drama infinitely more than dialogue could have done.

This, of course, is due to the fact that dialogue is as quickened as any spoken passage is over one that has to be read, and registered in the consciousness instantaneously, while the subtitle must be left open to view long enough to permit the slowest reader in the audience to comprehend it. The necessary footages have been scientifically worked out by experts, with the net result that to the fastest reader in the audience—and I am not he—they often appear to be excessive.

Personally, I like the gabby gelstines.

The fear and trembling inspired by a recent visit to the Capital of Spyros Skouras, director of theaters for the Warner Bros.-First National combination, having subsided after the rank and file of the local Stanley-Crandall managerial organization made the discovery that the gentleman whose name has become just the simplified American word "Skooter" to those not so glib in their Greek did not wear horns or breathe brimstone from his nostrils, things do not look so bad for the spring trade around the Crandall circuit.

The visit of the "Big Boss" served no worse purpose than to pep the boys up a bit and launch them upon a new drive for business. To quicken the pulses of a few of the force, several changes in house assignments were made by John J. Payette, supervisor of the local theater chain.

Albert N. Waters, long manager of the Central, is now in charge of the Savoy; C. J. King was transferred from the managership of the York to the Central; Charles Clark was shifted from the Savoy to the Chevy Chase, and Paul Rusher from the Chevy Chase to the York. These changes became effective Easter Sunday.

This is published in the interest of "know your manager week!"

Needless to say, two of this week's film hits are to be held over for a second seven-day period, beginning Saturday—and after that, goodness how many more. "The Broadway Melody" has only fairly got started at the Columbia, and at the Metropolitan Corinne Griffith has attracted crowds that are no more than deserved by one of the most impressive vehicles this beauty of the celluloids has had.

There will be, nevertheless, four new down-town first runs to which those who have seen the others may devote their attention. The Earle will preserve the Crandall tradition of introducing all of the new stellar youngsters by presenting little Davey Lee in his first individual starring vehicle, "Sonny Boy," which has been acclaimed a knockout of juvenile precocity in New York and other discerning centers. Davey seems only to be following in the footsteps of Wesley "Freckles" Barry, Jackie Coogan and Baby Peggy—and I trust he will not resent that last crack! At the Fox, Lois Wilson and Conrad Nagel will further entrench themselves as among the best of the articulate shadow players, in the Warner Bros.' "Kid Gloves," and the Palace will offer the all-talking version of "The Dummy," in which the principal roles are played by Ruth Chatterton, ZaSu Pitts, Jack Okie and numerous others of note. The Little announces a Washington first-run of "Looping the Loop," concerning which I hope later to learn more than I now know.

In printing a word or two of enthusiastic approval of the temper and methods of John Irving Fisher, the gentleman currently mastering ceremonies at the Fox, this column evidently did no more than voice the sentiments of a large segment of the theater-going populace. I am led to this belief by the more or less confidential tip that despite the fact that his original engagement was for only a single week, Mr. Fisher is to be retained on F street for a second week beginning with the inauguration of the new bill on Saturday. A little applause, please.

Perfectly appalling, this power of the press!

Odd the foibles of a casting director. Although Walter Byron's family has been English for generations, he has played only German roles since coming to America and Hollywood. First he was an insipid Uhlan officer—if you can imagine such a thing!—in Vilma Banky's "The Awakening," and now he is a German prince in Gloria Swanson's "Queen Kelly."

I hope this time he'll score a hit like Kelly will!

Stepin Fetchit looks too dumb to be that funny in "Hearts in Dixie," but I doubt if there is a director in America who could supply him lines so completely the outgrowth of negro psychology and mental processes as those with which he convulses his audiences in this simple yet moving exposition of life during the old days in the South.

I agree with one of my erudite contemporaries that he does work with a bit of mush in his mouth, but not that he bears the slightest resemblance in form or manner to the late Bert Williams. Charlie Mack, white blackface comic, yes; but Bert, no.

By the way, this happens again on Saturday, under the new arrangement. Order your copy early!

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE STATUE IN THE PARK.

There stood a statue in a park
The life of one long dead to mark.
Upon his head the snow was thick,
A boy had struck him with a brick
And up and down his rugged form
Showed wear and tear of many a storm.
Wind-blown and dirty was his face.
Yet night and day he kept his place
And night and day he must remain
Out there to buffet sleet and rain.

And as we passed, a friend said: "Wait!
Behold the glory of the great!
Behold the penalty of fame!
Gaze now on Mr. What's-His-Name.
Who was, but long has ceased to be,
Warm flesh and blood like you and me.
Those icicles upon his chin
Are what he struggled hard to win.
That frozen look, that coat of grime
Are called 'the sweet rewards of time.

"On that extended arm in spring
The birds will perch and gayly sing.
The dust of years will settle there
And not a living soul will care.
Remembered? Yes, on holidays
When orators are spouting praise,
But not when rain is falling down
Or bitter snowstorms sweep the town
He stands a great gaunt question mark:
Why be a statue in a park?

"Who envies him his lofty place
His snow-crowned head and cold bruised face?
Better it is to be alive
Against the world's long odds to strive,
To love and laugh and shed our tears
And go on dreaming down the years
Than be a thing of bronze or stone
Left out there in the storms alone.
Better on ventures to embark
Than be the statue in the park."

it's time to change your Oil

Warm weather brings the need for heavier oil and fresh new greases all 'round. Now is the time to change.

Before you start the spring season be sure your motor is carefully flushed and refilled with fresh "Standard" Motor Oil—gears, transmission, differential, springs, grease cups—all friction spots should be carefully lubricated with "Standard" lubricants.

You will be well rewarded with a sweet-running, perfectly functioning motor; one that pulls better, and silently, on the straight-away, up the twisting hill roads or on the back byways.

Clip the list below, if you grease your own car, or use it as a handy reference at your dealer's. The Return Of OLD KING BRADY

CHAPTER V.

Young King Brady Shadows a Shadow.

In the fifth chapter Young King Brady shadows a young Italian who was following him. They are entrapped in an underground passageway, and become quite friendly in their mutual attempt to dig their way out of the trap.

IT is no easy matter to shadow a crook who is shadowing you at the same time, but that was Young Kid Brady's task.

Harry had decided to turn the tables on the young Italian. He walked rapidly north on Clark street and turned into an alley without looking back. It was vital that the other man should lose him.

Upstairs in this block was a costumer whom the Bradys employed occasionally, and it was into this building Harry dodged and waited for his man to come on. He came! Harry dashed upstairs and made a hurried disguise, putting on a black wig and mustache to resemble an Italian. He then descended to the alley and walked right past the young spy.

After waiting an hour the young man entered the building. In a moment he reappeared and walked north on Clark street. Harry followed him down a dark alley, resolving not to lose him.

On the left was a long brick building occupied as a molding mill, which was running full blast. On the left was a vacant lot with one old dwelling house, occupied by a junk dealer. Harry hung around, hoping his man would reappear, but he did not. Just as he was leaving a man turned into the alley and entered the junk dealer's shop. It was Riffaldi!

"Well, there you are!" muttered Harry. He walked back to the junk shop and looked in. No one was in sight. A trapdoor in the floor stood raised. Harry stole up and looked down, seeing a ladder of considerable length inclosure of the same size as the trapdoor.

"Some underground hiding-place," thought Harry. "Here is my chance to follow this thing up, although I shall surely run into the junk dealer if I try it. Guess I had better skin out." He was not an instant too soon. Two men appeared and came out on the sidewalk. They locked the door and went away.

Harry had decided that the place was a hold-out used by some gang of crooks and that the ladder behind the trapdoor was a way into it. "It won't hurt to investigate. Now that I have located Riffaldi it is up to me to find out where he has gone."

He resolved to tackle the junk shop at any risk, and opened the door with his skeleton keys. He lost no time in raising the trapdoor and starting down the ladder. He found a bricked-up passage leading toward the tannery. He got out his flashlight and pushed forward. A few feet ahead was a pit, across which was a plank. Harry had just started over this when the young man he had been shadowing came suddenly from the other direction. Both stopped short.

Harry backed off the plank. "If Riffaldi is behind him I shall have to shoot, but I may be able to bluff it out with one," he thought.

"Hello," said Young King Brady. "What are you doing here?"

Up Against an Earthquake.

Before he could reply there was a terrific explosion. The ground seemed to come up to meet him as Young King Brady was thrown against the wall on his right. The other wall collapsed, his flashlight was knocked out of his hand, and he was standing in utter darkness, wondering what it all meant.

He found his flashlight and advancing to the mouth of the well saw that the sides had caved in and the plank had fallen. The young man lay on top of the bricks, about 10 feet down from the level on which Harry was standing.

"Try to get up!" called Harry. "Are you hurt?"

"I'm lame and sore all over," he growled as he rose. "What happened?"

"Something must have exploded. Were you fellows making bombs in there?"

"Of course not. Are you going to help me out?" he demanded.

"There is only one way. Get the plank out and pass it up to me, so I can hold it while you crawl out." Which he did with some little difficulty.

They stood looking at each other. "Well," said Harry at length, "I guess there is no fight on between us. What we want is to get out of this."

"That's about the size of it."

Harry let the young man go first and they started in the direction of the junk shop. The passage was blocked entirely.

They turned back and got hold of the plank; with some difficulty they managed to place it over the pit. Harry ventured across first, the young man followed. Before they had advanced 5 feet beyond the bend they ran into another complete blockade.

Suddenly Harry turned to the young man. "What is your name?" he demanded.

"George. What's yours?"

"Harry will do."

"Are you a detective?"

"Frankly, I am," he replied thinking a little confidence might serve him. "I am working on a case and I saw a man connected with it go in the junk shop. I went in after him and opened the trapdoor and I let myself down."

"Is the man you are after connected with a circus?"

"Yes. You know who I mean, I guess. I was shadowing him when I met you."

"I see. I hear the circus has been raided by the Bradys and Rashleigh arrested." George was silent for a minute and then wanted to know what Riffaldi was wanted for.

"Bank robbery at Spruce Ridge," replied Harry coolly.

"Say, there must be some mistake about that. How much did they get away with?"

"Sixty thousand dollars."

"Gee! I wish I had known it sooner. But there's no love lost between me and Riffaldi. I've taken a kind of liking to you—anyway you've saved my life. I should have died of the horrors, if I had been caught in this old trap alone."

"We are wasting too much time talking, George. Let's get busy and see of we can't work out of this."

No more was said and the two went to work at the pile of rubbish in the dark, using the flashlight sparingly. Hours passed. They worked and rested, and finally slept from sheer fatigue.

Harry woke up first and went to work again. He soon removed the last brick needed to allow him to pass through. About 10 feet further he came against the pipe with a ladder in it. He climbed up and stood listening, but on hearing a noise descended and hurried back along the passage. Here he wakened George.

Treasure Hunting.

"I've got a proposition to make to you, Harry," said George.

"All right," replied Young King Brady, "let it come."

"Now, listen. I knew nothing of this bank robbery until you told me. I hate Riffaldi and am glad to get square with him. The other night I overheard a conversation between him and another party. Raffaldi was evidently holding out money which belonged to the other man. It seems to me that mebbe he has hidden the bank money somewhere. If you are game we'll bust ahead and see what we can find."

"I'm with you," replied Harry.

They pushed on to the ladder in the pipe. George ascended and stood listening. All was quiet. He pushed up the trap door, which yielded to a secret spring.

"Hist! Come on!" he breathed. "They are all asleep. Don't make a sound." Harry noiselessly climbed the ladder.

They hurried through the room and into a large open cellar. In one corner was a big wooden cover, which they pulled up. Harry flashed his light down into the hole, which was about 4 feet across and 20 feet deep.

"I have an idea that the money is buried down there," said George. "How can we get down?"

"That's the problem. You have no idea where he keeps the ladder?"

"No. Can't you think of some other way, Harry?"

They found an old piece of rope which Harry thought was long enough to reach to the bottom of the pit. By standing on George's shoulder Young King Brady was able to tie it to a beam overhead.

Harry slid down the rope. George followed him.

"This ground has been recently dug up; I guess we are right in it, George," said Young King Brady.

Kneeling down, Harry went to work with his hands.

Another thrilling chapter in this serial appears tomorrow. Don't miss it.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

LEPROSY AND CONTAGION.

IN a study of leprosy made by Drs. Hopkins and Denny it was proved that the disease can be spread by a close contact or association, lasting for a period of about six years.

These gentlemen, as the result of a study of 718 lepers, came to the conclusion that leprosy in this day and among this people is a mild disease. The first proof that they supplied is that after a man has been in close contact with a leper for several years he contracts the disease, but that none of the effects of the disease show themselves for about six years. This period in which nothing tangible happens is called the incubation period.

Leprosy is very slightly contagious in any part of the country. There are other diseases that are far more serious to those who are affected. And, finally, it can, and will, be brought under control by the health authorities.

Drs. Hopkins and Denny report on their observations of 718 lepers gathered together from all parts of the country and given the best curative care, while in the United States Hospital at Carville, La. As to the contagiouaness of leprosy, they concluded: "Leprosy is considered a disease transmitted through prolonged and intimate contact."

It is rarely spread to those who work with a leper. In fact, it has been said that Father Damen was the only person who ever contracted leprosy from working in a leper colony. If this is true, how trivial is the danger to the man who makes nothing except a street or a workshop contact with a leper.

Drs. Hopkins and Denny studied the complete family and home contacts of 100 lepers. In the families of 64 no case of leprosy developed except the first case. In the families of the remaining 36 there developed 83 cases of leprosy among the parents, brothers and sisters, and a few cases among cousins.

Inheritance of a sort was one factor in the infection of these 83 additional cases. The close association in the family circle was another factor. It seems, therefore, that the disease is contagious, but only mildly so. The study indicated that close association, lasting something like six years, was necessary to contract the disease. Plainly, it is not highly contagious.

YOU UNDERSTOOD CORRECTLY.

K. A. D. writes: Some time ago I read an article by a physician in one of the national weeklies wherein he stated that our general physical well-being and resistance to disease depended in large measure on the alkalinity of the blood.

I gathered from his article that the normal blood condition is slightly alkaline, and that when this is reduced so as to approach neutrality, or even acidity, conditions are favorable for infections of most kinds.

Will you kindly advise me if I have the correct understanding, and, if so, outline the diet that tends to maintain this desired alkalinity.

REPLY.

Such an article appeared. It was given exceptional publicity. You understood the article correctly.

The diet advised was one consisting largely of fruit and milk.

NO CAUSE FOR WORRY.

Miss I. F. writes: I am engaged to be married to a young man perfectly normal in every way, but his parents are deaf. They were not born that way. Scarlet fever at the age of 6 caused it in his father and his mother had brain fever when she was 4 years old. Is it possible that our children, or theirs in the future, could inherit it?

REPLY.

Acquired deafness is not inheritable. A father deaf from scarlet fever and a mother deaf from meningitis will not beget deaf children. That the young man is not deaf is proof of that.

His children by a mother with normal hearing will have efficient ears.

THE same group of engineers and scientists who perfected the hermetically sealed mechanism of the General Electric Refrigerator, now have designed and produced an all-steel refrigerator cabinet—the first all-steel refrigerator ever built!

It is a small-family model—entirely of steel—strong and durable as a safe. It has no wood in it. It cannot warp. No cold can seep out, no heat can creep in.

Quantity production and the employment of the most efficient manufacturing methods have made possible this very low price—$215, at the factory. Never before has any single refrigerator been built in such great quantities . . . never before has such high quality been available at such a low price.

You will readily understand why this has been called "the refrigerator of the future" when you examine it yourself and compare it carefully with all others. Be sure to come in and see it. This, or any model, may be purchased on easy payments.

Listen in on the General Electric Hour, broadcast every Saturday evening, 9 to 10 Eastern Standard Time, over N. B. C. network of forty-two stations.

Harp Made Popular by Broadcast

Perfect Radio Reception Due to Arduous Work. Frequencies Controlled by Infinitely Delicate Measurement of Time.

Radio reception of harp music is so perfect that Carlos Salzedo, the famous harpist, gives radio full credit for the present revival of interest in the oldest and most classical of instruments, but perfect radio reception is due only to long and arduous work, according to Stefano di Stefano, solo harpist, well known to the radio audience.

Mr. di Stefano explained that the harp in the very beginning of broadcasting was considered one of the instruments most poorly suited for the radio. But careful experiments ascertained the proper distance the instrument should be from the microphone and the exact emphasis that should be given each note to make perfect reception possible. Almost all the notes can not be given in their full strength and even now the lower octaves are taboo for the microphone, he said.

Nevertheless, the broadcasting has been so greatly improved that every harp program broadcast is said to bring in congratulatory letters asking for more.

How radio engineers have been able to measure time with an accuracy to within one part in a hundred million, and how these methods were applied to the control of broadcast and other frequencies was explained at a meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers in New York last night.

A brief description of the way that the Bureau of Standards checks piezo oscillators sent to it by broadcasting stations for test was given by El Hall, of the Bureau of Standards. A 2-day temperature test is provided, frequency measurements then being made through a method developed by the bureau, Mr. Hall explained.

Alfred L. Loomis, who presented a paper on the precision measurement of time, linked up the Royal Observatories of Greenwich and Edinburgh, England, with his own clocks through special radio receiving sets tuned to the leading observatories of the world in a huge and unique network for checking time reports. Seven chronometers have been under comparison for several years in the Loomis Laboratory in Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and a standard of frequency consistent to better than one part in 31,000,000 has been obtained. This is equivalent to a second's variation in a year's time.

As an illustration of the growing demands for increased accuracy imposed upon engineers by the radio art, W. A. Marrison, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, New York, described a new frequency standard of very high precision. All of the known factors that could affect the frequency to be maintained by as much as one part in a hundred million have been investigated and controlled in some manner or other.

A new Radiola combination for A-C electric operation was announced yesterday by J. L. Ray, vice president and general sales manager of the Radio Corporation of America.

The new receiver, which is designated Radiola 33, is of the console type, and stands at a height convenient for tuning from either a sitting or standing position. Tuning is accomplished by a single knob; the translucent scale of the selector dial is illuminated from the inside when the set is in operation. A volume control regulates the power output of the receiver, and another switch turns the power on and off. Skillfully painted panels which reproduce the grain of African mahogany, retain the visual appeal of wood with the inherent strength of metallic construction in this receiver.

The RCA tuned radio-frequency circuit, comprising three stages of radio-frequency amplification, detector, and two stages of audio-frequency amplification, is employed in Radiola 33. It utilizes four A-C Radiotrons UX-226, one UX-227, and a UX-171-A power amplifier, as well as a UX-280 rectifier for supplying plate voltages.

The new loudspeaker 100-B, which is of the improved magnetic type, matches Radiola 33 in design and fits into a border groove on top of the receiver.

What Today Means to You

April 4.

ARIES.

IF April 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 9:45 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., and from 4 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.; the only danger period is from 1:1[illegible] p. m. to 3 p. m.

Exploitation and development of new ideas and original systems will be favored by today's astrological influences. There will be sensed dissatisfaction with the "old-worn" and urge to discover "fresh fields and pastures new."

Children born today will have wills of their own, and will allow nothing to interfere with their ambitions. They will be resentful of outside interference, very difficult to manage, selfish and self-centered. The signs, however, indicate that, in a material way, they will be quite successful.

You are painstaking and industrious in all you undertake, yet, nevertheless, are destined to experience the extremes of good and bad luck. You possess a keen desire for speculation and are never happier than when taking a chance, although Dame Fortune has demonstrated to you the difficulty of scoring along these lines. If you could overcome this tendency, and devote all your time and talents to legitimate and straightforward work, your reward would be commensurate with the effort made.

You often, too, reach a certain point in some definite plan or career and just when everyone thinks you are going over the top, you beat a precipitate retreat, and lose the results that would easily have been yours with just a trifle more persistence.

Your disposition is deeply affectionate, yet your lack of demonstrativeness is so much in evidence that you are looked upon as cold and unemotional. You possess a very vivid imagination, and could easily if you so desired, acquire some settled position in the realm of art.

Your memory is very retentive, and you store up knowledge of all descriptions in your mind. You, too, are very loyal—quixotically so—to kith and kin, and you are disposed to regulate your life by tradition and custom.

Successful people born April 4:
Cadwallader D. Colden, lawyer.
Dorothea L. Dix, philanthropist.
Linus Yale, jr., lock inventor.
Thomas Kingsford, manufacturer.
Lawrence Barrett, actor.
Gustav Kobbe, author and journalist.

Announcer Will Sing on Air Tonight

Cross Will Be Soloist Over WRC — Birthday Program to Have Special Musical Numbers—Jazz Regiment on WMAL.

A special birthday radio broadcast will celebrate the first anniversary of the Halsey-Stuart program at 10 o'clock tonight from WRC. This program began as an experiment, but has now become one of the recognized features of the air. As its spokesman, the company selected the "Old Counselor," who has become well known as a radio character. He answers questions from the Nation-wide radio audience pertaining to sound investment. He makes no recommendations as to specific securities, confining himself to the fundamentals of investment.

A special musical program of outstanding numbers has been selected and will be played by the instrumental ensemble heard regularly in this hour.

Another Midweek Hymn-Sing, sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches, will be broadcast at 7 o'clock. Rhoda Arnold, soprano, and Arthur Billings Hunt, barytone, will be soloists.

An original adaption of Saint-Saens' "The Swan" will be presented by the Selberling Singers male quartet at 9 o'clock from WRC. The quartet will also repeat a special vocal version of Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in G Minor." Another Frank Black transcription, this time for the Singing Violins, will be heard in "Lover, Come Back To Me," from "The New Moon."

Milton J. Cross, NBC announcer, will be heard as soloist in an all-classical program by the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau at 10:30 o'clock tonight. Appearing with Mr. Cross will be Douglas Stanbury, tenor whom Cross has frequently introduced with Roxy's Gang, and Maria Gambarelli, well known as "Gamby," formerly of the same theatrical group. The National Concert Orchestra, under Cesare Sodero, will be heard as usual.

The Slumber Music selections follow: Prelude from "L'Arlesienne," Bizet; suite, "Fo Ling and Ming Toy," Friml; "Valse Triste," Sibelius; selection from "Naughty Marietta," Herbert; "Louis XIII," Ghys; "Kamennoi - Ostrow," Rubinstein, and "Le Chant du Souvenir," Fillippucci.

A new dance orchestra conducted by Ben Bernie will inaugurate a series of radio programs through WJZ, WBAL and associated radio stations at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

WMAL will present members of the "Jazz Regiment" company from their studios at 7:30 o'clock tonight. The half hour will be devoted to popular songs and groups of negro spirituals.

The artists who will offer their vocal and instrumental wares before the microphone will be Gertrude Saunders, Juanita Stinnette, Happie Chappelle, John Mason, "Dusty" Fletcher, Andrew Tribble, Jessie Cryer and Sammy Paige. These performers will be augmented by the Sewanee Four, a well known quartet.

Injinsky's "Orgies of the Spirits," from the Oriental Suite, "Noure et Anitra," will be offered by the Sonora Symphony Orchestra at 9:30 o'clock. Oliver Smith, American tenor, is the guest artist on this program. His offerings will include Massenet's "Manon La Reve" and the Spanish Serenade "Lolita," by Buzzi-Peccia. The Sonora Male Trio will be heard in "Roses of Yesterday" and "When Love Comes Stealing."

"Broadway at Night" is the feature of the program that the Columbians will present at 10 o'clock tonight. This number, specially arranged by Freddie Rich, is a modernistic picture of Broadway being rocked to sleep. It is in the form of a lullaby, and includes the noises, in rhythmic form, of Broadway very late at night.

Mrs. Ida Bailey Allen will discuss the salad plants, all leafy vegetables and fruits in her talk from WMAL at 10 o'clock this morning, and explain their use.

"Musical Echoes From Broadway" and the Topaz Ensemble are other morning features.

Robert Brister, who will have the leading part in the National Theater Players' presentation of "The Bad Man" next week, will be heard from WOL in the fourth of a series of programs presenting the players tonight at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Brister will present "One Man's Woman," a story in song and prose, which happens to be one of the many musical monologues made famous by Bramsy Williams, the old English headliner.

During the Carlton dinner music, Robert Stickney and W. J. Weber will play a two-piano concerto, Felix Mendelssohn's "Concerto in G Minor." The second movement of Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony" will be presented also during this program. It is the plan to present several full symphonies during this period. Last week the first movement of the "Fifth Symphony" was played. The overture to Balfe's "The Bohemian Girl" and selections from "High Jinks" will round out the program. There will be an interruption at 7:11 o'clock for "Amos 'n' Andy."

WJSV will go on the air at 6:30 o'clock in a civic classified program, followed by the Children's Half Hour. The Columbia Trio is scheduled for 9:30 o'clock.

Pay Roll Guard Finds Money Over Wide Area

Hutchinson, Kans., April 3 (U.P.).—Picking up $10,000 in silver and gold strewn over an area of 75 yards was the experience of William Carr, former guard for the pay roll agent located in the Tampico oil fields of Mexico.

The money, wages for oil workers, was dropped by airplane from sacks in absence of a landing field. One day when the plane flew higher than usual, three sacks hit the ground, burst open, and scattered their golden contents over the surrounding area. Only $94 was missing when the guard had finished picking up the money.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, April 3, 1929.

IT is interesting to note, in viewing a great many collections one after another, how certain ideas will appear simultaneously in a great many collections. And we do not refer here to the inferior houses, which might be suspected of spying on their larger rivals, but houses of such standing that no duplicity could be considered.

Take, for example, the matter of back decolletage in evening gowns.

Hardly anywhere at the present time will you see an evening gown cut very low in the front. In many cases the dress comes nearly to the throat in front—but the decolletage in the back is frequently as deep as human anatomy will permit.

Yet even here there is an interesting degree of variation. Lenief, Jenny and Lanvin, among others, use a back decolletage which is rather wide as well as deep. Lucille, on the other hand, uses a cut perhaps even a shade deeper, if that is possible—but in a very narrow "V."

So, you see, you can take your choice. But we would like to point out that before wearing one of the gowns, which exposes the whole back, you had better study that part of your anatomy with a cold and critical eye—for we have noticed, even among the loveliest Paris mannequins, many a back that might better have modestly hidden its shoulder blades 'neath a more discreet and narrow decolletage!

• • • •

Worrying by Proxy.

Why should you worry your already full mind with things that we can worry out for you? The problem of little sister's new spring wardrobe, for instance! We designed a whole new one for wee mamzelle, practical, above all, but chic and dainty, too—and then we sat down and made you an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make all the garments!

See, all you have to do is to send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet, select what you like and leave the rest, and there you are! But, sh-h-h-h-h, we know you won't leave any!

Beautiful Eyebrows!

Don't just leave the forming of your eyebrows to Chance—sometimes she doesn't pay much attention! Have a small eyebrow brush on your dresser, and never miss an opportunity to brush them firmly in the way you want them to go—with the brush dipped in cold water. Especially after powdering, the last touch, you know—brush your eyebrows. This will strengthen and develop them, as well as train them into a pleasing arch—and your tweezers do the rest.

• • • •

Undecided coloring—how many of us have it! It just isn't blonde, brunette, redhead or anything. But that is not a fault—care in the colors you wear can make you a real beauty. Just select soft, rich shades; choose pastel chiffons for evening in place of glittering lames and beads; favor softness and depth in everything you wear and avoid all that glitters. Just try it!

• • • •

How little it takes to make the difference between plainness and chic! As an example, just take the bow away from the Cheruit gown I sketched for you today, and what have you? Yet it takes the Paris Couture to think of—the bow! It is this little chic touch, plus excellent workmanship, that distinguishes a real gown from just a dress.

• • • •

What a struggle poor rayon has had!—what's good enough for my father is g. e. f. me. Wonder if all synthetic materials—and foods—will have such a struggle—or has the humble and beautiful rayon broken the way? Not an artificial silk—the mere mention of such a thing causes it to turn up its chemical nose and give a synthetic sniff! Rayon didn't ever try to be anything it wasn't—it didn't have to—it was sufficient unto itself in beauty, wearability and everything else that a fabric should be.

The Fashion Letter appears weekly in The Washington Post on Sundays. Look for it!

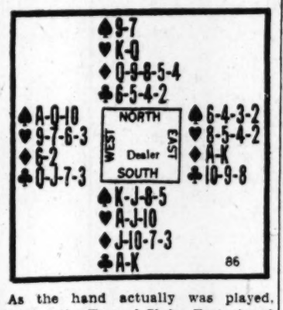
WORK ON BRIDGE

Mr. Work has prepared a booklet giving detailed information concerning the correct way to play Progressive Auction Bridge. This booklet will be sent to all readers without charge. Mr. Work will also answer without charge any Bridge questions. Requests must be accompanied by an addressed, stamped, return envelope, and addressed to Mr. Milton C. Work care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S hand was played in a Contract Bridge game, South the Declarer, the contract three No Trumps; in Auction South would have been the Declarer playing at one No Trump. In Contract South would bid two No Trumps and North three; in Auction South would bid one No Trump and there would be no other bid.



As the hand actually was played, West led the Trey of Clubs, East played the Eight, South won and led a Diamond. East won the Diamond and returned his partner's Club, leading the Ten. South won the trick; West played the Seven. Declarer's only chance was to establish the Diamonds. This he did and East then led his last Club. West took this and another Club trick and then led the Ace of Spades, putting the Declarer one down.

Could Declarer's adversaries have done any better?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The first two tricks were quite correct; also East's return of the Club Ten on the third trick; but when West had seen East play the Eight and then the Ten of Clubs, and Closed Hand the Ace and King, he could mark the Nine of Clubs in East's hand (with the Ten in his hand, East would not have played the Eight on the first round unless he had had the Nine). So West should have played the Jack, not the Seven, on East's Ten, so as to be able to leave the third Club lead in East's hand and force him to lead a Spade toward West's double tenace and up to the weakness in Dummy. The success of this scheme depended upon East's ability to win another Diamond, but that seemed almost sure.

When East won the second round of Diamonds he could appreciate from West's play on the second Club trick that West desired a lead of Spades (of course because he had Ace-Queen); he might hold a double ten-ace and desire two Spade leads. Consequently, East should have led a Spade to trick 5 which West would win, returning the Seven of Clubs to put East in a second time. East then would lead a second Spade, and East and West would make three Spades, two Diamonds and two Clubs, setting the Declarer for three tricks.

III. LAKE TITICACA

IN the midst of the Andes lies a famous lake known as "Titicaca." Lake Titicaca is the highest lake which is used by steamships. It lies between Peru and Bolivia, and is more than two miles above sea level.

Bolivian native with a baby tapir.

On the waters of this lake—which has an area of 3,261 square miles—there are steamships weighing a thousand tons apiece. They were built in Scotland, and were sent across the ocean. From the seaport they were carried in pieces up the mountains on the backs of mules, being put together at the lake shore.

Most of the people living around Titicaca are Indians, and they have kept some of their old customs. One such custom is the use of reed boats, which may interest us as much as the steamers.

The Indian boat is formed from bundles of reeds. Two large bundles are fastened together to make the bottom, and the sides are composed of small packages of reeds. It is a sort of raft, but there is a sail as well if we may give the name to a "sheet" of woven reeds.

These crude boats are used for journeys on the lake, Indans sometimes traveling more than a hundred miles by the aid of their device. All goes well until the reeds become water-soaked. When that happens, the boat is hauled ashore for drying.

Among the wild animals of the lake region is the tapir, a creature which is related to both the horse and the rhino, but which does not look very much like either. Tapirs may be called "cute" when they are young, but when they gain their full size they are hardly pleasant to the eyes.

Tapirs are gentle enough and do not form a danger to travelers, but the wild hogs or "boars" of Bolivian forests are hard customers if you are in the way when they charge.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD.

HAVE you told us yet what type of man you want to marry? If not here is another invitation. We want to know whether he is to be the "life of the party;" the "deep-and-dangerous" silent type; the go-getter or the honest plugger; the ladies' man or the woman hater; the mighty oak, or the tender weakling; the "good provider," or the merry spendthrift; the self-made man, or the god-made dreamer. They all have their points, but for good old-fashioned, everyday married life which do you intend to choose. Let's know, and be sure and tell whether he must have looks, money, family or what.

Read Dora's ideas, and sit right down and tell us yours. Dora is 20, and apparently not yet in love. Perhaps you have already found your heart's desire. Is he besides that the man your reason would tell you to choose? Or have you never used your reason on this vital subject? Read Dora's letter and mail yours!

Dear Miss McDonald: From the time that I have been able to think clearly for myself I have set firmly in my mind many ideals, which I have succeeded in living up to. I hope to marry—I want a man, who above all has some sense of a need of God. (You know most men don't think they have very much need of God.)

Regardless of anything else, I want a man who does not drink. You may ask why? A drink isn't any harm. Perhaps not. But since the time I was a child I have noticed the effects of drink on homes. I know of no fault, be what it may, that can come within reach of the havoc caused by drink. At the age of 20 I see families raising children by a drunken man that is not worthy of the name of father. A man that spends all his money and all other that he can get his hands on for drink. A man that can not support one child much less the family of six or eight that he has; he needs his money for drink—and he always has six children.

In your article of "Two Husbands," Madeline says don't marry a man that is a saint. That's nothing new. No man or woman is a saint, but there are a lot of decent men in this world that are regular he-men and I want one of those men, or none. She says smoking, drinking, cursing and swearing, not attending church are men's habits and you must expect them. Why? may I ask. The code for women is—do not drink, do not smoke, do not curse or swear, attend church regularly, be clean—but a man's code is—do as you please. God created man and woman equal; only man has made them unequal. Men have been telling us what to do long enough, I think. I do not smoke. Why? Because I'm not supposed to—because it doesn't look nice? I should say not. I do not smoke because I do not want to. But should I ever want to, believe me I shall.

I don't want a saint, but I don't want a man as described. As for religion, if a man has no respect for God, how can a woman expect him to respect her? I can't see how, myself.

I am not looking for an idealist, or a saint, but for a man that respects the same things in life that I do, no more or less. Call me what you will. I say what I have said from experience, not from idealism.

And now to close may I say that my ideas may be all wrong, but they are the ones I have and am going to keep. Perhaps not any of you that are willing for a man to drink, have experienced the terrible result of drink in your family, or you would never, never say, "marry a man that drinks."

ADVANCE IS HALTED IN NERVOUS MARKET

Express Shares Remain Buoyant While Remainder of List Turns Weak.

CALL MONEY 10 PER CENT

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—The stock market has grown so nervous of late, what with the violence of recent price movements and the ensuing controversies over credit, that a little bad news mixed with the good today was sufficient to check a forward trend of considerable proportions and turn the general market reactionary.

The bad news was the opinion of Attorney General Mitchell that the Federal Oil Conservation Board had no authority to grant the American Petroleum Institute immunity under the Sherman antitrust law in its crude production control plan. Oil shares were heavy from the start on rumors that such an opinion was forthcoming, but when it was officially announced around midday the whole list became unsettled.

This unnerving development came on top of rumors that a 6 per cent rediscount rate may be instituted by the New York Federal Reserve Bank tomorrow. The rumor gained some credence as powerful interests in New York banking circles are known to favor it, and the Federal Reserve Board and the twelve governors of the Reserve banks were again in session in Washington.

Not Discussed, Say Reports.

Unofficial reports from the Capital, however, were to the effect that rediscount rates were not discussed.

Call money renewed at 10 per cent, and threatened to go higher around midday, when loans estimated at about $35,000,000 were called, but funds came into the market in some volume later and the rate dropped to 8 per cent just before the close. The disquieting status of credit against security collateral, however, was indicated in the fact that time loans, even up to six months, commanded a rate of 9 per cent, the highest in many years.

The steel trade reviews were prominent in the day's quota of good news. Iron Age composite prices for both pig iron and finished steel both showed gains over the previous week, and the publication reported that "following a record-breaking quarter, iron and steel production shows no sign of declining." Another substantial gain in car loadings was reported, and F. W. Dodge Corporation reported a picking up of building contracts in the States east of the Rockies. Crude oil production declined markedly last week, according to the American Petroleum Institute's estimate.

Trading Somewhat Hesitant.

Trading was again somewhat hesitant, with but 3,703,450 shares changing hands, a little less than yesterday's turnover. As measured by the Associated Press price indices, yesterday's gains were generally more than cancelled.

Express shares were buoyant on the announcement that Adams had purchased the American Express holdings in American Railway Express. This gives Adams 75 per cent of the Railway Express stock. American Express is left with its travelers' check business and large cash holdings. Adams and American Express each jumped 50 points, to record prices, but Adams later lost half its gain. American Railway sold up about 8 points.

During the early trading gains of 2 to 3 points were recorded by such shares as Radio, United States Steel, Chrysler, General Motors and General Electric, but these gains were more than lost. Wright Aero sold up 8 points, only to drop 9½. Recent weakness of Montgomery Ward is attributed to the liquidation of the Merseles holdings.

Oils Suffer Losses.

Among the oils, Houston, Indian Refining, American Republics, Marland, Phillips, Texas Corp. and Standards of California, New Jersey and New York closed with losses of 2 to 5 points. Coppers were again weak, Anaconda and Greene Cananea losing about 4 and 6 points, respectively. International Telephone dropped 10 points, and closed with a net loss of nearly 7.

Independent Steels showed marked resistance to the selling movement, on the strength of the steel trade reviews. Bethlehem sold up nearly 5 points, and closed with a gain of 1½. Ludlum and Superior Steels made moderate gains, the latter on reports that current earnings are running at the annual rate of $12 per share. Vanadium made a 4-point gain, but lost it.

Commodities sold off sharply. Wheat and corn futures lost from -½ to 2 cents a bushel on lower Liverpool cables. Cotton closed from $1 to $1.50 a bale lower on bearish weather and boll weevil reports. Raw sugar dropped 1-16 of a cent to the lowest level since 1922, and crude rubber futures again broke nearly 1 cent.

Foreign exchanges were easy, sterling holding barely steady and the Canadian dollar increasing its discount to about 4-5 of a cent.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Cotton was lower today under selling which seemed to be inspired by relatively easy cables, a favorable view of the weather news and the official report on boll weevil survival. The latter apparently was a disappointment to recent buyers. The lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when May sold at 20.30, the new October contract at 19.71 and December at 19.78. Ongoing prices were at these figures.

The report on boll weevil indicated that more weevil than last year had survived the winter per ton of moss in Texas and South Carolina but that fewer had survived in Georgia and Alabama, and in Louisiana on the average. Figures for Georgia and Alabama, particularly, seemed to be out of line with expectations of recent buyers, while the survival reported in Texas came in for some bullish comment.

Business was comparatively quiet during the morning when traders were waiting for the report, but there were spurts of activity after its publication. Selling was attributed to Wall street local operators, commission houses and the South.

Private cables reported hedge selling and liquidation of near months in Liverpool but said the continent was buying distant positions.

MOST BONDS REMAIN RELATIVELY STEADY

FOREIGN GROUP IS DULL

New York, April 3 (A.P.).—Prices in the bond market today held relatively steady in the face of the irregular trend in stocks and 9 per cent time money rate for six months maturities—the highest charge in years. First grade rails were the only group to experience any concerted selling.

The Associated Press combined averages for 40 bonds were behind a plus sign for the day, but were nearly a point under the level of a month ago, and 4.72 points under the average for a year ago. Trading was on a somewhat broader scale, sales totaling $9,031,000.

Bankers are reported holding back several bond financing programs for more favorable money conditions, although a few municipalities are being forced into the market. In March municipalities and States placed $102,537,592 long-term loans, compared to $132,897,209 in March, 1928. The total for the first quarter of the year was $364,603,876, the smallest for the first quarterly period of any year since 1923.

Two New Jersey cities are marketing issues tomorrow—Elizabeth, $1,104,000 gold 4½ per cent bonds at prices to yield from 5.25 to 4.35 per cent, and North Bergen $2,430,000 5¾ and 6 per cent gold bonds, priced to yield 5 per cent.

The convertibles, with the exception of Anaconda Copper 7s, International Telephone 4½s and Commercial Investment Trust 5½s, were actively traded in around yesterday's closing prices. Anaconda 7s on a small turnover, dropped more than 5 points, and Commercial Investment Trust 5½s slumped more than a point to a new low at 97, but reduced the loss to a fraction at the close. International Telephone 4½s fluctuated over a 3-point price range and finished at 126, down nearly 2 points.

Oils were firm in the face of Attorney General Mitchell's adverse opinion on the petroleum executives' curtailment program. Colon 6s improved fractionally. In the industrials, Tennessee Copper & Chemical 6s B sagged to a new low.

Utilities were firm, with the feature a 1½-point rise by Western Union to 6½s.

St. Paul adjustment 5s, Pennsylvania Gold 4¾s and New York Central refunding 5s were weak spots of the generally lower rails. Tractions sagged on reports that New York City planned to resort to recapture as a solution to its transit problem.

United States Government securities continued their improvement. Liberty first 4¼s and Treasury 4¼s were the only issues to lose ground.

Grays Lose S. Atlantic Unlimited Title to Celtics, 50-39.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, April 3.—Baltimore tonight completed an almost utter rout of Washington teams in the latters' bid for South Atlantic A. A. U. basket ball championships. The Celtics, carrying the banner of the Monumental City into the finals against the title-defending Washington Grays in the unlimited class, scored a decisive 50-39 victory to gain Baltimore's six championships in the seven classes of the tournament.

Previously to tonight, the Curtain Wonders, finners of the tournament staged in Washington by The Washington Post, had gone down to defeat before the brilliant play of the Susquehannock Tribe, Baltimore 130-pound champions.

Washington remains with one title salvaged from the seven final games—the result of the victory of the Washington Jewish Community Center 100-pounders over the Baltimore champions early in the week.

Macdonald and Forney Make Game Bid to Cut Lead.

The Grays, winners of the unlimited title last season under the name of Woodlothians, constituted Washington's greatest hope for another championship after the victory of the Capitol City 100-pounders, but despite the fact that more than 200 Washington fans lent their vocal support, the Grays were unable to stem the attack of the Celtics, undefeated in Baltimore court circles this season.

Despite almost superhuman efforts of Mickey Macdonald, inspiring little star, formerly of Central High School of Washington, and Jack Forney, one of the best centers in Capital court circles, the Grays were defeated. The Celtics now are called the greatest club quintet Baltimore has ever known.

With their chances to win apparently nil as the fourth quarter started—the Celtics were leading, 42 to 24—the Grays broke loose in a whirlwind of offensive basket ball which fairly swept the Celtics into wild disorganization.

As their 200 or more Washington supporters arose in a body, cheering them on, the Grays hacked the mountainous lead of the Baltimoreans to bits, and within five minutes after the final period opened what had appeared to be an easy runaway for the Celtics had become virtually anybody's game.

The Celtics meanwhile completely abandoned their own attack in a desperate effort to check the basket drives of the Grays, led by Macdonald and Forney, and within two minutes remaining the shocked leaders found themselves holding only an inconsiderable 4-point advantage.

Capital Contingent Groans as Kenney Makes "Snowbird."

But then a man of the hour appeared for the Celtics in the person of Kenney, who slipped down the floor unmolested and caged a "snowbird" amid a chorus of groans from the Washington contingent. This proved the big break of the game, for the Grays, worn out by

PENN VICTOR, 5 TO 3, OVER MARYLAND

Quakers Make 3 Runs Off DeMarco in 4th in Opening Game.

PENNSYLVANIA defeated the University of Maryland, 5 to 3, in the opening baseball game of the season for the Old Liners yesterday at College Park.

It was a real battle from the outset with Penn gaining a three-run edge in the fourth inning and keeping in front the remainder of the way. The Old Liners cut the visitors' lead to 3 to 2 in the fifth, and, after Penn had added a run in the sixth, Maryland again counted to make the score 4 to 3. There was no more run-making until the eighth, when the invaders chalked up their last tally.

Both teams used two pitchers, and all hurled creditably, Peterson, who relieved Ushka, Penn starting pitcher, proving

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, April 3.—Ray Barbuti's elaboration of his charge that the white plume of amateur athletics is speckled with hellotrope lacks specifications, but it will tend to confirm a pretty general suspicion that he is telling the truth. Very few persons outside of nurseries, institutions for the mentally infirm and A. A. U. headquarters really believe that some widely-exploited athletes without visible means of support are in competition solely for exercise and love of the game.

Track and field athletics, like some other sports, seem to be suffering from a considerable amount of racketeering. The sooner the men in nominal control of those sports acknowledge that fact and start cleaning house, the better it will be for sport. Undercover professionalism will undermine any sport if it is not rooted out at its source. Only a vigilant and careful supervision of promotion will ever discover it. That sort of supervision is not now exercised.

Barbuti's article in "Sportsmanship" reveals that cheating cheaters is a popular and profitable pastime in certain amateur athletic circles. He says the intermediaries employed by the promoters to engage certain athletes, sometimes work both sides from the middle, holding out on both the promoter and the athlete. It was this alleged practice that formed the basis of a Boston "amateur" hockey player's recent suit for payment he failed to receive.

The Girl in the Case Breaks Up Waner Holdout Act.

Paul and Lloyd Waner, of the Pirates, are as inseparable as corned beef and cabbage. They play together in the Pittsburgh outfield, chum around together in off hours and room together. Therefore it occasioned no surprise when they stated their original salary demands this spring in a lump sum covering the services of both. When Lloyd finally came to terms and rejoined the team it was taken for granted that his older brother would also be along presently, having mislaid his hat or something.

But it now appears that the brothers really dissolved their holi-out partnership and the reason for the dissolution has come to light. Lloyd was not tempted to desert his brother by money nor did he succumb to an overmastering desire for the company of Barney and Sam Dreyfus. Yes, there's a girl in the case. She lives in Pittsburgh and is engaged to the younger Waner. When the time came for the Pirates to head in the general direction of home Lloyd forgot all about the Waner brothers' joint determination to stay in Oklahoma all summer unless their demands were met.

Paul is married and his wife and child are with him in Oklahoma, so Owner Dreyfus can not expect any feminine aid in his case. Dreyfus might think it would be nice of him to send Lloyd's girl an armful or two of roses, but as a mater of fact the idea wouldn't be so hot. She's a florist's daughter.

Cochet, in Poor Form, Humbled by Landry

Biarritz, France, April 3 (A.P.).—America's hopes of capturing this year's Davis Cup matches were greatly bolstered today when Henri Cochet, displaying the poorest form of recent years, was beaten by Pierre Landry, 6—1, 6—3 and 6—2, in the finals of the tournament here.

Landry, ranking No. 7 in France, never had taken a set from Cochet before.

National Theater Star To Award Jockey Cup

The winning jockey in the National Theater Players Handicap, which features the program at Bowie today, will be presented with a silver loving cup by Miss Mary Newton, of the National Theater Players of this city, immediately after the race, the fourth on the card.

The handicap, fashioned for 3-year-old fillies, has attracted a smart field of nine for the 5½-furlong test.

G. U. WINNER, 7 TO 5, OVER EAGLES

Boston College Infield Weakens in Fifth to Aid in Victory

THE Hilltoppers waited patiently for a break somewhere in the Boston College Nine yesterday, and they were rewarded. When it arrived in the fifth inning in the form of a collapse of the Eagles pitching and fielding, they piled through en masse to sew up a victory, their second in three games so far this season. The score was 7 to 5.

This sudden turn of affairs injected the only pulse-throbbing moments into an otherwise drab contest, but most of the vapid playing was turned in by the Bostonians, while Georgetown exhibited better baseball than in either of its two previous games.

"Shaker" O'Connor, the starting Boston College southpaw, unexpectedly blew up in the fifth, after having looked impressive. His support also went haywire with him and together the Eagles' defensive faults opened the door to the home boys invitingly.

It didn't take the Hilltoppers long to breeze through the opening as they not only took full advantage of every mistake made by their Jesuit rivals from Codland, but helped themselves considerably by punching out four hits, one of which, a double by Johnny Dunn, marked the end of O'Connor's stay on the mound.

With Boston College leading, 2 to 1, Bob Wholey, first up in the big inning, took four bad balls. After Donovan struck out, White whacked a single to right, on which Ricci errored, permitting Wholey to score with the tying run, and the Hilltop pitcher to reach third.

Leary then sent another single to right, scoring White, and Malone, who ran for Leary, went to third

Barbuti Tells of Cash Paid "Amateur" Track Athletes

"Go-between" Methods Revealed By Star in Magazine Articles—Says Sport Is Hypocrisy—Calls for "New Deal in Amateur Athletics."

NEW YORK, April 3 (A.P.).—The alleged pay-off of so-called amateur athletes in cash at the box office after a track meet is described by Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter champion, now under suspension by the A. A. U., in an article in the April issue of Sportsmanship.

"Payments are always in cash, so far as I have been able to learn, and frequently the envelope method is used," writes the former Syracuse track and football captain. He was barred from competition five weeks ago when, after criticizing the Amateur Athletic Union, he refused to make definite charges because he did not wish to "get any one into trouble."

"The athlete goes to his intermediary and gets his envelope, in which the sum over and above his expenses that had been agreed upon is included," continues America's only cinder path winner at Amsterdam.

Cashier Held Names and Amounts To Be Paid the Stars.

"There was one case recently where a comparatively green promoter told the athletes to go out past the box office window, where the ticket taker and cashier who had spent the early evening hours receiving the money of spectators was stationed with a large card. On it were the names of all the stars and an amount after each name."

Declaring "a fanatical insistence that the present amateur rule is being observed is making for hypocrisy, because many of our leading stars are not amateurs," Barbuti recommends a "call for a new deal in amateur athletics."

"Times change," he asserts, after praising the A. A. U. for its part in the past development of amateur sport, "how certain of its rules instead of aiding the cause of sportsmanship, fair play and honest dealing, are, in my opinion, retarding it."

"As a rule, only star athletes are approached," says Barbuti, in a graphic description of what he says is the prevailing system, "and an intermediary, generally a good fellow, well known and a constant attendant at track meets, is chosen as the man to secure entry of the stars and to pay them off.

Star's Intermediary Compared To Boxer's Manager.

"The star athlete is asked if he will run for a certain amount. This has ranged as high as $500 in cases of which I have heard.

"In the case of several very important stars—and this group includes some of the great foreign athletes who have come to these shores—a second intermediary is employed. This intermediary represents the athlete and is comparable to a boxer's manager.

'Johnson Day' Celebrated By Victory

Marberry and Braxton Hold Canadians to Six Safeties.

Barnes Hits 2 Singles and a Decisive Triple in Seventh.

By FRANK H. YOUNG,
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., April 3—Daytona Beach fans turned out 2,500 strong this afternoon to pay homage to Walter Johnson, whom they consider a fellow townsman because of his winter residence here. The feature of "Johnson Day" was a game between the Nationals and the Montreal Royals, of the International League, and the Nats' contribution to the cause was an 8-to-3 victory, their fourteenth in seventeen "Grapefruit League" starts.

Garland Braxton and Fred Marberry flung the ball for Johnson's men, and each encountered one poor inning, but allowed only six hits between them. "Chief" Elon Hogsett, a full-blooded Osage Indian, and Carl Dunagan divided the mound duties for the Canadians, and all but one of the Nats' runs were scored off the slants of the red man.

Red Barnes, who made four hits yesterday, again led the Washington attack, being credited with a triple and two singles. He drove home two runs and scored as many himself. Goslin, Hayes and Judge each were credited with two hits, the latter driving home four runs.

Montreal Hurler Unsteady As Nats Score at Start.

When Braxton turned the Nats' pitching job over to Marberry starting the sixth round, the Big Leaguers were leading, 4 to 2, having gotten off to a good start by staging a three-run rally in the first round. Hogsett did not look impressive in this frame, for he walked West and hit Barnes, after which Judge and Hayes each singled and the Montreal flinger kicked in a "boot" on this latter blow. Later he also passed Spencer, filling the bases with two out, but Braxton went out in a pitcher-like fashion.

The Nats then failed to show another kick until the fifth, when singles by Goslin and Barnes and Bluege's useful out gave them another marker. With one out the Royals had hope of scoring when Gautreau tripled to left center. He tried to score after Hayes took Henry's pop in short right, how-

Milan Most Frisky Recruit In Defeat of Tampa Club, 4-2

Special to The Washington Post.

TAMPA, Fla., April 3.—Time rolled back to a long-gone year today and returned to Clyde (Zeb) Milan the speed and punch of his baseball youth. At least, the veteran Washington coach had enough of his old-time form to enable him to lead an assembled Washington Ball Club to a 4-to-2 victory over the Tampa Smokers.

Left here to manage the junior Nationals in Washington's last game of the spring training season in Tampa, Milan went into left field against the Smokers and, as his contribution to the day's victory, rapped out three clean hits, scored three of the runs and captured five flies into the sector of the gardens he patroled.

Sandlotter and Liska Hold Tampans to Five Hits.

It, perhaps, was not the flashing Zeb of old, but it at least was a rather lively ghost of the once great player, who stole 67 bases in a single season. Back at the helm of the Nats for two days, Milan has piloted the club to two victories. Just his luck, he remarked after today's game, that he could not boast such a 1.000 record when he managed the Nats regularly in 1922.

Today's game here, played while the Nats Regulars were defeating the Montreal Internationals at Daytona Beach, was not supposed to have been taken seriously by Milan and his men, but the Smokers maintain they took it seriously enough. Wally Brush, a star young right-hander of the locals, was wheedled out of eight hits and seven bases on balls. Kenneth Douglas, a Florida sandlotter, and Ad Liska, the submarine shoot exponent, held the Tampans to five hits between them. Going in when the score stood 2 to 2, Liska received credit for the victory.

Gooch Brings Milan Home On All 3 Occasions.

Gooch, Joe Judge's understudy at first base, drove in Milan with each of his three runs.

The Nats won out in the seventh with two runs. Liska's walk, Milan's single by beating out a bunt, Stewart's infield out and Harris' sacrifice fly to right scored Liska. Gooch came along with another hit to score Milan again.

The last of the Nats left the Tampa camp tonight, going to Jacksonville, where the Daytona Beach contingent will be joined tomorrow.

Workers' Strike Halts Bunion Derby Sideshow

Wilmington, Del., April 3 (A.P.).—A crew of workmen in charge of erecting the tents for the Pyle Bunion Vaudeville Sideshow went on strike today when they were not paid. Pyle was in Trenton, and it was impossible to present the show.

John Salo, of Passaic, N. J., and Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, led the Bunion derbyists into Wilmington today at 12:25. Their time from Philadelphia, a distance of about 28 miles, was 4:49:35.

Olli Wanttinen, Finland, was third in 5:05:05. Paul Simpson, Burlington, N. C., and Edward Gardner, Seattle, were tied at 5:19:31. Herbert Hedeman, Melbourne, Australia, in 5:29:45 was next.

Simpson is still leading the derbyists with an elapsed time of 17:41:48. Salo is second with an elapsed time of 17:43:35; Gardner third with 17:58:51, and Gavuzzi fourth with 19:45:35.

IN RETURN MATCH.

The Hyattsville All-Stars and Stanford Paper Co. bowlers will roll in a return match on the Colliseum alleys Saturday night beginning at 8 o'clock. The Standford club collected a 64-pin lead in the first block rolled last week at Hyattsville.

Morgan 9-5 Favorite In Title Battle Tonight

Los Angeles, April 3 (A.P.).—Tod Morgan will have an advantage in both weight and reach when he defends his junior lightweight championship here tomorrow night for the second time against Santiago Zorilla, San Blas Indian.

The title holder will have almost 3 inches in height and reach over his bushy-haired opponent, but other measurements lend support to the belief that Zorilla is the more rugged of the two. Morgan's 71-inch reach is equal to that of the most full-fledged lightweights. He takes advantage of it, too.

Both principals practically completed their training yesterday. Morgan planned only light gymnasium work to taper off, while Zorilla said he would gallop over the hills near Culver City, Calif., to maintain the physical edge.

Odds were generally 10 to 9 in favor of Morgan.

Cubs, With Hornsby, Ask Only Pitching Strength to Guarantee League Pennant

Herewith is the fourth of a series of articles to be published in The Post dealing with the pennant prospects of all major league teams by sixteen baseball experts of the staffs of sixteen leading newspapers.

By JAME CRUSINBERRY
(Baseball Expert, Chicago Daily News).

BEAUMONT, Tex., April 3.—At the end of the 1928 season, Joe McCarthy, manager of Chicago's Cubs, explained that with more punch on his team he would have won the pennant. Then he acquired Rogers Hornsby, the champion batter of the league. Now, as the season of 1929 is about to open, Joe McCarthy says: "It all depends upon my pitchers. If the pitching is good, the Cubs are sure to be in the fight for the flag."

Results obtained in the spring exhibition games indicate that the Cubs of 1929 have a real punch. In the battles with Los Angeles and with the Detroit Tigers, the Chicago outfit produced runs in abundance. It was nothing for them to knock in eight, ten or a dozen scores in a ball game.

But in those same exhibition games, they seldom held the enemy to a light score. The Cub pitchers were hit hard. It was almost the same pitching staff of the year before. So it seems that Boss McCarthy has things properly sized up when he says it all depends upon his pitchers.

Carlson and Nehf Hold Key To Mound Staff's Success.

Looking over his pitching staff, one finds a half dozen established hurlers, only a couple of whom could be classed as veterans. And yet it rests largely upon the two veterans to hold up to standard for another season, because the other four are not so reliable. The old-timers are Art Nehf, artistic southpaw, and Hal Carlson, star right-hander, who was out of it for the first half or more of last year because of a severe attack of flu in the early spring.

"If Nehf and Carlson hold up, it seems I ought to be able to keep a couple of others from the remainder of the staff in top form to go along with them," was the way McCarthy put it.

Neither Nehf nor Carlson can be expected at their advanced ago to take a turn on the rubber every fourth day. But each one should be good for a game every five or six days.

Root, Hero of 1927, May Bolster Club's Chances.

POLY SCORES EASILY IN SPRINT FEATURE AT BOWIE

Winner Sets Dazzling Pace

War Hawk Beats Out Buddy Basil, Letalone in Thriller.

POLY, racing for Mrs. James W. Bean, and brought back to the races cleverly by Kimball Patterson, was winner of the best offering on the program at Bowie yesterday, captured the Flash urse at 5½ furlongs, a condition affair that attracted half a dozen fast ones. Samuel Ross' Cloudy was the one to race to the place and he beat the McLean Stable's War Eagle for that part of the purse. Sarmaticus, winner of the 1926 running of the Toboggan Handicap, was fourth.

It was another day of summer warmth and an immense crowd was out, with many notables from Washington among the clubhouse visitors of the day. The track was at its best and while the program was one that gave sprinters unusual opportunities, there was abundant interest.

The winter horses showed to better advantage than they did on the opening day. Sand Fiddler and Supersede, both Florida performers, were winners.

Poly Never Leaves Race in Doubt With Fast Pace.

Poly never left the result of the Flash seriously in doubt. G. Rose had him off flying and he set a sizzling pace from the first stride. He was soon clear of the company and Cloudy and War Eagle chased after him, while Sarmaticus was showing the way to Aucilla while Quince Delight, the only other starter, soon dropped out of the running completely.

While there was always daylight back of the winner, Cloudy and War Eagle raced well lapped back of him and they at all times held Sarmaticus safe. Fields had Cloudy under a slight restraint and he timed his run from the top of the stretch home. There he called on the son of High Cloud seriously and he closed some ground on Mrs. Bean's sprinter, but he was still a length and a half away, though he shook off War Eagle to beat him two lengths for the place.

War Hawk Winner in Rousing Finish of Fifth Race.

A rousing finish, the best one of the afternoon, came with the running of the fifth race, a dash of 7 furlongs, when War Hawk, Buddy Basil and Letalone flashed past the judges noses apart in the order named. It was one of those finishes in which the winner was in doubt until the official placing was displayed. Equation threatened to make a runaway affair of this event when he went to the front in the early stages after breaking very slowly.

At the half-mile pole Equation was out in front going strong with a lead of 3 lengths. Quinlan was letting Equation step right along, and the result was that when the real issue came Equation stopped. War Hawk, the winner, came from behind in the stretch run after making a wide turn, and in a desperate drive just managed to get up in the final strides to nose out Buddy Basil. Letalone, who finished third, was on the inside the entire trip and saved much ground at all of the turns.

Sand Fiddler Shows Winter Form to Beat Juveniles.

The 2-year-old race furnished a rousing contest, in which Sand Fiddler was a clever winner over Portsur. An even dozen went to the post, and Sand Fiddler, on the strength of his showing at Miami, was heavily supported and went to the post favorite.

When the start came Sand Fiddler, quick to begin, was soon out in front racing with Portsur. The pair hooked up and ran head and head rounding the far turn and into the home stretch. At the furlong pole the riders on both colts were driving, and when the final test came Sand Fiddler shook off Portsur, and the finish found him drawing away to win by a length. Portsur was a length and a half in front of Playball, who in turn beat Tewsenelda a couple of lengths. Playball as usual was slow to find his stride, but when he did get going moved up in resolute fashion to finish full of courage.

The horses with the inside post positions had no chance. The footing for 10 or 15 feet next the rail at this point is deep, and when the start comes the ground breaks from under the feet of the horses. Naturally they sprawl and the jockeys are forced to pull up. Thus it might be well to overlook any disappointing races shown by horses which break from these positions.

Bowie Meet to Be Scene Of Earl Sande's Comeback

BOWIE will be the scene of Earl Sande's return from retirement as a jockey, it was indicated yesterday at the track when the most famous of all America's riders ordered his track trunk moved into the jockey's room.

Trained down under 118 pounds, Sande will be permitted to ride his own horses at the Maryland meeting as a result of the action of the Maryland Race Commission last winter in lifting the ban on owners and trainers to allow them to take mounts. They are restricted, however, to their own stables. The decision was actuated as the result of Sande's declaration that he probably would return to the saddle if permitted.

That Sande's return to the saddle will be one of the most popular events of the Maryland racing season is assured. Always the idol of the crowds as the result of his phenomenal success as a jockey, Sande gained added friends following his disbarment by the Maryland commission after the Pimlico "futurity episode of 1927, when he was accused of foul riding and suspended indefinitely from all the major tracks of the country.

Star Whitney Filly Bolts Through Fence, Bruised.

Flimsey, a 2-year-old filly by Broomstick-Yankee Lady, in the stable of Harry Payne Whitney, bolted through the fence while being galloped yesterday morning. Fortunately she escaped with a few slight bruises. Flimsy is a full sister to Bostonian and is reported to be one of the best of the band of youngsters that Freddy Hopkins is handling for the master of Brookdale.

Fritz Weiner, who has signed to ride for the Dorwood stable, is coming to Havre de Grace. Trainer Sammy Smith ships a division of the Victor Emanuel horses to Maryland.

Trainers report that the 2-year-olds here are a bit backward. Collectively they are a better looking lot than has been shown here in recent years.

Secretary Joseph McLennan reports that Baron Long's good 3-year-old Ervast has been nominated for the clasic $60,000 stake for the big 3-year-olds that will be run at the Arlington Park meeting next summer.

List of 29 Undesirables Given Paddock Judge.

The stewards handed the paddock judge a list of 29 names of individuals whose presence in the paddock was deemed undesirable. At some of the winter tracks this privilege was abused and in several instances led to a lot of unpleasant talk.

Capt. P. M. Walker is at Bowie with eight homebred 2-year-olds that will carry his colors this season. Capt. Walker is doing his own training. It is the first time that his colors will be seen in action since 1914, when he raced among others that good horse Madrigillian.

Sargeant A. Swenke was an arrival from New Orleans with eleven horses. Arrangements have been made by Roddy Campbell and R. L. Bites to ship the horses they have at Pimlico to Akron, Ohio. J. Serio, who is stabling at the Hilltop course, is sending his horses to Columbus.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BLANDRIS is the hot tamale being served up by yours truly as the XXX special here in Maryland for the faithful. Showed enough speed the other morning to outrun a few nags of real merit. He's been tuned to concert pitch and will roll home. All this takes place in the second spasm.

SNOOZE has shown some fair trials and runs coupled with MURKY CLOUD as the H. P. Whitney entry in the opener. The Whitney "baby racers" are meeting very ordinary youngsters this spring. WICKER has worked well since arriving from Tia Juana, while LADY TRYSTER is fast and has a good post position.

PIGEON WING II is going to hurl a wicked set of heels in the third. Is the one the others will have to catch. Plenty of real kale has been planted in Jersey City by some smart boys on this racer. A word to the wise, however, is usually just like a kick in the pants.

Earl Sande is going to saddle CHANTRY in the fourth, and it appears from this end of the line as though he has a winner. This hide has been well trained and is fit to go to the Rocky Mountains.

Tab the ring action closely in the fifth. If the right money shows for EDISTO, well, boys, it's good night

Titles Gained By Bordeau And Miller

Forfeited to Capital Fighters by Injured Foes in Finals.

J. C. C. Team Second in Points; Tardugno Loses Decision.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, April 3.—Two Jewish Community Center boxers, of Washington, won South Atlantic championships in the two-day tournament which came to a close here tonight at the 104th Medical Regiment Armory, with the Baltimore Y. M. C. A., carrying off the team honors with 28 points.

Leroy (Buddy) Bordeau, a Georgetown University freshman who joined the Community Center ring squad only three weeks ago, captured the light-heavyweight championship, while Jocko Miller carried J. C. C. colors to victory in the lightweight class. Both won in the finals by forfeits, their scheduled opponents having been forced to withdraw on account of injuries received in semifinal bouts.

Bordeau and Miller will accompany six other South Atlantic title winners to Boston to compete in the A. A. U. senior championships starting next Monday.

Decision Against Tardugno Disapproved by Fans.

Three other Washington leather pushers lost in the semifinals, one of them—Leroy De Lacey, Veterans of Foreign Wars—forfeiting to Miller. Mike Tardugno, J. C. C. featherweight, was eliminated by G. Snyder, of the Americus A. C., who later took the 126-pound title.

Many ringsiders and the large delegation of Capital rooters voiced disapproval of the decision against Tardugno. The sturdy Center boxer staged a rousing finish and almost had Snyder out at the bell. But in the first two rounds Snyder, who held a marked advantage in height and reach, piled up the points that withstood Turdugno's score in the third and final round, thus winning the verdict according to A. A. U. rules of scoring.

Leighton Minor, of the City Club, was defeated in the semifinals by R. Smithson, of Fort Howard. This was one of the hardest fought bouts of the tournament, and the victory cost Smithson dearly, for he injured his hand and could not enter the ring to meet Bordeau.

Bordeaux Pummels Big Foe To Win in Semifinals.

Bordeau inserted a big sensation into the proceedings when he belted Walter Trail all over the ring in the semifinals. The big Emorywood A. C. representative was much taller than the Georgetown boy, but he held no other superiority. The bell saved him in the first round and Bordeau finished him with a couple of vicious rights just after the second session started.

Jewish Community Center was second in team scoring with 11 points. The rest of the field finished as follows: Americus A. C., 9; unattached, 8; Fort Howard, 6; Baltimore Y. M. H. A., 6; Emorywood A. C., 4; Camp Holabird, 3; Veterans of Foreign Wars, City Club and St. Mary's Industrial School, 1 each.

Marberry's "Boner" Aids In Sixth-Inning Rally.

Montreal gave the Nats a scare in the sixth, scoring one run and having the aisles packed when the final out was turned in. With one gone, Gautreau walked and Stapleton fanned. Gautreau stole on the third strike and went on to third when Marberry tossed the ball on the ground, thinking the umpire had called Stapleton's third strike a fourth ball. Gulley's single scored Gautreau. Fowler scratched a hit to Marberry on which the latter pegged badly past first and a pass to Gaudette filled the bases. This put it up to Tice, who replaced Conley, but his best was a pop to Hayes.

The Nats used the "lucky" frame to increase their total by three. After West had fanned for the third successive time, Myer singled, Goslin walked and Barnes cleared the bases with a triple down the left-field line. Bluege coaxed a pass and Barnes then scurried over the plate when the Gautreau-to-Urbanski-to-Stapleton combination failed to turn Judge's roller into a double play.

As a parting shot, the Nats added one more run to their total in the ninth, molding this from a walk, Barnes' single and Judge's sacrifice fly.

CUBS ASK PITCHING TO ASSURE PENNANT

the best pitcher of 1928, though he turned in only seventeen victories. Malone, a younger and stronger man, turned in eighteen victories, but suffered more defeats. There is reason to expect as good, if not better, results from each of those two in 1929. The other two of the six established men are Guy Bush and Charley Root.

Now, in 1927 Root turned in 26 victories, more than any pitcher in the National League. Last year he fell down terribly in comparison. There is a chance he may come back. He is still young and depending almost entirely upon his speed. Bush is liable to be brilliant one day and helpless on his next time out. He's still quite young and might this year settle into a steady stride. Some help on the slab might come from Mike Cvengros, midget left-hander who has been up before, and from Ed Lautenbacher and Berlyn Horne, two recruits of this year.

Third Place Only Weak Spot In Remainder of Team.

Aside from pitching, the team is solid and classy throughout, the position of third base being the only doubtful one. Either Clyde Beck, who played it most of last year, or Norman McMillan, utility man of last season, is likely to be at the hot corner, though there is a strong and live left-handed hitting recruit, Clarence Blair, trying for the job. There may be some shifting at that position from time to time during the year, so as to have the man on the job who may be hitting best at that particular time.

On the rest of the infield Capt. Grimm is established at first base, no one but Hornsby can be at second, and Woody English is a fast-coming star at short. The outfield looks like one of the best in the business, with Kiki Cuyler in right, Hack Wilson in center, Riggs Stephenson in left and Cliff Heathcote, Johnny Moore and Danny Taylor in reserve.

It would not be necessary at all to mention the catchers with Gabby Hartnett and Mike Gonzales in harness. However, Hartnett was bothered all spring with a sore shoulder and it looks as if he may not be back to his standard form by the time the season opens. Even with him out there is little over which to worry as long as Gonzales is in good health. Two rookies, Earl Grace and Tom Angley, are with the team and one will be carried as a third-string man.

HESS VS. GUNNERS.

Hess A. C. Tossers will play the Seaman Gunners today on the Fairlawn diamond at 5 o'clock in a practice game. For games with the Hessmen, phone Manager Lovelace at Atlantic 100-W between 5 and 6 o'clock.

C. U. Nine Bows, 4 to 0, To St. Mary's Celtics

St. Mary's Celtics, of Alexandria, combined timely hitting with their opponents' errors to defeat the Catholic University Nine in a five-inning practice game on the Brookland diamond yesterday, 4 to 0. Ludlow, with two singles and Langford with a double and single, led the offense of the winners.

Lou Gioffre, who has been playing shortstop this season, returned to the box for Catholic for the first time since last spring. The Celtics touched him up for three runs and then garnered one from the shoots of Lou Hurley, who pitched in the fifth.

Morty Witner Hits Double And Draws 3 Walks.

Slaughter, Penn right fielder, was the batting star, garnering three hits, including a triple, double and single, in four tries. He scored two runs and drove in another. Morty Wilner, Washington boy, got on base each time at bat, getting a double, three walks and reaching first once on an error. He also played well afield.

Penn scored its three runs in the fourth after one out. Wilner doubled and reached third when Carlsten singled to second. While an attempt was being made to run down Carlsten, who had been picked off first, Wilner broke for home, and when Radice's heave went wild Wilner crossed the plate and Carlsten gained third. Becker's fly to Leschinsky sent Carlsten home. Walker, Slaughter and Murphy then got on through slow infield taps, Walker scoring.

Derr Hits Single With Bases Full, Scoring Two.

Maryland sent over two runs in the fifth. McGann, with one out, reached first on a scratch hit. Hetzel then ait to Wilner, and when the latter, with a double play looming, threw wild to second, both runners were safe. Lombard, pinch hitting for DeMarco, was hit by a pitched ball, to fill the bases. Derr then dropped a Texas leaguer single to right field, scoring McGann and Hetzel. Lombard, however, was flagged at third on the play. Radice grounded to short to end the inning.

Slaughter's double and Prager's single netted Penn another run in the sixth, and in Maryland's half of that inning Leschinsky drove over the wall in left center for the circuit.

Penn counted its last tally in the eighth through Slaughter's triple and Caniglia's single.

ONE BIG INNING WINS FOR HILLTOP, 7 TO 5

as McCarty whizzed another one-baser past Capt. Al Weston, the Eagles' star first baseman and football half back.

Weston made a weak effort to snare the ball, thereby believing the advance reports of his prowess. Then O'Connor, seeing his support failing him, tried to slip a straight one past Dunn, but the Georgetown shortstop ripped off his second double of the game, scoring Malone, and the Eagle hurler went away from there.

McNulty took up the pitching for the visitors at this point, to be greeted by a looping single from Scalzi's bat, a hit which should have been an out with alertness on the part of Temple, who did not start running in from center until the ball was well on its way. This malfeasance brought McCarty home with tally No. 4, while another error—of commission—paved the way for two more runs.

Spognardi, the B. C. shortstop, had an easy double play in sight when he caught Duplin's hopper, but he threw wide to Creeden, pulling the latter off second base, and the bases were filled again. Dunn scored from third on Bozek's sacrifice fly, and Scalzi darted across the plate when Duplin was caught off first and run down.

Princeton and Vermont Nines Play Here Today

Two college baseball games are offered local diamond fans today. Princeton will invade the Georgetown field for a game, starting at 3 o'clock, while Vermont University will cross bats with Maryland at College Park at the same hour.

Neither of the visiting nines has accomplished much of note in early season play, consequently the home clubs seem to have at least an even chance of winning.

Jack Edmonston, former Western High mound star, probably will hurl for Georgetown, with Paul Donovan or Tom Phelan catching. Harry Hess, a freshman last year, or Harry Boublitz, a southpaw holdover from the 1928 team, will pitch for Maryland, with Burt McGann, formerly of Tech High, of this city, working behind the plate.

BARBUTI DESCRIBES METHODS OF PAY-OFF

"It is not unknown that the payoff man or intermediary 'knocks down' on the athletes," Barbuti adds, explaining that this individual sometimes drives a close bargain and keeps part of the sum he is authorized to spend. "Sometimes he knocks down on the promoter also."

"One of our best known sprinters, who was a tremendous drawing card at indoor games particularly, demanded his money in advance so that there would be no discrepancy. If he didn't get what he was promised he would not run.

"The system of payment to athletes is as widespread as athletics and by no means confined to this country. The offers I received for barnstorming tours following my victory in the last Olympics games reached thousands of dollars and were for appearances in many European countries."

HELEN HICKS BEATEN IN UPSET

North and South Open Has Four Stars in Finals Today.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3 (United Press).—Four of the outstanding women golfing stars of the country remained in the running tonight for the coveted North and South open championship as a result of the elimination of a quartet of hardly less notable feminine players in the quarter-finals this afternoon.

The day's matches were marked by two principal features—the elimination of the Long Island girl Helen Hicks and the nineteen-hole battle between two Chicago stars, Virginia Van Wie and Virginia Wilson. Miss Van Wie eked out an extra-hole victory after overcoming a five-hole lead.

Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, Southern champion, eliminated Miss Hicks, 3 and 2, by playing the last nine holes in 37 strokes. Her card showed seven consecutive fours, one of which was a birdie. Both required 44 strokes for the outward nine and Miss Hicks returned in 39.

Edith Quier, who yesterday eliminated Mrs. O. S. Hill, the 1928 North and South champion, continued her winning stride today by defeating Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, Ohio, 5 and 4. Miss Fordyce was very much off her game and the blonde Reading, Pa., girl had little trouble in winning.

The national champion, Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., advanced to the semifinals at the expense of Maureen Orcutt, Metropolitan champion, whom she defeated, 3 and 2.

Tomorrow Miss Collett will engage Miss Turpie, while Miss Quier and Miss Van Wie will meet in the other bracket.

Griffith Quits Tampa, Uncertain of Return

Tampa, Fla., April 3.—Clark Griffith, president of the Nats, left here this afternoon, uncertain that his team would return to Tampa for spring training. Further negotiations with J. L. Cone and W. L. Cobb, owners of the Tampa Club, failed to iron out differences over joint use of the local field next spring.

In connection with the present misunderstanding between the Nats and Tampa regarding continuing to use the Smoker City as a spring training base, Assistant Secretary Billy Smith states that smaller crowds turned out this year than last. For ten games, bringing such opponents as the Boston Braves, Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn Dodgers and St Louis Cardinals, 1928 National League champions, the turnstiles showed that only 7,747 cash customers passed through. Total receipts were $3,829, which the Nationals had to divide with their guests.

CAPITOLS MEET TONIGHT.

Capitol A. C. Nine will hold a meeting tonight at 270 Fifteenth street southeast, at 8:30 o'clock. Sunday the Dixie Pigs will be met at Eleventh and C streets southeast, at 2:30 o'clock.

NOEL HOUSE NINE MEETS.

Noel House will enter a team in the Capital City League this year. The team will meet tonight at the Noel House, at 7:30 o'clock. Coach Kail requests all candidates to report.

Col. Erickson Named Head Of Capital City Ball League

COL. HJALMER ERICKSON, of the Army War College, yesterday was elected president of the Capital City League, local controlling body in amateur baseball, at a meeting of league officials at the District Building. He will serve for a period of one year.

Col. Erickson was considered especially fitted for the post in view of his past record as an executive in various athletic organizations throughout the country during the past 25 years. He is well known in military athletic circles and has been associated, both as a player and an official, with football, baseball, boxing and polo.

During the World War Col. Erickson commanded the Twenty-sixth Infantry of the First Division. Prior thereto he had held distinguished posts, such as provost judge at Vera Cruz during the Mexican rebellion, in 1914, and governor of Dave Province, Mandingo Island, of the Philippines, under Gen. Pershing.

Col. Erickson fought in the Spanish-American War, and later explored in the Arctic.

Other officers of the league named yesterday were Richard S. Tennyson, director of boys' athletics of the Playground Department, vice president, and Rollins J. Atkinson, of The Post sports staff, secretary-treasurer.

The league will announce plans for the formation of divisions within a few days.

Indians Rally in Ninth To Nose Out Giants.

New Orleans, La., April 3 (U.P.).—The Cleveland Indians defeated the Giants, 5 to 4, in their second exhibition game today. Not an earned run was scored until the ninth inning, when the Giants tied the score with singles by Terry, Leach and Hogan and a double by O'Farrell.

The Indians won with two out in the ninth when Porter tripled and Joe Sewell doubled.

GRAYS BEATEN, 50-39, BY BALTIMORE TEAM

their hard struggle against odds, seemed to be crushed as two more points went up on their foes' scoreboard. And during the fast waning time the Orioles regained their early stride to pocket six additional tallies.

The Grays were at a loss to stop the fast dribbling and passing attack of the Celtics throughout the first half. Forney was unable to cope with the left-handed center of the Celtics—Billie Liston, tall star of the Loyola College five—while a long-range barrage which numbered four sensational shots brought the locals out on the long end of the score at intermission by 36 to 14.

Little Macdonald took command of the Grays in the third quarter and managed to solve some of the problems offered by his opponents' style of play, the result being that for the next ten minutes the Capital crew offered real opposition. This was the forerunner to that late, nerve-racking drive.

Susquehannock Assumes Big Lead Over Wonders.

The Curtin Wonders alternately rallied and faded in the game with the Susquehannock Tribe, the Baltimore boys finally steaming away in the fourth quarter to a 38 to 19 triumph.

Outweighed and for most of the time outplayed, the Wonders never were able to play on even terms after the first quarter assault on the cords by the Tribe tossers, who sank, among others, four midcourt shots, to lead at the end of the opening period, 15 to 8. This margin was cut down by the Wonders in the second period, which ended in favor of the Tribe, 19 to 10.

For a while during the third quarter it appeared as if the Wonders might catch the leaders, but after drawing close they fell still farther back, and the Baltimoreans went into the final period leading by 28 to 15. From there until the close there was no doubt as to the ultimate winner.

Zahn, with two field goals and two free points, led the attack of the Wonders. Jansen, Lunak and Meyer shared scoring honors for the winners.

Hokanson Performs Well on Mound As Sport Is Revived.

BASEBALL was given a royal welcome by the Gallaudet Nine yesterday in the opening game of the season for the Kendall Greeners. Coach Krug's ball tossers, after a lapse of two years, completely submerged the Maryland All Stars in an 18-to-3 encounter. Only 7½ innings were played because of the great length of time spent by Gallaudet in coining runs.

Conrad Hokanson hurled for the home team and turned in a creditable effort despite the fact that he was wild on one or two occasions. Hokanson allowed but four hits and struck out nine. The Maryland All Stars, as pitiful a team as has ever graced a local field in some time, used two pitchers and both looked alike to the hitting Gallaudet batters. Buscher started and was combed for thirteen runs in his three-inning stay on the mound, while Trundel, who followed, gave up five runs in the seventh, after pitching fair ball for three innings.

Hokanson Leads on Attack With Three Safeties.

In the collection of singles, doubles and triples collected by the Kendall Greeners in their vicious attack, Hokanson led, with three hits in five trips to the plate, including a double.

By ARTHUR DEAN, Sc. D.
The Parent Counselor.

EDUCATION AND SUCCESS.

THE title of today's article is misleading, as education has nothing to do with "success" as it is generally understood, and success has less than nothing to do with education.

In the minds of most of us success means the accumulation of dollars. Education means going to school. Accepting these ideas it is clear that the more schooling one has the greater will be his earning capacity in the vocational field he has chosen.

A young man couldn't be a physician, if he would, on an elementary school education. He might go to a medical college long enough to invent a pill which would "cure you as it has thousands of others," and find that leaving college his M. D. degree might have great monetary value. Another fellow might take course after course in medical research, never enter active practice, but devote himself to seeking the causes of and cures for cancer. So engaged he might end up his professional days with cancer himself and not a cent saved. Each man would be a "success." Both would throw out of balance any statistical tables on the money value of an education.

A man can—and many do—own a chain of movie houses without having ever stepped into a high school, much less a college. A man can so give his life to the service of science that he wouldn't have time, interest or money enough to step into a movie house. So there we are.

The college professor whom we quoted yesterday elaborated in his idea that a college education was a distinct detriment to the earning capacity of youth this thought: "College-persuasive high school principals and educators are the real educational criminals who are overcrowding the professions by their fallacious comparison of the educated and the noneducated."

So high school principals are guilty of criminality in urging boys and girls to go to college! Well I do declare! And this from a college professor who sees that the only way to keep himself, and those like him, in a job is to limit the number of competitors.

Evidently it never occurs to that college professor that a college education might have something to it besides a dollar sign. "To be at home in all lands and ages," to quote a former president of Bowdoin College, "to carry the keys to the world's library in your pocket; to make hosts of friends among the men of your age who are leaders in all walks of life; this is the offer of the college for the four best years of your life,"—is all poppycock to our misguided friend. Never mind about culture, get the dollar.

And finally the professor says: "A college education is likely to make a man too pensive and hesitant for the task of money-making, when daring and courage are the prime necessities!"

Daring! Courage! He forgets what the college-trained scientist is doing in chemistry, medicine, electricity, aviation, television. Daring and courage! He's thinking about movie promoters and oil-stock speculators.

A college education makes a man too pensive and hesitant—teaches him to ponder situations in a way that is a detriment to business! Let's be charitable and think of this statement as being a sly bit of classroom humor; for surely the learned man does not really believe that bankers, merchants, the General Electric, General Motors, continental railroads and other vast enterprises are wrong when they call for men who can think.

The professor expects fools to rush in where angels fear to tread.

School Lunches.

A long time ago I read a very good article by you on "School Lunches." I did not save it because I did not think I would ever need it, as our school had a cafeteria. Now we have moved to another town, where the children carry their lunches to school. Can I obtain a copy of the paper in which the article was originally published?

INTERESTED MOTHER.

Answer—So many mothers were in the same fix that I have had the article printed in leaflet form. It is yours with the compliments of this newspaper for the usual S. A. S. E.

The Endless Circle.

Should a girl give a boy a birthday gift if she has received one? GIRL.

Answer—I see. He gave you a present, so you give him one. Then he gives you another one, and you give him one. This can go on forever. The point is, do you honestly want to give him a present, quite regardless of the idea of paying him back for the one he gave you? If so, give. If not, stop

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL HINDERMAN

APRIL 4.

THE woman who was responsible for the establishment of asylums for the insane in twenty States and in many foreign countries, Dorothy Lynne Dix, was born this day, 1802, at Hampden, Me.

In her youth she supported herself by teaching. Later she wrote books for children. One of these, "Conversations on Common Things," reached 60 editions.

Then Miss Dix fell heir to wealth and thereafter devoted herself to alleviating conditions among lunatics, paupers and criminals. She visited prisons, asylums and almshouses in nearly every State in the Union. As the result of her investigations more than 30 asylums were established in twenty States. Then she extended her work to Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. From this continent she carried her reforms to Scotland, France, Italy, Austria, Turkey, Greece, Russia, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Germany and Japan.

During the Civil War, Miss Dix was appointed head of the Union hospital nurses and served four years without a day's furlough. She died in 1887 at the age of 85. Congress erected a monument in her honor at her birthplace in 1903.

Other noted women born this day include Margaret Wilson Oliphant, author of 120 novels, 1828; Queen Maria de Gloria of Portugal, 1819; Agnes Ayres, screen star, 1901, and Elizabeth von Arnim, German writer, 1785.

STOCK PRICES REACT AS TRADING SHRINKS

Entire List on Washington Exchange Displays Weakening Tendency.

HIGHER CREDIT FORESEEN

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Trading was in increased volume yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange. While quotations showed little variation, the market remained "off," all stocks and bonds trading slightly below last sale prices, with the exception of Capital Traction Co. stock. This showed increases of ⅜ and ½ of a point. It figured prominently in the trading, 10 shares going at 98¾ and 51 more at 98½ after call.

Potomac Electric 5½% D preferred followed in point of volume, 40 shares moving at from 107½ to 107¾, the last sale figure. Five shares of the 6% preferred went at 112 and 111¾. Ten shares of Washington Gas Light were sold at 113, and 30 of Washington Railway & Electric preferred at 97¼. Riggs National Bank came out at 572, 15 shares changing hands. One share of American Security & Trust sold at 463; 5 of District National Securities preferred at 101½, and 15 of Federal American preferred at 102. This and the Riggs stock were the sole issues holding at previous levels.

In the bond division a $1,000 lot of Potomac Electric Consolidated 5s sold at 101, and two $1,000 bonds of Washington Gas Light 6s, Series B, at 104½. After call, sales of $1,000 Capital Traction 5s at 99¼ and $1,000 Washington Railway & Electric 4s at 86½ were recorded.

Tighter Credit Is Predicted.

Pointing out that nearly two months have passed since the Federal Reserve Board issued its warning against expansion of credit in stock market operations, the Washington office of Ernst & Ernst, analyzing the results of the board's action, holds it obvious that the Reserve system has not yet accomplished its purpose. The accountants, however, declare it apparent that the slow-acting forces of credit tightening have been felt and will continue to be felt. The test, they say, of the Reserve system's power is probably yet to come, whether or not the rediscount rate is raised as a last resort.

"The Reserve system was concerned primarily with the volume of its own credit used in the stock market," reads the statement. "There is no clear measure of this, but inasmuch as member banks borrow from Reserve banks and also lend in the stock market, brokers' loans by banks may be used as an indicator. The volume of brokers' loans by banks has decreased $296,000,000. Loans by 'others,' inculding domestic corporations, have gone up $277,000,000, however, so that the total brokers' loans as of last week was only $20,000,000 less than on February 6.

"The system sought to bring down interest rates for business, or to prevent the high rates prevailing in the stock market from drawing rates to business upward. It has not succeeded in this. Commercial paper rates have risen about one-half per cent to the present level of 5¾ to 6 per cent. Bankers' acceptances have gone up one-half per cent to 5⅛ per cent or 5⅜ per cent, partly by influence of the system itself. Time money has risen one-half per cent to 8 or 8¼ per cent. Call money was 7 per cent on February 6, and has gone as high at 20 per cent since then, and is still around 12 per cent."

Purchase of Stock Announced.

Purchase of 30,000 shares of capital stock in the Second Southern Bankers Securities Corporation by Stein Bros. & Boyce, of Baltimore and Washington, who will make public offering of the stock the latter part of this week, was announced yesterday. This corporation has an authorized capitalization of 200,000 shares, with 30,000 outstanding. The management will be composed of officers and directors of the Southern Bankers Securities Corporation, which has purchased a substantial amount of capital stock of the forego-going corporation.

An average of well in excess of 12 per cent on average capital invested since incorporation, has been earned by Southern Bankers Securities Corporation, common stock of which was first offered two years ago at $7.50, and now sells around $55 on the Baltimore exchange. Directors of the new corporation are C. Prevost Boyce, Heyward E. Boyce, W. Graham Boyce, James Bruce, J. Edward Johnston, W. O. Pierson, Julian S. Stein and Milton S. Trost.

Railroad Claims Shrink.

In spite of increased traffic, claims paid by railroads of this country and Canada last year from losses and damage to freight shipments, were smallest for any year since the end of the World War, the American Railway Association here made known yesterday. Amount of claims paid in 1928 totaled $36,837,-248, a reduction of $2,135,816 under 1927. Reductions were caused by increased promptness in freight handling and improved condition of railway equipment. Claims from wrecks, robbery, unlocated damage, employes' errors, improper handling, loading, and freezing all showed decreases, although increases were reported in those arising from rough handling, concealed damage, fire and marine loss and damage.

Bankers Plan Campaign.

Meeting yesterday at headquarters of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, in the Becker Building, the special committee of Washington bankers named Monday to conduct the campaign of T. Hunten Leith for election to membership on the executive council of the institute, laid preliminary plans. Leith will be nominated at the annual convention of the institute in Tulsa, Okla., June 10 to 14.

Market Values Decline.

The market value of 100 representative common stocks declined approximately one-third of 1 per cent in March, according to the monthly computation of Frazier Jelke & Co. The 100 issues on March 28, the last trading day of the month, were appraised at $34,064,001,000, compared with $34,095,376,000 on February 28. This represents a decline of $34,375 for the period.

Bank Dividend Declared.

The board of directors of the Metropolitan Bank yesterday declared the regular semiannual 5 per cent dividend, payable April 15 to stockholders of record. Books will be closed from April 5 to April 14.

BOARD TO OVERSEE SITES FOR SCHOOLS URGED BY CITIZENS

District Association Group's Recommendation Sent to Executive Commtitee.

PROFICIENCY, SAVING TO TAXPAYERS OBJECTS

Support of Plea for Larger Maintenance Fund From Congress Advocated.

Recommendations that a board of examiners, consisting of the superintendent of schools, the municipal architect and three citizens, be named to approve all sites and plans for schools is contained in the report of the schoolhouse planning committee made last night to the District of Columbia Public School Association, meeting in the board room of the District Building.

The report of this committee, discussed at some length by members present, all of whom favored adoption of the report, was finally referred to the executive committee of the association for possible suggestions regarding methods to obtain action in connection with its provisions. It is to be presented to the membership of the association again at the next meeting.

F. C. Steiner, representing Macfarland Junior High School, chairman of the schoolhouse committee, in making the report, declared the committee believed the creation of such a board of examiners was absolutely necessary to safeguard taxpayers against inefficient expenditure of school funds. He cited cases in the District where sites purchased were either too large or too small and where buildings were too large for the demands of the community or else were entirely inadequate.

Under the recommendation of the committee the board of examiners would consult with the board of education, building experts and others whose experience and knowledge might better conditions in District schools before approving any purchases of land for schools or plans for new buildings.

C. W. Hodgkins, representing the Kalorama Citizens Association, urged that the Public School Association support the Board of Education in its efforts to secure larger appropriations for the repair and maintenance of schools and for funds to purchase equipment necessary to keep up the standards of education in the District. He called attention to the fact that Central High School has been neglected on repair work for so long that at present the sum of $100,000 is needed to put the building in first-class condition.

Miss Alice Barrows, building expert of the Board of Education, delivered the principal address of the meeting, taking as her subject "The Science of School Buildings."

ROVER PLANS TRIAL OF JONES LAW CASE

Prosecutor Denies Capital Is Speak-Easy Center; Claims Decrease in Arrests.

MAN AND WIFE ACCUSED

The strongest case available will be selected by District Attorney Leo A. Rover for the first Jones law trial in the District Supreme Court, he said yesterday, and the case will be scheduled within two weeks. The District Attorney plans to make his first blow telling, and obtain a conviction, if possible.

Rover's announcement was made in his comment on the plan of Ralph J. Kelley, attorney, and erstwhile secretary to former Senator Edward I. Edwards, of New Jersey, who plans to extend free legal aid to persons charged with violations of the Jones law in the District.

A statement attributed to Kelley to the effect that the Nation's Capital had more "speak-easies and dives" where liquor could be procured, per city block, that any other city of its size in the Nation, was emphatically denied by Rover.

In commenting on Kelley's plan, the prosecutor declared "a very serious effort is being made by this office to enforce the law. We are pushing padlock cases and hope to try some of the Jones law violators within the next few weeks."

Kelley's statement that "higher ups" were the reason for lack of enforcement also was denied by Rover, who declared he has never been approached by a member of Congress or any other "higher up" in connection with a liquor case. The prosecutor declared he intends to go steadily ahead trying cases and if any attorneys opposed to the Jones law enforcement overstep their bounds of legal practice they would be dealt with at the time of the occurrence.

That the Jones law has a telling effect on illicit liquor traffic is proven by court records, according to the prosecutor. In March, 1928, records revealed that approximately 195 liquor cases were filed in the Police Court, while only 63 cases were brought to court last month. Of the 63 cases, more than 50 were Jones law cases and were sent to the grand jury. Eleven cases were ignored because of insufficient evidence and improper police methods in making the arrests.

The grand jury returned indictments in approximately twenty of the cases and ignored seven.

Three new liquor cases were filed yesterday in Police Court, while one charge was nolle prossed and speedy sentence was passed on two men, convicted of liquor charges.

A minute after conviction of sale and possession charges by a jury, Judge Gus A. Schuldt sentenced Curtis McDowell, colored, to six months in jail and Eugene Thomas, also colored, to four months in jail and a $400 fine. They were arrested January 30 by the police vice squad. Assistant District Attorney R. F. Camalier conducted the prosecution.

Motorist Is Accused Under Jones Dry Law

Violation of the Jones liquor enforcement law is charged against William Johnson, colored, 34 years old, of 1012 Delaware avenue southwest, by police of the Thirteenth Precinct, for alleged transportation of 24 quarts of whisky in an automobile truck. Johnson is charged also with illegal possession of the whisky.

The man was arrested at Vermont avenue and S street northwest by Detectives W. F. Burke, William McEwen and William Laflin, who became suspicious of the truck and gave chase. Johnson surrendered without a struggle.

Boy Felled by Street Car Believed Seriously Hurt

Charles Neal, colored, 7 years old, of 3718 Prospect avenue northwest, was injured seriously yesterday evening when he ran in front of a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car and was knocked down in front of his home.

The child was taken to Georgetown University Hospital and treated for a possible fracture of the skull and cuts about the head. The street car that struck him was operated by Motorman G. Hiatkan, of 638 E street northwest.

Man in Nature's Garb Draws Crowd, Is Held

The terrain in front of the John Paul Jones Statue along the Cherry Blossom boulevard at Tidal Basin is decidedly an improper place to do a "back to nature," even in the springtime.

The man was neither drunk nor dancing—just standing there, without any clothes, police say, gazing with a fixed stare at the image of the famous man-of-warsman.

A crowd assembled. The First Precinct police station was notified. Policeman W. J. Hammond responded. A blanket was borrowed from one of the automobilists and Pan was wrapped therein.

At the station house he told police his name was R. F. Larkin; that he was 32 years old, and that his home is at Bloomingdale, Ill. Police decided to hold him for investigation.

B. & O. Engine Makes Long Run Here and Dispenses With Fireman.

Two records in railroading were established yesterday when Baltimore & Ohio train No. 10, Chicago to Washington, arrived at Union Station.

The locomotive of the train, No. 5312, known as the "President Pierce," made the run of 786 miles from Chicago hauling fourteen cars to Willard, Ohio, and ten cars from that point to Washington. Ordinarily four engines are required to haul this train, working in relays. This is a new record for a coal-fueled locomotive in high-speed passenger service.

In addition to this record, the same engine, for a distance of 4,350 miles, including the Chicago-Washington run, was fired by a mechanical stoker. No grates were shaken, nor was the fire hook used on the line of the road. This performance indicates that locomotives on Washington-New York runs may make the return trip without cleaning the fire.

HOOVER IS NO CZAR, ASSERTS BARGERON

DELIVERS RADIO ADDRESS

President Hoover was either "grossly misrepresented" before he was elected to his high office "or we have a new Mr. Hoover in the Presidency," Carlisle Bargeron, political writer for The Washington Post, declared last night in a radio address over a national hookup from Station WRC.

"It has become apparent," Mr. Bargeron said, "that the prepresidential publicity that attended Mr. Hoover grossly misrepresented him, not necessarily that during the campaign proper but that which was spread over the years leading up to his getting the Republican nomination.

"It would not be exactly correct to say that it did him an injustice because he did get the nomination and he did get the Presidency. But it drew an unfair picture of him and one that unless undone would militate against his effectiveness as President."

Even during the campaign, according to Mr. Bargeron, Mr. Hoover was pictured as a "dictator sitting on his throne and single-handedly running his campaign. And after his election it was naturally assumed that he would be the Government."

With the prepresidential picture, Mr. Bargeron said, "Congress was not in the mood to furnish any ideas or to cooperate. Senators might go along under a dictator for a while because, after all, the President has a lot of patronage at his command, but they do it sulkingly and sooner or later they strike back. They did it very effectively on the dominating Mr. Wilson.

"Now, on the first great matter with which Mr. Hoover and Congress have to deal he has said to the gentlemen of Capitol Hill, in effect: 'It is up to you all to work out a plan of farm relief. Of course, I will cooperate.' And apparently he is going to let them stew awhile before he proffers his aid.

"Then he will call them to the White House and tell them to bring their multiple ideas with them. And he will sit as a mediator, so to speak; and when it is all over, everybody concerned will feel that they had a hand in farm relief, although in later years they may wish that they did not.

"It would be surprising how much good this attitude has already created on Capitol Hill."

75 Steel Workers Resume at Raise

Back on Federal Buildings; If Strike or Lockout Existed Debated.

Seventy-five structural steel workers employed by the James H. Elkins Construction Co. on several Federal building projects returned to work yesterday at an increase of 15 cents an hour, according to John A. Locher, business agent of Local No. 5, of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers. Locher added that 25 more workers will return today at the increased wage, and that shortly 60 riveters will be employed.

The increase came as the result of a demand by the workers which led them to leave their jobs two days ago. While contractors characterized the movement as a strike, union officials termed it a lockout.

Ross H. Johnson, manager of the Iron Contractors Association of Washington, said yesterday that the Elkins company had agreed with other members of the association to resist an increase in wages. According to Locher however, Elkins ordered the increase after a long distance telephone conversation with C. W. Williams, local superintendent.

Dismissal sentences must be passed on by the Commissioners. It is not usual for the Commissioners to grant oral hearings to policemen convicted by trial boards.

BUS ROUTE CHANGE ASSURES QUIET FOR HOOVERS' WORSHIP

APPROVAL EXPECTED AT MEETING TODAY

Decision Follows Protest by Thirteenth and Irving Streets Congregation.

Courtesy due the President has caused the Washington Rapid Transit Co. to reroute its motorbuses so that the noise of their stops and turns past the Quaker Meeting House, at Thirteenth and Irving streets northwest, will not disturb the meetings on Sunday mornings.

E. D. Merrill, president of the bus company, conferred with Chairman John W. Childress, of the Public Utilities Commission, yesterday and proposed that a temporary route, adopted last Sunday morning, be continued in effect for the time being. The question is to be discussed at the regular weekly meeting of the Utilities Commission this morning and Merrill's proposal is expected to be approved.

Because of paving repairs on Columbia road, the bus route was changed temporarily some time ago so that the buses turned from Thirteenth street into Irving street and proceeded west to Sixteenth street. The new plan calls for buses to continue on Thirteenth to Columbia road, west to Fourteenth, north to Irving, west to Sixteenth and south on Sixteenth. This route will be in effect on Sunday mornings from 10:30 to 12:45, the hours of service in the President's meeting house.

As another safeguard against disturbing the Quaker congregation, the company will eliminate during services the stop to take on and let off passengers on the corner of Thirteenth and Irving streets, but Mr. Merrill is not anxious to have much said about that, because there are many churches passed by the buses. The noise made by the buses was protested against by members of the Quaker congregation last week.

When repairs to Columbia road are completed the buses will pass over that street in going from Thirteenth to Sixteenth street.

Terminal Scheme For Buses Backed

Trade Board's Committee to Study Sites Away From Business Area.

Plan for a union bus terminal, located where buses would not pass through the business area of the city, was indorsed yesterday by the public utilities committee of the Washington Board of Trade. The committee met for luncheon at the City Club.

Bus terminal problems were discussed by John W. Childress, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission; Earl V. Fisher, executive secretary of the commission; Assistant Superintendent of Police E. W. Brown, in charge of the Traffic Bureau, and Warner Tufts, of the bus transportation division of the American Automobile Association.

Childress said five sites for a union terminal have been suggested to the commission. They are 1329-1331 H street northwest, 921 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, the southeast corner of Tenth and E streets northwest, the block bounded by Tenth and Eleventh streets and New York avenue and K street, and the site of the First Congregational Church at Tenth and G streets northwest. The committee authorized its chairman, Jesse C. Adkins, to appoint a subcommittee of three to study the question.

HOUSE OVERLOOKING CITY RAZED BY FIRE

Spectacular Blaze Sweeps Bungalow on Peak of Mackey's Hill.

ANCIENT WOODS MENACED

Fire of undetermined origin early last night destroyed a small frame bungalow on the high peak of Mackeys Hill, Arlington County, Va., overlooking the Capital, where its leaping flames were visible throughout the city, and for a time threatened the entire settlement and the ancient woods on Mackeys Hill.

The blaze was discovered about 8 o'clock in the unoccupied bungalow of the late John Gschwinder, a brewer, who died a year ago. Fred Herwig, a meat and poultry dealer of Arlington County, who lives next to the Gschwinder place, saw the fire when he returned to his home and made futile efforts to check it with buckets of water, while Mrs. Herwig telephoned for the fire apparatus of the county.

More than 3,000 feet of hose had to be stretched from a hydrant on the main highway to the top of Mackeys Hill. By the time water was turned on the flames, the house had burned to the ground and fire was spreading through the woods toward other houses and garages.

That the Gschwinder bungalow was burned so quickly was attributed by Herwig to the fact that the place was filled with old newspapers and magazines which Gschwinder had been fond of collecting. It is believed the fire may have been caused by a brush fire made by boys in the neighborhood. No official estimate of the damage could be obtained. In addition to the dwelling, pigeon houses on the premises were also burned.

According to Chief Richard Leigh, of the Cherrydale Fire Department, and Chief F. Biggs, of Ballston, another house of Gschwinder at the same place was burned to the ground about three years ago.

The boy was taken to the Prince Frederick Hospital, where physicians despaired of saving him. He suffered a fractured skull, compound fracture of the right leg and his spine may be fractured.

MISSIONS WORKERS NEED OF NEW YORK, ASSERTS PREACHER

Holds Nation's Largest City Requires More Attention Than Foreign Lands.

CHURCH LEADS FIGHT ON RACE PREJUDICES

Methodists, Here for Annual Gathering, Hear Several Themes Discussed.

Missionary work was shown to be as romantic, and as much in need of attention, on the sidewalks of New York as it is in isolated regions of foreign lands by speakers last night at the second day's meeting of the 145th session of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at the Foundry Church.

Last night's meeting was devoted to the anniversary of the board of home missions and church extension of the conference. The main speakers were the Rev. Whitford L. McDowell, secretary of the board, of Philadelphia, and the Rev. Donald H. Tippett, pastor of the Church of All Nations, of New York City.

Dr. McDowell introduced Dr. Tippett, after asserting that more missionary work can be done today in New York City than in China, Africa or any other foreign land in which heathen beliefs exist.

Combat Racial Hatreds.

Dr. Tippett told of how the church of which he is pastor is transforming lives "touched by the gang spirit;" of how psychology is being applied to the eradication of racial antipathies that are taught foreign children by their mothers.

Working on the theory that racial hatreds are acquired and not instinctive, the Church of All Nations is teaching the people of 50 different nations the importance of brotherly love, Dr. Tippett told the conference. He alad that the expansion of this work would be the only way in which international problems will be solved. "There can be no solution of the international riddle," he declared, "until the nations of the earth are united in the realization that the Kingdom of God is supreme."

Canadian Delivers Message.

The main speaker at the afternoon session was the Rev. J. T. Wardle Stafford, of Toronto, Canada. Dr. Stafford spoke on "The Eagle, the Athlete and the Ordinary Man." He described these three figures as representing the various developments in the life of man. "They that wait upon the Lord," he said, quoting from the Bible, "shall renew their strength." In this way, he pointed out, men and women may still have strength after they have soared as an eagle and run as an athlete.

The anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was held earlier in the day. Bishop Herbert Welch made the main address. A memorial service was held yesterday morning.

An important program is set for today. The conference will continue until Tuesday, at which time the appointments of pastors will be announced.
